NOLTE RUNS AGAIN, FILES FOR NINTH TERM; OTHER TWO CANDIDATES QUIT

Veteran Comptroller Who Was Slated to Retire Announces Decision After G.O.P. Conference.

Veteran Comptroller Louis Nolte filed for re-election on the Republican ticket for a ninth term as Comptroller today, the last day on which candidates may file for nomination for offices to be filled at the April 5 municipal election. The primary election will be March 11.

Nolte filed his declaration of candidacy with the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, following a meeting with Republican party leaders in his office at City Hall. Excise Commissioner Arthur H. Bader and V. Ray Alexander, who had filed for the Republican nomination for comptroller, withdrew from the race immediately after Nolte filed, leaving him unopposed for the nomination.

The office of the Board of Election Commissioners will remain open until 9 p.m. today to receive declarations of candidates for nomination at the primary election. Withdrawals may be effected until 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Albert A. Huber in Race.

Albert A. Huber, securities salesman, living at the Mark Twain Hotel, filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for Mayor this afternoon. He is the third candidate to file in the race.

J. Edward Gragg, a lawyer, and one of the other candidates for the Republican mayoral nomination, has been reported to have the support of Republican ward organizations. The third candidate, who has no organization support, is Julius J. Noser, retired bungalow builder and president of the American Taxpayers' Association.

Nolte said he had decided to seek re-election "at the request of Messrs. Bader and Alexander, the members of the Republican City Committee and many business and professional men."

Wanted to Retire, He Says.

"It had been my wish," the 77-year-old Nolte said, "to retire, but after consultation with my physician, who assured me that, if I am elected, it would not impair my health, I decided to file for the nomination.

"The expressions of faith in me from our party leaders and from the men who had filed for this office are deeply and sincerely appreciated.

"Mayor (Aloys P.) Kaufmann's recent plea for party harmony and for the elimination of all pre-election misunderstandings was timely and true, and helped me in my decision. I am confident that we can now consolidate our efforts toward a common cause and continue to give to our St. Louis taxpayers the finest possible municipal government.

Praises Two Candidates.

"Both men who have filed for the office of comptroller (on the Republican ticket) are my friends, both are thoroughly competent, and both are thoroughly honest. Either man would ably serve St. Louis as comptroller. I am proud that these fine men saw fit to urge me to seek re-election in their stead. I am grateful to them.

"There is no need to tell the people of St. Louis of my policies, if they elect me comptroller. They will continue to be in the best interests of the people, as they have been in the past."

Alexander, vice president of the Park Transportation Co., and a former employe in Nolte's office, whom Nolte had indorsed for the Republican nomination to succeed him, said he had urged Nolte to

WARMEST WINTER IN 10 YEARS ENDS TODAY, IT SAYS HERE

Bows Out on a Shivery 19 Above—Also a 'Very Wet' Season.

This winter, which meteorologically ends today, has been—believe it or not—the warmest in the last 10 years. The Weather Bureau says it also has been a "very wet" winter.

St. Louisans who found the temperature down to 19 degrees at 7 o'clock this morning were convinced that winter was over only so far as the Weather Bureau was concerned. They faced the prospect of starting the meteorological spring with the thermometer in the 20s tomorrow morning.

Statistically, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren could show the period from Dec. 1 until today was the warmest since the winter of 1938-39. The average temperature during the three months was 36.4 degrees, 2.8 degrees above normal.

Precipitation—much more rain than snow—totaled 12.07 inches for the winter, almost 5 inches above normal. January was an unusually wet month, with 7.46 inches of rainfall, sleet and snow.

RECORD FEBRUARY PRICE FOR LAMB AT EAST SIDE YARDS

The highest price ever paid for lambs at National Stockyards in February was recorded today when one lot brought $26.50 per hundredweight. This represented an advance of 25 cents.

The lamb population was very low even before the recent blizzards caused heavy death losses on western sheep ranges. A light run of 800 sheep and lambs was on sale here today.

The hog market opened strong to 25 cents higher, with a top price of $22 per hundredweight. There were 11,000 head on sale.

There was a firm undertone to the cattle market. The only weak spot was vealers which were off $1, the top price being $32. Receipts totaled 4000 head.

BABY FATALLY BURNED IN FIRE APPARENTLY SET BY BROTHER

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 28 (AP)—Two-year-old Judith Dischert died today of burns suffered when fire wrecked her crib. Battalion Chief William van Pfefferle said there was "little doubt" last night's blaze—confined to the crib—was started by 5-year-old Leonard Dischert, the dead girl's brother.

Detective Clifford del Rossi said several burned matches were found around the crib.

Mrs. Dischert told Rossi that Leonard admitted going into the baby's bedroom but became hysterical when asked about the fire. She said her son had been warned repeatedly not to play with matches. Rossi said the parents told him Leonard had twice before caused fires in the home.

BABY BORN IN AIRLINER 9000 FEET ABOVE ATLANTIC

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 28 (INS)—A girl weighing six pounds, two ounces was born yesterday to Mrs. Evangelina Munoz in an Associated Air Transport plane as it flew 9000 feet over the Atlantic en route from Norfolk, Va., to San Juan.

The child and mother are doing well. The woman's home is at San Sebastian, P.R.

Mrs. Munoz was assisted in the birth by Ernestina Figueroa, a nurse on leave from the Polyclinic Hospital in New York, who was a passenger aboard the plane. The pilot radioed ahead to San Juan asking for an ambulance at the airport.

BAR ON LEAVING JOB TO PRESS PAY DEMANDS UPHELD

Supreme Court 5 to 4 on Wisconsin Ruling Against Union Rallies at Irregular Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Supreme Court today upheld a state bar against union members' leaving work at irregular times as a means of pressing wage demands.

The bar was issued by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board against an AFL union whose members are employed in two Milwaukee plants of the Briggs & Stratton Corp.

Justice Jackson delivered the 5-to-4 decision. Justice Douglas wrote a dissent in which Justices Black and Rutledge concurred. Justice Murphy also wrote a dissent. Justice Rutledge concurred in Justice Murphy's dissent, too.

Meetings at Any Time.

The union, Local 232 of the AFL United Automobile Workers of America, said its members authorized special union meetings to be called at any time during working hours at the two plants. The local appealed to the highest court from a decision by the Wisconsin supreme court which upheld the State Labor Board's action.

The board's order called on the union to quit engaging "in concerted efforts to interfere with production by arbitrarily calling union meetings and inducing work stoppages during regularly scheduled working hours or engaging in any other concerted effort to interefere with production of the corporation, except by leaving the premises in an orderly manner for the purpose of going on strike."

Other Court Actions.

In other decisions, the court:

1. Agreed to review the conviction of Robert A. Watts, an Indianapolis Negro who was sentenced to death in the murder of a white woman. Attorneys for Watts contended that Negroes have been excluded systematically from grand jury service in Marion county, Ind., where Watts was tried and convicted, and that alleged confessions were obtained by force and intimidation.

2. Unanimously upheld the constitutionality of a South Carolina act which forbids the owner or any employe of an undertaking establishment to engage in the life insurance business.

3. Upheld a Federal Trade Commission ruling that 41 book paper manufacturers restrained price competition.

4. Denied an appeal by Jay M. Rowland, former Hot Springs (Ark.) city attorney who was convicted of bribery at a trial prosecuted by Sidney S. McMath, who now is governor.

5. Ruled in effect that territorial circuit courts in Hawaii are not bound by the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction act. That act forbids United States courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes except under rigid requirements.

2 DAIRIES TO CUT BUTTER PRICE

Retail price of butter sold by Pevely and St. Louis dairies will go down 1 cent, to 74 cents a pound, tomorrow.

SUES FOR FIREMAN JOB, EVEN IF HE HAS FALSE TEETH

Plaintiff Says Scearce's Order Barring Him Is 'Arbitrary and Capricious.'

False teeth will not prevent a fireman from doing his duty, Robert W. Mahon insisted today in a suit demanding that Personnel Director R. Elliott Scearce abandon an "arbitrary and capricious" ruling and certify Mahon as fit to be a city fireman.

Mahon, 31-year-old welder, who lives at 6907 Hancock street, filed suit in Circuit Court for a writ of mandamus. The Fire Department is taking on 220 men, and he would like to be one of them, but Scearce has barred him solely because of his false teeth, Mahon alleged.

There are no minimum standards for the number of natural teeth a fireman should have, so there is no legal basis for the personnel director's ruling, the plaintiff continued. His dentures, he added, "perform all the purposes of natural teeth," as shown by the fact he was accepted for military duty and served more than three years in the Navy during the war.

Mahon lost his teeth as the result of an attack of spinal meningitis when he was in his teens, but he recovered fully, he said.

COURT RULES MILLS MUST LET CIO USE COMMUNITY'S HALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP)—The Supreme Court today ruled, 6 to 3, that four North Carolina cotton mills must let employes use a community hall for union meetings. But it decided that the National Labor Relations Board must rewrite an order, stating more explicitly the terms under which the CIO Textile Workers Union may use the hall.

The decision affected the mill town of North Belmont, N.C., where workers' houses and the three public buildings are owned or controlled by the Stowe Spinning Co., Acme Spinning Co., Perfection Spinning Co., and Linford Mills, Inc. The companies have joint ownership.

Employes were denied use of the hall for union meetings in 1945 in the midst of an organizing drive with the CIO textile workers. The hall, the only place available in the town for public meetings, customarily was used for all community meetings.

The labor board ruled the companies were attempting to hinder self-organization among the employes. It ordered the firms to permit workers to use the hall for their union meetings.

TAXICAB DRIVERS USE 2-WAY RADIOS, TRAP HOLDUP MEN

Two men, accused of robbing a woman of $5, were being held by East St. Louis police today because they did not reckon with the fact that most of the taxicabs in that community are equipped with two-way radios.

Shortly after Mrs. Fay Prince, 970 North Twenty-ninth street, East St. Louis, was robbed by two men early yesterday at Main and Division streets, she ran to a taxicab and told the driver. He flashed his office by radio and a distress call was sent out. This call brought about six taxicabs to the scene, where Mrs. Prince described her assailants to the drivers.

Each driver then started cruising. It wasn't long until Larry Huhn, Yellow Taxicab driver of 1119 Exchange avenue, East St. Louis, was flagged down by two men. One had red hair. Both answered the description given by Mrs. Prince. As they got into Huhn's machine, he sent a distress signal to his office.

Several taxicabs converged on Huhn's machine as he approached the Chicago Restaurant at Main street and Broadway. He called to the other drivers: "I've got them." The men meekly surrendered and were identified by Mrs. Prince at the police station. They said they were William Hufford of Wilkes Barre, Pa., and Robert F. Bartsch of St. Louis. The taxicab drivers now have a club: "The unpaid policemen's club."

Rookie Officer Spots Fancy Watch, Solves Week-Old Jewelry Robbery

A week of patient searching for a man wearing a rose-gold wristwatch paid off for police rookie John Murphy yesterday when he finally found the burglar who had stolen three $50 wristwatches from the Fish & Co. jewelery store, 1717 South Broadway, on Feb. 20.

While walking his beat in the neighborhood, Murphy had been looking with particular care at the watches worn by patrons of a restaurant in the 1800 block of South Broadway. A young man who walked into the place yesterday had the cuffs of his shirtsleeves turned up, and Murphy could see that he was wearing a watch similar to the ones stolen.

"Nice watch you have there," the policeman told the youth. The latter let Murphy look at it closely. "Where did you get it?"

The youth replied, "Oh, I bought it from a man for $30." Murphy said, "It looks like a $50 watch to me," and questioned the youth further. He gave his name as Charles L. Rogers, 18 years old, and gave an address in the 1800 block of South Broadway, but his answers were evasive when Murphy asked him from whom he had purchased it.

Murphy arrested Rogers, and took him to Lynch street station for questioning. There Rogers said he had purchased the watch from Montie James Chandler, of the same address as Rogers. Chandler, 19, was arrested, and admitted that he had robbed the jewelry store.

A warrant charging Chandler with burglary and larceny was issued by Assistant Circuit Attorney James W. Connor. In the case of Rogers, however, Connor refused to issue a warrant because of insufficient evidence to indicate Rogers knew the watch was stolen. Murphy, who lives at 2830 Park avenue, joined the police force last May.

MOTHER DIES AS DAUGHTER IS TAKING MARRIAGE VOWS

HAVERHILL, Mass., Feb. 28 (UP)—As Grace Cranton, 21 years old, knelt to take her marriage vows with Robert Kimball, 24, yesterday her mother, Mrs. Bertha Cranton, 51, suddenly pressed her hands to her chest and collapsed into the arms of friends.

A few moments after Kimball placed the wedding ring on her finger, friends informed the bride her mother had died of a stroke.

SHOWDOWN FIGHT STARTS IN SENATE ON TAKING UP GAG ON FILIBUSTERS

Lucas Brings Up Motion to Amend Rules After Truman Asks Administration Leaders to Meet Issue 'Head On.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—With President Truman demanding a showdown, the Senate pitched into a fight today over whether to adopt a filibuster-killing change in its rules. The battle may hold up all Senate action on legislation for weeks or more.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois touched off the scrap by moving to bring the rule change before the Senate.

Twelve Southern Democrats sat grimly in their seats, all prepared to talk indefinitely to keep the rule change from going through.

The Administration wants the rules changed to clear the way for action on the President's civil rights program.

"Must Have a Decision."

Lucas told his colleagues: "We must grapple with this problem and have a decision in this session of Congress."

(The United Press reported Vice President Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky notified the Senators that he was going to enforce the rules strictly—meaning the Southerners would get no "breaks" from the presiding officer.)

Earlier, Lucas said as he left a White House conference of legislative leaders with Truman that the President had urged them to meet the filibuster issue "head on" and seek a showdown.

That meant, he indicated, that the fight over the filibuster would not be put aside for any legislation, but would be fought to a finish.

Unlimited Debate at Present.

Under present rules, there are some situations in which no limit can be put on debate. That means Senators opposed to a bill can keep talking, or filibustering as it is called, and prevent a vote.

Southerners have used such tactics in the past to bar a vote on anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation. These are among measures President Truman is asking for as part of his civil rights program.

Southerners want to keep the chance to filibuster so they can use it when those measures come up. So they were primed to filibuster against changing the rules.

The Administration's hope of putting the rule change over hangs on wearing out the Southerners—or getting a ruling from Vice President Barkley of Kentucky, that would permit a vote to limit debate on the proposal to change the rules.

Barkley was at the White House with Lucas.

Asked how he would rule if the matter was raised, Barkley said: "I'll pass on no question until it arises."

Lucas, Barkley and House Speaker Rayburn of Texas, met for more than 45 minutes with Truman.

Lucas "Pretty Confident."

Lucas said that he was hopeful that the rule change could be put through, but he declined to speculate on how long it might take to stop a filibuster against it.

At present, he said, the President is not particularly worried that his legislative program will be stymied by the fight over the filibuster.

"There is no doubt, of course," Lucas said, that it will "delay" action on many Administration proposals but "this issue has to be met sooner or later and we might as well meet it now." He said he was "pretty confident of success."

Although he said it would delay action on rent control extension, he said that measure was not yet out of the House and that the reciprocal trade deadline would not come until June 12.

Lucas said all-night Senate sessions were not planned at present, but the sessions "might run late, with night sessions here and there."

Rayburn on Rent Bill.

Rayburn said there was a good prospect that the rent control bill would be brought up in the House this week. He said the House might pass the Treasury-Post Office appropriations bill and the District of Columbia appropriations measure this week, and that a measure to increase top level Government salaries may be voted out by a House committee.

Rayburn was asked if he thought the President should make his threatened train stumping tour around the country in behalf of his fair deal program.

"I trust it won't be necessary, at least as far as the House is concerned," Rayburn replied.

He was asked if the filibuster would not result in a large backlog of measures for the Senate.

DEATH TOLL OF DOGS RISES TO 23 IN POISONINGS AT K.C.

Police and Aroused Citizens Continue Around-the-Clock Patrol of Area.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 28 (UP)—The number of dogs dead in the Kansas City animal killings had jumped today to 23, and there was no indication of an early arrest in the case.

Police and aroused citizens continued their around-the-clock patrol of the southside Kansas City area, where poisoned meat balls have been scattered for more than a week. At least one dog had died of poisoning in the northeast district of the city.

Three dogs were found dead yesterday after a mass meeting of southside residents Saturday night at which it was decided to form patrols to work in overlapping shifts in hope of catching the killer.

HOOVER BOARD CRITICIZES POWER OF MILITARY MEN IN UNIFIED DEFENSE SETUP

Three Divergent Views Expressed In Armed Services Unity Report

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—Secretary of State Dean Acheson and three members of the Hoover Commission told Congress today that an over-all Chief of Staff for the national military establishment was needed to get real unification of the armed services.

The majority of the commission, comprising Chairman Herbert Hoover and six other members, were silent about the appointment of a principal military adviser to President Truman and Secretary of Defense Forrestal who would outrank the three chiefs of staff of the Army, Navy and Air Force. But the fact that a separate statement was added to the general report on the national security organization that went to Congress today indicated that at least some of the majority favored the recommendation of a Hoover commission "task force" committee against the establishment of a single chief of staff.

Acheson, who is vice chairman of the commission, is believed to represent the Truman Administration viewpoint. The White House is working on amendments of the unification law. The indications are that it favors much greater authority for the Secretary of Defense.

In the recent past, Hoover has told friends that he opposed giving one military man so much power. On the other hand, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower who has returned to Washington to give military advice to President Truman and Secretary Forrestal and to be the temporary chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff believes that a military man, outranking Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff; Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, should be named to stop the interservice controversies now dividing the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The unsettled issues among the Joint Chiefs of Staff have been blamed by competent critics as

SORORITY 'CAN'T GET EXCITED' ABOUT TRUMAN'S 'S.O.B.'

Executives Forced 'to Pretend They Are Nobler Than They Are,' Girls Say.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP)—Those men who blushed at President Truman's salty initial-calling last week may be interested to learn that at least one group of women doesn't feel its sensibilities were offended.

Muriel Davis, president of Sigma Alpha Sigma, white-collar girl's sorority with about 500 Midwestern members, said 77 per cent of the group's membership indicated in a survey they don't think Truman's s.o.b. remark was "anything to get excited about."

High executives, the women said, are forced "to pretend they are nobler than they are."

"We'd rather have the man in authority scorch the ceiling with sulphurous language than express his displeasure in hidden little mean ways," one member wrote.

"No modern woman should take such an expression literally," another stated.

Miss Davis said most of the girls—whose ages range between 18 and 25—"seem to think men in high places should serve as an example to others."

"But if they are too perfect, they may give others an inferiority feeling and tend to discourage rather than inspire them," she said.

PEARSON SUGGESTS TRUMAN CHANGE MEANING OF S.O.B.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Radio commentator Drew Pearson last night invited President Truman to join him in changing the meaning of the initials s.o.b.—and suggested the phrase, "Servants of Brotherhood."

Pearson referred to the chief executive's use of the three letters last Tuesday and said he proposed to turn "those rather ugly initials into a new and beautiful meaning . . ."

He asked the President to join him in forming "a new, militant crusading order of Servants of Brotherhood to promise letter understanding between our neighbors here at home and our friends abroad."

Truman used the letters last Tuesday night in defending a military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan.

The President said "if any s.o.b. thinks he is going to get any member of my staff or cabinet changed by some smart aleck statement over the air, he's mistaken." The President did not use Pearson's name in his speech.

Previously Pearson had launched a campaign of criticism against Vaughan over the air and in his newspaper column, after the General accepted a medal from President Peron of Argentina.

RED IS ACCUSED OF TAKING FRENCH ARMY DOCUMENTS

Major Charged With Giving Papers to Attache of Foreign Power—Captain Also Involved.

By CARL HARTMAN

PARIS, Feb. 28 (AP)—The French Government said today an army major who is a Communist has confessed turning army documents over to "a foreign military attache." The attache was not identified, nor was the country he represents named.

A communique issued by the Interior Ministry said an army captain also was questioned about his "relationship" with the major and about "defense documents" he is charged with turning over to a Communist magazine.

The semi-official French news agency said the major, Louis Teulery, had given arms production secrets to a "popular democracy." This is the term the Communists use to describe the countries they dominate in eastern Europe.

The other officer was identified only as Capt. Azema, an instructor of airborne troops.

Former Resistance Leader.

Teulery, 37 years old, is a former resistance leader now attached to the French army's administrative center. In 1946 and 1947 he was assistant chief of the counter-intelligence service in the Munitions Ministry.

The communique said Teulery admitted handing over "numerous documents" he collected in his job in the office of the Ministry of Munitions and National Defense.

The ministry said the case was connected with the one against Robert Penilliaut, business manager of the Communist weekly France d'Abord (France First), who was arrested Friday. The major was identified as a stockholder in the weekly.

The announcement came as Frenchmen wondered how far the Government would go in present moves for a purge of Communists.

Similar debates are scheduled

'Sick of Floods,' Residents Pitch In With Funds, Muscle at Subdivision

Residents of a subdivision five miles northeast of East St. Louis, have pitched in with funds and muscular effort to halt the high water rampages of Big Canteen creek, which floods the subdivision almost every time there is a heavy rain.

Noel Krapp, a grocer in the community, explained that the Canteen Drainage District lacked funds to handle the job and the residents "got sick of floods and decided to tackle it ourselves." Last Saturday 31 volunteers began clearing willows, silt and debris from the creek, while housewives served doughnuts, cake and steaming coffee. The work was supervised by a foreman from the East Side Levee and Sanitary District. A small group worked yesterday.

In addition to their muscular efforts, subdivision property owners and nearby farmers raised a fund to hire a dragline and a bulldozer for heavy work in the creek and to repair several breaks in the bank. Cost of the equipment is about $250 a day, and it is planned to use it for two weeks, Krapp said. The community hopes to collect $600 toward the fund from the sanitary district.

Big Canteen creek, flowing from the bluffs of Horseshoe lake, leaves its banks in flash floods caused by heavy rains, forcing residents of the creek area to make hasty departures from their homes. The most serious flood occurred in 1946, while the most recent high water was two weeks ago. Only a small portion of the area is in the East Side Levee and Sanitary District.

REPORT DEPLORES LACK OF CONTROL BY THE PRESIDENT AND FORRESTAL

'Perilously Close to Weakest Type of Department'—Makes Six Proposals to Strengthen Civilian Rule.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Hoover Commission today called the new unified national military establishment "perilously close to the weakest type of department" in the Government.

The investigating commission deplored lack of civilian control by the President and Secretary of Defense over the powerful military high command, the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It said there is "continued disharmony and lack of unified planning" in the supposedly "unified" Department of Defense; it found that the military is far too free from civilian control; and it warned of "extravagance" and "waste" which could do serious damage to the national economy.

Offers Six Recommendations.

The 12-man bi-partisan commission on Government Reorganization, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, strongly urged on Congress six recommendations intended to remedy defects it found under the present unification law.

"There is evidence," it reported, "that the utmost that can be accomplished under the present statute will fall far short of national needs."

Most of the recommendations were aimed at concentrating greater control in the hands of the civilian Secretary of Defense (Secretary Forrestal, a member of the commission, took no part in preparing the report.)

But the group's final suggestion emphasized the need for immediate action on such things as "emergency plans for civilian and industrial mobilization," plans for civilian defense and "defenses against unconventional methods of warfare."

Freedom of the Military.

In commenting on the freedom enjoyed by the military, the commission leveled especially strong criticism at the way the Joint Chiefs of Staff are set up.

It said the chiefs "are virtually a law unto themselves" and suggested appointing a chairman to bring "this most powerful of military units" under strong civilian control.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower recently was named temporary chairman of the joint chiefs by President Truman, reportedly to bring an end to disagreements among the services. Whether that was the kind of appointment the commission had in mind, the report did not say.

But it did lay considerable stress on the bad effect of inter-service rivalries," commenting that they "indicate a lack of understanding of the fact that military security depends upon co-operation and balance among the Army, Navy and Air Force."

What the commission said about the military establishment as a whole went especially for the joint chiefs, who include the Chiefs of Staff of the Army and Air Force, the Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of Staff to the President.

Like "Absence of Control."

"Three of the four members are spokesmen for separate service arms," the report said. "The Secretary of Defense, and his viewpoint for the unified establishment as a whole, is not represented in their deliberations.

"Thus, though the Secretary of Defense is, under the act, the principal assistant to the President in military matters, he cannot, as a practical matter, maintain effective civilian control over this most powerful of military units."

This "divided responsibility and allegiance are tantamount to an almost complete absence of control," the report declared.

That lack of clear control over the military the commission found to be one of the major flaws in the 1947 Unification Act, although it said that measure "has achieved gains."

"Throughout its history," the report said, "the United States has been fearful of military cliques and has thrown up safeguards against this threat to democratic government."

Now, it went on, "the pressure of events has resulted in a budget of approximately 15 billion dollars in the current fiscal year, more than a third of all federal appropriations, and large military budgets must be the expectation for the immediate future.

"Under these circumstances, the nation must make very sure that means of exercising civilian control are strong and effective. . . .

"We must do this not only to safeguard our democratic traditions against militarism, but to insure that military policy shall be in close accord with national needs and national welfare and also to insure . . . that costs shall be commensurate with actual needs

TAFT, FLANDERS SAY JOINT HOUSING BILL WILL SAVE 5 BILLION DOLLARS

Difference Between $308,000,000 and $450,000,000 a Year for 40 Years Cited to Back Statement.

Today in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Two Republican Senators, Taft of Ohio and Flanders of Vermont—claimed today a potential saving of more than five billion dollars under the compromise housing bill now awaiting Senate action.

The reduction results, they told a reporter, from a cutback in original plans of the Democratic Administration for building of 1,050,000 subsidized low-rental public housing units in the next seven years.

The compromise sent to the Senate with backing of 11 Republicans and an identical bloc of Democrats calls for 810,000 of these subsidized units in six years.

Taft Explains.

"It's the difference between $308,000,000 and $450,000,000 over the next 40 years," Taft explained.

The original Democratic bill called for federal subsidies of up to $450,000,000 a year for 40 years or a possible maximum of 18 billion dollars. The $308,000,000 over 40 years is $12,320,000,000—or $5,680,000,000 less.

Flanders said that Congress "often forgets how much something will cost over-all by looking only at the annual cost."

Under the public housing proposal local communities or housing agencies must furnish land, utilities and plans and make the contracts. The Federal Government then supplies the deficit between the monthly amount required to pay the long-time costs and that supplied by the local agency including rents from the low-income occupants.

Economy Report.

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, predicted that a majority of the committee would approve a report generally backing President Truman's proposal for a sound economy. O'Mahoney made the forecast to reporters after the committee had discussed the report for two and a half hours behind closed doors.

The confidential document shown to a reporter is full of warnings that inflation still is a danger. It was circulated to committee members over the weekend for study in advance of today's session.

O'Mahoney refused to make public the report, but he said it will be ready for the Senate tomorrow after some "minor modifications."

Price and Wage Control.

The preliminary draft comes out strongly for granting Truman's request for standby authority to reimpose price and wage controls on a selective basis. It plugs for extension and tightening up of rent control, for mandatory allocation of scarce materials, continuation of consumer credit controls, an increase in the minimum wage, a broader social security program and larger benefits, public housing and slum clearance, federal aid for education, a flexible and "well integrated" farm program, and other programs the President wants.

As for Truman's demand for a four billion dollar tax increase, the report suggests approval of that but doesn't come right out and say so. There is no flat indorsement, either, of the President's controversial proposal for federal authority to build industrial plants. On that issue, the document cites testimony by one of Truman's economic advisers that the President feels the matter should be studied.

The document calls for lowering or removal of excise taxes on such items as passenger travel on trains and planes, and on oleomargarine.

The House plans to get down to work by mid-week on the first of a long list of money bills to keep Government departments running in the year beginning July 1.

Before the week is out, the House may get an Administration measure to extend rent controls—now due to expire in March. But the extension may be for only 15 months instead of the two years the Administration asked for.

A proposal to boost the number of displaced Europeans who can be admitted to this country from the 200,000 voted by the last Republican Congress to 400,000—another of Truman's requests—will be before the House Judiciary Committee.

Palestine Relief.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee approved legislation to provide $16,000,000 for relief of Palestine war refugees. The $16,000,000 would be contributed to the United Nations as this nation's share of a relief fund.

The Senate Executive Expenditures Committee considered tighter congressional controls on the President's powers to reorganize the Federal Government. Chairman McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, said the committee considered a suggestion to make the President's power subject to veto by either house of Congress instead of both.

Elsewhere in Congress:

Truman advised Senate leaders to meet the filibuster issue "head on" and seek a showdown on curbing it. Democratic Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois commented that "this issue has to be met sooner or later and we might as well meet it now."

The Administration asked Congress for a $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 expansion of the present billion-dollar-a-year program for helping the needy. The extra money would go toward "home relief"—including medical care—for all needy people.

The Administration also advised Congress that the proposed $940,000,000 in new aid for Britain is a "tight fit"—the absolute minimum. Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman told Senators that any cut in second-installment funds for Britain would "adversely affect continued recovery in both the United Kingdom and western Europe."

The House Ways and Means Committee starts down the long, rough road toward action on another Truman proposal—broadening of the social security program.

Democrats on the Senate Labor Committee were trying to reach an informal agreement on terms of a substitute labor bill for the Taft-Hartley Act.

Public Works.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, told the House Public Works Committee there is no intention now to embark on any big public building program. He said any such program would compete with scarce materials and labor.

"But," he said, "we should acquire sites at this time for needed public buildings, along with plans and specifications, to be put on the shelf."

Senator Flanders remarked yesterday that the public housing bill "is so elastic that it even will appeal to private home-builders who opposed public housing." He said it is tailored to meet complaints of builders that the federal subsidized program might compete for scarce materials and labor, thus boosting costs.

NEHRU SAYS INDIA REDS PLAN TO SEIZE POWER BY FORCE

870 Communists Arrested, and Drive Will Go On, Parliament Told—18 Killed in Calcutta Riots.

By P. SHARMA

NEW DELHI, Feb. 28 (UP)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru charged today that mob attacks in the Calcutta area and widespread sabotage throughout India were Communist moves aimed at seizing the Government by force.

He told Parliament that 870 Communists had been arrested in the last 10 days for violence "bordering on open revolt," and that the Government's crackdown on "murderers, arsonists and saboteurs" would continue.

As Nehru appeared before Parliament, reports from Calcutta said at least 18 persons were killed since Saturday in clashes with Communist-led bands. The dead included three Britons and two Indian policemen.

Attitude Borders on Revolt.

"The Communist party has adopted an attitude of not only open hostility to the government, but one which can be described as bordering on open revolt," Nehru said.

"The House is well aware of Communist revolts in countries bordering on India," the Prime Minister added. "It is presumably a furtherance of the same policy that attempts are being made in India to incite the people to active revolt."

Nehru said the mob raids Saturday and Sunday in the Calcutta area and the Communist efforts to foment a national railway strike despite a decision by the railwaymen's federation not to walk out were connected with Communist policy throughout the Far East.

The Prime Minister said there have been three attempts to derail trains in the past two days. Asked how the Communists secured arms, Nehru replied:

There are several ways. It is particularly easy in India's eastern provinces, such as Assam, where they have borders with foreign countries." Assam borders on Burma.

Nehru also charged that Communists murdered more than 200 members of the Hyderabad state congress since India moved into that big princely state last September.

Three Dead in Furnace.

A United Press dispatch from Calcutta said three British officials of the Jessup Engineering Co., the largest British company in Calcutta, were found dead in a furnace in their building. They were reported to have been tossed into the furnace alive. They were identified as Frederick C. Brennan, 46 years old, Arthur Dwyer, 37, and Fred G. Turnbull, 28.

The dispatch said six persons, including two women, were killed and 12 injured when police opened fire on a crowd of 1000 persons yesterday in a village in the Howrah district 10 miles from Calcutta. The crowd was reported to be trying to free two Communist leaders arrested in connection with previous disturbances in the village.

Eye witnesses to a raid on Dum Dum Airport Saturday said the attackers flew Red flags and shouted Communist slogans. After seizing guns and vehicles, they made a dash for the Indian-Pakistan border 30 miles east. They were intercepted by police who said they arrested 25 of the gang. Five others were said to have been killed.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL IN NAPLES KILLED BY FALL FROM CLIFF

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 27 (AP)—The secretary of the Soviet consulate here fell to his death today from a steep cliff on the outskirts of Naples.

Police said Dr. Nicolay Poleytchykov, 25 years old, stepped too near the edge of the cliff while being photographed by another consulate secretary.

Authorities said there was no suspicion of foul play or suicide. The body was recovered by firemen from an isolated reef.

GEN. CLAY REPORTED PLANNING TO QUIT REICH JOB BY JULY

Army Recently Asked State Department to Take Over Administrative Duties.

By WES GALLAGHER

BERLIN, Feb. 28 (AP) — Gen. Lucius D. Clay's retirement soon as United States military governor of Germany appeared today to be a strong possibility.

Clay, 51 years old, declined to comment on reports he would step down by June 30, but it has been an open secret that he would like to relinquish his post here as soon as it is convenient to Washington. Recently the War Department urgently requested the State Department to take over military government duties from the United States Army.

Clay applied for retirement a year ago, and the State Department was supposed to have taken over administration of Germany by last June 30. However, Soviet pressure on Berlin, plus the fact that the State Department did not have administrative personnel available, resulted in an indefinite postponement of the changeover. Clay withdrew his retirement appeal on Washington's request.

(Secretary of the Army Royall said in Washington that Gen. Clay wants to give up his command, but that no plans have been made to relieve him.)

Missourian Killed in Germany.

WIESBADEN, Germany, Feb. 28 (AP)—The United States Air Force announced today that Sgt. Joseph R. Kennermer, of Seymour, Mo., was killed in a hunting accident last Friday near Munich. (Seymour is in Webster county, southwest Missouri.)

15 MINERS SAVED AFTER FIRE TRAPS THEM IN SHAFT

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

BENTON, Wis., Feb. 28 (AP)—An entire crew of 15 lead miners came out of their shaft unharmed yesterday after a fire had trapped them for seven hours.

The fire, in the mine engine room, cut the men off from their 167-foot escape shaft to the mine head. Lights went off, water started rising in the diggings, burning timbers fell to the bottom of the mine, and dirt tumbled down the shaft.

Except for one man who suffered a slight heart attack, all the crewmen remained calm, said John Banfield, foreman of the trapped night crew.

"We moved back into the room about 500 feet and started to swap stories," he said. "We knew they were doing their best to rescue us, and there wasn't anything to do but wait."

The mine, owned by the Kittoe Mining Works, is two miles from here. Banfield said he believed the fire was caused by defective wiring in the engine room.

He said that while awaiting rescue, "we stayed at the high end of the room, because water was up to our knees. The blowers supplying air and the pumps were out for quite a while," he said, "but water was our worst fear. Finally they got the pumps working, and began pulling water out at the rate of 1500 gallons a minute.

"We were also lucky that the fire had an updraft which pulled the smoke out of the mine instead of into the shaft. Several burning timbers fell down but we put them out with buckets of water."

Banfield said dirt fell when a hopper directly over the shaft collapsed, but that the shaft was not blocked.

He said James Udehove of Platteville, Wis., suffered the heart attack. He was the first taken out of the mine by means of a makeshift hoisting bucket rigged up by the rescuers.

Benton is in the southwest corner of the state, near the Wisconsin-Illinois boundaries. The area, which extends down past Galena, Ill., is an old lead-mining country.

BLAZE IN WASTE PAPER IN POST-DISPATCH BASEMENT

Fire started at 2 p.m. today in waste paper in the former pressroom in the basement of the Post-Dispatch Building.

Men working on a sprinkler system in the basement discovered the flames and sounded an alarm. The basement quickly filled with dense smoke from burning paper and firemen donned gas masks.

Since removal of presses from the basement, the area has been used largely for storage of news print. Company officials said it was not believed that the tightly rolled newsprint had ignited, and it was believed the fire was confined to wrappers and other waste paper.

The arrival of fire apparatus temporarily blocked traffic in Olive and Locust streets at Twelfth boulevard. The origin of the blaze was not determined, and there was no damage estimate.

5 MORE PASTORS PLEAD GUILTY AT BULGARIAN TRIAL

Defendants Follow Same Pattern in Admitting Spying for U. S. as Tempo Speeds Up.

By EDWARD M. KORRY

SOFIA, Feb. 28 (UP)—The mass trial of 15 Protestant clergymen speeded up today with a rush of brief guilty pleas along the now familiar pattern of tearful confessions and professions of remorse.

Five more of the pastors marched by the witness bar in rapid order, raising to eight the number who have pleaded guilty to the charges of treason, black marketing and espionage for the United States and Britain.

The Rev. Georgi Nikolov Chernov, 46-year-old head of the Pentecostal Church in Bulgaria, was the first of the defendants to be heard at the opening of the new week in the trial. He confessed and blamed his co-defendants for getting him tangled up in anti-state activities.

The Rev. Mr. Chernov went into his confession at some length, and then the tempo of the district court proceedings quickened. Other pastors followed him and rushed through their pleas.

The tenor of all the confessions was the same, and the material with which they dealt differed little.

The second to plead guilty today was the Rev. Lamri Marinov Mishkov, 41, a Congregationalist. Next came the Rev. Georgi Nikolov Vassev, 48, a Baptist, and after him, the Rev. Haralan Ivanov Popov, 49.

The fifth plea of the day was by the Rev. Voncho Nikolov Dryankov, 41, who wept and pleaded for mercy for himself, his wife and children.

It was expected that the remaining seven defendants would enter their pleas tomorrow.

Typical of the line taken by all the defendants thus far were the final words of the tall, slender Rev. Mr. Mishkov. He said:

"I want to say I sincerely repent from the bottom of my heart. I am ashamed of myself to have believed rumors about the people's militia. From the time I was arrested, no one insulted me, no one exerted pressure upon me."

Like the others he testified to collecting information from 1945 to 1948 on Soviet military affairs in Bulgaria. He said the information went to the United States.

The Rev. Mr. Chernov had written a 250-page "confession" while in jail—the longest preliminary deposition taken from any of the defendants. All are charged with treason, spying and black market money dealings.

The Rev. Mr. Chernov said he had been ordered to collect espionage by Cyril Black, former United States political mission secretary here. He claimed he had talked with Black during the period from November 1944 to the middle of 1945. Black, now a professor at Princeton University, has denied the charges made by the Communist-dominated Bulgarian Government, as have other Americans accused of complicity.

American and British authorities in Sofia have rejected all charges made by the defendants in their court recitations. They said that some of the Americans and British mentioned in testimony were not even in Bulgaria at the time the pastors said in their confessions they talked with them here.

In numerous other cases, officials said, conversations between Americans and Bulgarian pastors concerned only generalities and had nothing to do with espionage.

Some spectators in the courtroom were dozing as the Rev. Mr. Chernov continued the routine of pleading guilty and accusing himself.

He testified he and other pastors had delivered information to America on Russian troop movements and on military and economic developments.

He said the Evangelical Church Council of Bulgaria gave orders through Protestant pastors to "praise everything American and slander all that is Russian."

The council is an organization of the Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Pentecost churches in Bulgaria. Protestants are a small minority of 13,490 in Bulgaria's 7,000,000 population.

The three who pleaded guilty previously were the Rev. Vassil Georgiev Ziapkov, a Congregationalist and religious representative of the United Protestant Church group; the Rev. Yanko Nikolov Ivanov, a Methodist, and the Rev. Nikola Mihailov Naumov, a Baptist.

All delivered long speeches of self-denunciation on the stand. Prior to the trial they were held in jail for three months, undergoing questioning.

(Bernard M. Baruch denied a statement by the Rev. Mr. Ziapkov that they conversed at the Paris peace conference on Bulgaria in 1946. Baruch said he was not in Paris in 1946.)

CHIEF PARTY VOTES TO LINE DENMARK UP WITH WEST

Way Apparently Cleared for Atlantic Pact Talks—Some Signs That Sweden, Too, May Eventually Join.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 28 (AP)—Denmark appeared today to be following Norway in lining up with the West in the "cold war," and there were indications that Sweden, too, is leaning in that direction.

Denmark's position on the proposed North Atlantic defense pact was made clear yesterday when the executive committee of the Social Democrats, the country's largest political party, voted for "increased political and military co-operation" with the Western democracies. A resolution said an all-Scandinavian alliance is "not possible at present."

Way Cleared for Talks.

The party's vote in Parliament, added to that of smaller parties already committed to the North Atlantic agreement, provides a clear-cut majority in both houses.

The Social Democrats' action was a long step from the party's traditional anti-militaristic policy. The leader, Premier Hans Hedtoft, said previously that he, personally, was in favor of the Atlantic pact.

As a result, Denmark is now expected, like Norway, to start talks with the Atlantic powers about what it gets and its responsibilities if and when it joins. It means, also, Denmark has turned its back on Russia.

The Atlantic pact is being negotiated by the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Outlook in Sweden.

Meanwhile high diplomatic sources in Sweden, traditionally neutral key nation of the Scandinavian bloc, predicted that Sweden will join the projected North Atlantic agreement within six months. One informed source said "sooner, if the Russians make any move toward Finland."

High Swedish officials acknowledge privately that their country cannot stay on the fence much longer in the East-West lineup. They believe isolation is fast becoming impossible and Swedish sympathy lies with the West.

Swedish Prime Minister Tage Erlander told a reporter yesterday that Sweden still holds open its offer of a strictly neutral Scandinavian defense alliance. But, he added, this could not succeed unless Norway joins. He said he believes Sweden should adopt a "wait and see" policy for the next five or six months.

Russia has repeatedly termed the Atlantic security system an aggressive instrument aimed at her.

NEW PRICE CUTS FOR CONSUMERS DECREED IN RUSSIA

Announcement of Reductions of 10 to 30 Pct. Causes Excitement in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Feb. 28 (AP) — Special decrees announced today new price reductions for Soviet consumers, effective tomorrow. The announcement, broadcast to the population, caused excitement in Moscow.

Muscovites gathered in groups in the snowy streets to discuss the news and there was an air of rejoicing among them. The announcement was read twice through the "Voice of the Soviet Union," by the announcer who read all the orders of the day throughout the war.

The reductions, from 10 to 30 per cent, cover 46 major classifications. The decree proclaimed percentages of reductions in specific groups such as bread, meat, sausage and canned goods, woolen garments and so forth, but did not announce new prices for individual items within the general classifications.

The individual prices were to be posted tomorrow morning in stores which will be working late tonight all over the country to get ready for the changeover.

The announcement was issued by the Council of Ministers and the Central Committee of the Communist party.

P.S.CO. TO STUDY EFFECT OF NEW FARE SCHEDULE

Company Says Relief Granted Will Not Meet Over-All Financial Requirements.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. announced today that it would begin next Monday a 90-day study of the effect of the fare schedule ordered by the State Public Service Commission, which will go into effect Monday.

"The schedule of fares ordered by the Public Service Commission, effective March 7, 1949, will give some emergency relief," a company spokesman said, "but, in the company's opinion, will be insufficient to meet its over-all financial requirements.

"We agree with the commission as to the inequities of the pass system. Furthermore, with passes it is impossible to arrive at accurate conclusions as to the number of passengers, points of origin, riding habits, etc.

"We acknowledge, in equity to all riders, the need of zone fares and charges for transfers. Our organization is being readied to start on March 7, making complete accurate studies, as requested, so that, at the end of 90 days, we will present to the commission the complete factual data requested in their order."

2 AT LITTLE BEVO OVERCOME BY FUMES FROM AMMONIA

William Seibt, owner, and Martin H. Robinson, maintenance man, at Little Bevo, Inc., a restaurant at 4751 Morganford road, were overcome by ammonia fumes today as they were attempting to make repairs to refrigeration equipment in the basement. Both were taken to St. Anthony's Hospital.

Employes of the restaurant called Patrolman Robert Novotny to assist as Seibt and Robinson staggered to the first floor and collapsed. The officer opened windows and dragged the two men to the sidewalk. The restaurant had not yet opened for the day.

Novotny said Seibt and Robinson were attempting to oil the machinery and to do so a valve had to be removed. As it was taken out, the gas escaped and the two men were unable to get it back in place immediately. Seibt suffered burns of the face and eyes. Robinson suffered burns of the face and lung injuries.

U.S. ASKS MILLIONS MORE OF CONGRESS FOR 'HOME RELIEF' OF ALL THE NEEDY

First Phase of Truman Social Security Expansion Program Is Presented—Includes Cost of Medical Care.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Administration asked Congress today for a $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 expansion of its present billion-dollar-a-year program for helping the needy. The extra money would go toward "home relief" — including cost of medical care—for all needy persons.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, commissioner for social security, presented to the House Ways and Means Committee the Administration arguments. They covered today the first phase—direct relief for the poor—of President Truman's legislation for a vast expansion of the social security program.

Altmeyer said social security has achieved its primary immediate objective—to abolish the poorhouse—but the long-range goal of "preventing destitution" is yet to be met.

Truman wants federal financial aid extended to all needy persons, up to $100 a month for a couple, and $20 for each additional person in a needy home. Federal assistance, in money matching with the states, now is limited to needy aged, the blind and to dependent children.

Aims of Over-all Program.

Altmeyer appeared as the committee opened public hearings into Truman's over-all legislation calling for:

1. Direct relief for all needy persons.
2. Blanketing of 20,000,000 more persons—doctors, lawyers, farmers, business men, servants and others—under old-age insurance, increasing the total covered to 50,000,000.
3. Greatly increased benefits.
4. Boosting—in some cases, tripling—the security tax on pay checks and payrolls.

The President has promised legislation later proposing a national program of health insurance—with new payroll taxes and the Government paying doctor bills—and calling for expansion of unemployment compensation laws.

Altmeyer told the committee 5,000,000 Americans already receive some form of public assistance, amounting to a federal-state-local total of almost two billion dollars a year. This is apart from the old-age and survivors insurance benefits that are paid for in special taxes upon workers and their bosses.

Maximum U.S. Payment $50.

States set the size of public assistance payments. They ranged last December from $16.38 per recipient in Mississippi to $78.18 in Colorado. The Federal Government now enters the matching arrangement up to $50 per recipient elderly person.

The 5,000,000 include 2,500,000 needy aged persons, 1,700,000 persons in families receiving aid to dependent children, 86,000 blind persons, and 800,000 needy persons who do not fall within these three categories.

The Federal Government puts up a billion a year in a money-matching arrangement with the states, for aid to the needy aged, the blind and for dependent children.

Now, Altmeyer said, the Administration wants to provide from $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 a year more so that relief can be extended to all needy persons, including the physically and mentally handicapped and jobless persons not covered by unemployment compensation.

Gap in Security System.

"Only if this gap is bridged will the nation have an effective public assistance system able to meet changing demands," he said. "It is in the public interest that the necessities of life be available to all persons who cannot be self-supporting and for whom other provision is lacking. Without federal funds for general public assistance, many people will inevitably live below a level that anyone could consider tolerable."

Truman's general legislation, for broad social security expansion, got an uncertain reception when it hit Capitol Hill last week. No one can say for sure now how much of it will pass.

Truman already has charged, in his Jefferson-Jackson dinner speech, that "die-hard reactionaries" have started a campaign of confusion against his plans for "the welfare of the people."

The President sent his social security expansion bills to Congress last week, and the reaction there is something like this: some of it will pass—but not the whole thing. Most members of Congress withheld comment until the Administration presents all its arguments.

Deaths in Kenyon College Fire Put at 9 As Hope for 6 Missing Is Given Up —Associated Press Wirephotos.

Group of students watching fire sweep through "Old Kenyon Hall," 122-year-old structure that housed 120 students at Kenyon College, Gambier, O.

25 Injured in Blaze of Dormitory in Gambier, O.—Man Hurt in Drop From Window Dies.

GAMBIER, O., Feb. 28 (AP)—The death toll in the Kenyon College dormitory fire was listed at nine today. Earlier, six had been listed as missing and 26 as injured, in addition to two previously known dead in the million-dollar blaze early yesterday.

This afternoon one of the injured students died in a hospital, and college authorities announced that all hope had been abandoned for the six missing students.

The latest death was that of Jack McDonald, 18 years old, of Hamilton, Ohio. He suffered a fractured skull in a drop from his third-floor room in the 122-year-old dormitory, "Old Kenyon."

Those previously announced as dead were:

Marc S. Peck of Fenton, Mich. He died of burns in Mercy Hospital at nearby Mount Vernon, O.

The missing, for whom hope was abandoned officially after a complete check, and now listed as dead were: Ernest Ahwajee of Akron, O.; Albert J. Lewis of Hazelton, Pa.; George Pincus of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Stephen Shepard of New York; Colin Woodworth of Jamaica Plain, Mass., and Martin E. Mangel of New York.

None of the injured was from the St. Louis area.

Announcement that hope for the missing students had been abandoned was made by Dr. Gordon K. Chalmers, president of the college.

"All available sources have been checked," he said. "Their parents have been notified."

At the time searchers still were unable to dig into the ruins because of the heat. Only the four-foot thick sandstone walls of the oldest building on the campus withstood the flames which raged for three hours yesterday morning.

College authorities and firemen believed a spark from a first-floor fireplace ignited a rug. For a few minutes fire fighters thought the flames could be contained with the fire walls separating the wings from the main part of the structure. But the fire vaulted upward and raced along the common roof.

Frightened students dived head first from second and third story windows. Others tried descending the walls down the ivy that matted the damp stone.

Still others jumped for nearby fire escapes. They were blocked by flame-filled halls from reaching them normally. Brout was killed in this manner. His roommate Saul Sanders of Mount Vernon, N. Y., jumped just ahead of him. Sanders made it with comparatively minor injuries.

Saturday night was dance night at Kenyon College. Students were in and out of historic "Old Kenyon" all evening. By 3 a.m. all was quiet. An hour later, fire was raging up the "Middle Kenyon" section and spread rapidly to the wings.

St. Louisan Living at Dormitory Escapes Injury.

Robin Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan C. Day, 9807 Litzsinger road, telephoned to his parents yesterday from Gambier, O., that he escaped uninjured from the burning dormitory of Kenyon College, where he is a student. His room was on the third floor, but he was able to save most of his belongings.

Two other St. Louis students at Kenyon, who did not live in the "dorm," are Jack Shipley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Shipley, 5201 Westminster place, and Alfred Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mervyn Davies, 411 Algonquin place, Webster Groves. The Rev. Dr. J. Francis Sant, rector of St. Michael and St. George's Church, is an alumni trustee of the college.

WEIGHT LIFTER USES STRENGTH TO SAVE 2 FROM FIRE

Hangs From Fire Escape by Hand and Catches Pair in Other Arm.

GAMBIER, O., Feb. 28 (AP)—Edwin Collins of Grosse Pointe, Mich., accomplished an almost unbelievable feat of physical strength yesterday in saving the lives of two Kenyon College students.

Collins, a Kenyon College weight lifter, jumped from the window of his second-floor room in blazing "Old Kenyon" dormitory to a fire escape, where he swung by one arm.

In the other arm, he first caught a student who jumped from the third floor. He transferred that student to the fire escape with the free arm.

Still he hung there. The hot metal of the escape seared his hand, but he clung grimly. Flames licked at his face.

Another student jumped from an adjoining second-story window. Collins caught him in his powerful left arm and transferred him to safety on the escape.

Finally, he could stand no more. He dropped to the ground.

Safe Forced, $50 Stolen.

A safe at the Mid-Valley Supply Co., a plumbing supply house at 3740 Sullivan avenue, was battered open and $50 stolen, Carroll Carper, an official of the company, reported to police yesterday. Thieves broken into the place by forcing a first-floor window.

'WE BEAT KILROY' ON CARD LEFT BY BURGLARS AT STORE

Burglars who entered the B & H Meat Co., 514 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, boasted "We beat Kilroy," after taking $19 from the cash register and lard valued at $26 from the store last night.

A card bearing that inscription was discovered on top of the cash register by Jim Tierman, a watchman, when he opened the store today.

HEROISM AWARD IN SAVING LIVES OF 36 PARATROOPERS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Sgt. Robert L. Hodgkiss, whose heroism helped save the lives of 36 paratroopers, received the distinguished Flying Cross today.

That decoration, normally awarded only in wartime for services performed under combat conditions, was given the sergeant by Gen. Omar Bradley, Army chief of staff.

Hodgkiss was safety officer aboard a C-82 transport last Jan. 14 when its engines failed while flying at low altitude near Fort Bragg. The citation which accompanied the medal said:

"Upon receiving the signals to abandon ship, Sgt. Hodgkiss, instead of thinking of his personal safety, coolly directed and expedited the exit of all 36 parachutists. Sgt. Hodgkiss remained in the plane until the crash. The outstanding courage and heroism displayed throughout this accident reflected great credit upon himself and are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service."

As the plane struck ground, Hodgkiss left through the rear jump door. Then, seeing a fire start in the wreck, he ran to the nose of the plane, broke into the pilot's compartment and assisted in removing injured and dead crew members of the plane.

'AXIS SALLY' SAYS SHE BARRED RADIO WORK WITH MONTI

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars weepingly testified in her treason trial today that she refused to work with an American "spy or traitor" on the German radio.

Miss Gillars said the man she referred to as a "spy or traitor" was known to her by the name "Welthaupt." Her attorney, James J. Laughlin, identified him as Martin J. Monti of St. Louis.

Monti, an Air Force lieutenant, flew his plane into Germany and went to work for the German radio. He recently pleaded guilty to treason charges in United States District Court in New York and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Miss Gillars said she went to Adelbert Houben, a Nazi radio official, and demanded that Monti be removed from the radio. She said Houben told her that the flyer must stay. "Then I've made my last broadcast," she said she told Houben.

Houben, who testified earlier in the trial, told a similar story of the Monti incident. He said Miss Gillars resumed broadcasting after he told her that Monti had left the Berlin station.

BURGLAR GETS $800 FROM DRESSER AS MAN, WIFE SLEEP

Tancel E. Schrader, driver for a transcontinental trucking company, told police today that he and his wife are very sound sleepers, so sound, in fact, that a burglar broke into their home and fled with $800 without awakening them.

The burglar apparently came into their house at 1844A Menard street through an unlocked door. He went through bureau drawers and, in general, ransacked the place until he found Schrader's wallet in the top drawer of a dresser in the bedroom where the Schraders were asleep.

TAXICAB DRIVER'S KILLER REPEATS STORY AT INQUEST

A warrant charging first degree murder was issued at Clayton today against Thomas L. McDonald, former convict, who admitted killing Raymond E. Henerfouth, Black and White Cab driver Friday night.

The warrant was issued by Magistrate Taylor W. Strubinger, who set a preliminary hearing for Thursday. Earlier today a coroner's verdict of homicide was returned against McDonald.

Although advised by Coroner Arnold J. Willmann of his privilege not to testify, McDonald took the stand, saying: "I'll go ahead with it, sir." He then recited details of the shooting as previously related to Police Lt. Leroy Litzinger of Clayton and other officers.

Reason for Killing.

McDonald told Clayton police he had gone to Brentmoor Park, Clayton, where Henerfouth's body was found Saturday night in his cab, to loot the large homes in the area. He said he shot the taxicab driver because he was unable to pay the $17.55 fare.

The ex-convict, 26 years old, was said to resemble the man who robbed the Forum Cafeteria, 307 North Seventh street, of $100 Feb. 21. Witnesses of other robberies who viewed him yesterday were unable to make an identification.

Although Henerfouth's body was not found until Saturday night, McDonald had been in custody since the previous night, when Clayton police picked him up on suspicion at the east end of Brentmoor park. He had a .22-caliber pistol in his waistband and was unable to explain his presence.

In re-enactment of the killing yesterday, McDonald described how he held the pistol two inches behind Henerfouth's head and fired one shot as the cab slowed to a stop in front of 3 Brentmoor park. McDonald then took the cab driver's billfold, which contained $3, but overlooked $14 in a jacket and shirt pocket.

Ammunition in Pocket.

When arrested, McDonald had 50 rounds of .22-caliber ammunition in his pockets. An additional 150 rounds were found in his room at the Statler Hotel. Also in his possession was a contract from the Arthur Murray dancing studio at St. Paul, indicating he had paid $220 down on an agreement to take 400 dancing lessons for $2442.

McDonald said he had lost his $50-a-week job with a battery firm in St. Paul last December and had come to St. Louis Feb. 8.

Ballistics tests by the St. Louis Police Department have disclosed that the bullet fired into Henerfouth's head came from the pistol found on McDonald. Another cab driver, whom Henerfouth stopped to ask directions to Brentmoor park Friday night, identified McDonald as the passenger in the cab at the time.

Henerfouth, who was 37 years old, lived at 3231A Natural Bridge avenue. Surviving are his wife and a son, Ronald, 5 years old. Also surviving is a daughter, Nancy, 16, by a previous marriage. Before he became a Black & White driver six months ago, he was part owner of a tavern at Grand boulevard and Hebert street.

$466 Stolen at Business School.

Richard Walker, owner of the Walker Business College, 922 Elliot avenue, which caters to Negroes, reported that $466 was stolen from a desk in the school yesterday afternoon. Burglars forced a first-floor window to gain entrance.

Red Cross Fund Drive to Be Opened Tomorrow, Area Goal of $863,000

Distribution of lists and subscription cards to the 5000 volunteer workers in the 1949 Red Cross fund campaign, to raise $863,000 in St. Louis and St. Louis county, was completed today for the campaign which will open tomorrow and continue through March.

General solicitation will be launched at a breakfast at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at Red Cross Chapter headquarters, 3414 Lindell boulevard. John H. Hayward, campaign chairman, will preside, and speakers will be Jimmy Conzelman, noted football coach and manager; Charles E. Albanese, acting Mayor; and Msgr. Thomas D. Kennedy, former national chaplain of the American Legion.

A five-minute appeal for the Red Cross will be made by President Truman at 8:55 o'clock tonight over KSD and three other St. Louis radio stations. This will be preceded, on Station KXOK, by a special program beginning at 8:30 and featuring Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Helen Hayes, and Wayne King and his orchestra.

The latest personnel appointments for the campaign here are: Mrs. Thomas Hasler, 4004A St. Louis avenue, chairman of part of northwest region 4; Sidney Baer Jr., 724 Berick drive, vice chairman University City division; Joseph W. Blaeser, 5912 Arsenal street, chairman southwest section; Mrs. Alvin Bockwinkel, 5727 Nottingham avenue, chairman southwest region 23; Irvin P. Miller, Manufacturers' Bank & Trust Co., chairman southeast region 7; Mrs. Claude Sink, 906A Lami street, chairman southeast region 9, and Albert Wotawa, Chippewa Trust Co., chairman southeast region 10.

A proclamation signed by Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann designates the month of March as St. Louis Red Cross month. It states that the local Red Cross chapter in the past year has served 199,565 persons, including 16,000 veterans and their families, has done large-scale educational work and has established the nation's largest and best equipped Red Cross blood center.

DRIVER HURT IN 3-WAY AUTO CRASH DIES

Victor Zimmerman, 762 Kingsland avenue, University City, died yesterday in St. Louis County Hospital of a crushed chest suffered Saturday afternoon when his automobile was struck by another machine, the driver of which had fallen asleep, at Highway 66 and Vandover road, St. Louis county.

Also injured in the crash, which involved three automobiles, were Zimmerman's wife, Rose, 65 years old, who suffered a fractured left leg, and Francis Wallach, of Eureka, taken to Veterans' Hospital with head injuries. Wallach, who is a cousin of County Prosecuting Attorney Stanley Wallach, was quoted by the Highway Patrol as saying, "I went to sleep." He was driving west and hit the rear of another westbound machine, driven by Carl H. Davis, 2910 Victor street, then swerved into the path of Zimmerman's machine, which was traveling east.

Zimmerman, 72 years old, was a partner in the Cahokia Flour Co., 6060 Manchester avenue. The inquest date has not been set.

Woman in Safety Zone Hit by Truck Which Goes On.

Mrs. Bertha Hulsey, a widow, 4426A Norfolk avenue, was struck by a truck which failed to stop, while waiting for a streetcar in a safety zone at the northwest corner of Broadway and Chouteau avenue last night. Two other persons, who jumped out of the way of the truck, said the driver also failed to make the major stop at the intersection, and drove south after the accident. Mrs. Hulsey is in City Hospital with a head injury.

PAY OF 10,000 SHOE WORKERS TO BE CUT UNDER CONTRACT

The wages of about 10,000 workers employed by Brown Shoe Co. will be reduced April 1 because of the recent decline in the cost-of-living index, it was announced today.

Union contracts with the company provide for wage increases or reductions based on living costs certified by the United States Department of Labor.

The exact amount of the wage decrease will be announced in a few days, a union spokesman said.

ASKS TRUMAN TO BACK BARRACKS MEMORIAL

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—President Truman's support of a plan to convert a part of Jefferson Barracks into a national memorial park was sought today by Congressman Ray Karst (Dem.), Missouri, in a talk with the chief executive at the White House.

The proposal was brought forward about a year ago by Congressman Frank Karsten (Dem.), Missouri, but it is understood the National Park Service opposed it on the ground that the barracks was not of sufficient historical importance. Subsequently more than 100 civic organizations in the St. Louis area adopted a resolution urging establishment of the area as a national park.

Karst said he presented this resolution to Truman at the conference today. The resolution states that the barracks, established as a military outpost in 1826, has been one of the greatest historical landmarks in the nation. It is both fitting and proper, says the resolution, that the national cemetery at the barracks be "encompassed by a national park with its wooded grounds to protect said cemetery from encroachment by urban development." It expresses strong opposition to sale of any part of the area to St. Louis county.

Jefferson Barracks now houses a veterans' hospital, a national cemetery and includes facilities for the Air Force. In addition, there is substantial wooded acreage suitable for conversion into the proposed park. Proponents of this proposal are opposed to an alternative suggestion that the ground be sold to St. Louis county for use as a park, because after 20 years the county could dispose of the land as it wished. They also are cool toward a third proposal for sale of the ground to the state.

When the new veterans' hospital is constructed in St. Louis on Vandeventer place, containing 500 beds, the hospital facility at Jefferson Barracks, according to present plans, will be largely for nervous disorder cases. Efforts of the St. Louis Congressmen to persuade the Administration to rescind its order reducing the capacity of the proposed hospital from 1000 to 500 beds thus far have proved unsuccessful.

CLUES IN $30,000 ROBBERY IN HOME BEING SOUGHT

Money Stolen From Chest of Drawers While Pair Is at Funeral Home —Two Theories.

Police today were making an intensive search for clues that would lead to the arrest of the burglar who took an estimated $30,000 to $40,000 in five- and 10-dollar bills from the home of Max Beitch, 5249 Lindenwood avenue, Saturday night while Beitch and his wife were at an undertaking establishment where their son's body was awaiting burial.

An investigation Saturday night and yesterday disclosed no fingerprints on the chest of drawers where the money was kept, police said. An effort was being made today, however, to find footprints of the burglar, who forced a rear sunporch door and broke a kitchen window to get into the house.

Police were working on two theories, one, that the burglar knew the money was kept in the house and the other, that the burglar was one of several who have prowled the southwestern section of the city for the last two weeks. Additional crews in scout cars have been assigned to ride in that section, because of the increase in burglaries there, and were on duty at the time the Beitch home was robbed.

Beitch told police he kept the money in the drawer because he did not trust banks, having "lost a lot of money" in them when they closed in the depression of the 1930s. He added that he had counted the money a year ago, but had seen it in the drawer before leaving the house Saturday night. The money was his life's savings. He operates a grocery at 2760 Clark avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Beitch told police they left their home about 7:30 p.m. to go to the Berger undertaking establishment, 4715 McPherson avenue, where the body of their son, Pvt. Morrie Beitch, was lying in state. The funeral was yesterday. Pvt. Beitch was killed in action on Okinawa May 15, 1945. His body was returned to this country for burial.

VERDICT OF SELF-INFLICTED WOUND IN FATAL SHOOTING

EFFINGHAM, Ill., Feb. 28 (AP)—Rolla Rothwell, 41 years old, horse trainer of Moberly, Mo., was found shot to death Saturday in a small house on a farm near here.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of death "by self-inflicted wounds." A pistol was found near the body.

Rothwell, World War II veteran, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Fern Rothwell of Moberly, Mo., and a sister, Mrs. I. T. Monseth of Kirkwood. The body was returned to Moberly.

WARNS TEACHERS ON HEREDITARY LEADERSHIP IDEA

Harvard President Tells Conference Here Equality of Men Still Is Cardinal Principle.

A warning that educators should not join schools of thought favoring ideas of hereditary aristocracy in a nation founded on the principle of equality was given here today by James B. Conant, president of Harvard University. He spoke at the third general session of the regional conference of the American Association of School Administrators.

"With a few exceptions dealing with such obvious matters as real feeble-mindedness or certain physical characteristics, I doubt if the findings of genetics are as yet of much practical importance to those engaged in education," Conant said at the meeting in Kiel Auditorium Convention Hall.

The equality of men, he said, "for many of us still continues to be an article of faith as it was for the Americans of the first years of this republic." That principle has survived the impact of industrialism, the rival ideologies of Marx and Engels, and modern scientific progress, he added.

"You ladies and gentlemen are the leaders among those who have worked so well and faithfully to make this part of the American dream a reality," Conant said, referring to the public school as the embodiment of the principle of equality. "Perhaps it all comes down to something as simple as this: We live in a democracy whether you like it or not, and we educators like it and are bound to make it work."

Resurgence of Democracy.

An impartial historian will find that the period of 1930-1950 marks, as least in regard to education, "a great resurgence of the American concept of democracy portrayed a hundred years ago by the French aristocrat, Alexis de Tocqueville," Conant asserted. In his work, "Democracy in America," De Tocqueville spoke of the universal principle of equality as lasting and eluding all human interference, Conant pointed out, and that phrase "has been praised and damned, analyzed and ridiculed by countless writers and speakers in the last hundred years."

"I deplore the lack of appeal to literate Americans of the principle of equality in this century," he continued. "I likewise regret the overconcern of these same people with the philosophic presuppositions of Marx and Engels."

Stratification of society based on inheritence "while the stock market soared" was popular in the 1920s, he said, but "a depression, a global war, and the final realization of the revolutionary nature of the Lenin-Stalin interpretation of Marx and Engels have brought us into a United States as different from the mid-20s as from Andrew Jackson's day."

"Your problems now are global," he said. "We must lead the world or perish as a free nation."

The equality principle, now taken for granted by educators as a principle, is to be interpreted "quite properly to mean equality of opportunity, for any other type of equality in matters intellectual is impossible to achieve even by the most skillful of teachers," he said.

Miss Mabel Studebaker, president of the National Education Association, spoke on the program on the topic, "What American School Teachers Are Doing for Democracy." She is a high school science teacher in Erie, Pa. Sessions of the conference of about 7000 teachers and administrators will end Wednesday afternoon.

Support for Federal Aid.

Conant, Miss Studebaker and other leaders of the educators' group and its affiliates today reaffirmed their support of House Bill S246, providing federal school aid, as "one of the most significant advances for the nation's schools in a century."

Conant and others pointed out that the bill, which would provide $300,000,000 annually to aid elementary and secondary public schools, would amount to an additional 10 per cent of funds available to states and localities, and would be distributed through the same channels as present state support.

"No group is more concerned with maintaining local control of the schools than are the teachers," Conant remarked, "and they are the last who would want federal control."

Worth McClure, executive secretary of the administrators' organization, said failure of the bill before the Eighty-first Congress might lead to an "alphabetical control agency in a future national emergency."

John K. Norton of Columbia University, chairman of the Educational Policies Commission, said aid under the bill would immediately better the educational opportunity of 50 per cent of the nation's children.

Speech by Ellis Arnall.

Goals of the American people were listed at a session last night by former Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia, now president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, as an ending of deprivation of civil liberties, prejudice, racial and religious hatred, sectionalism, and special privileges for other minorities or majorities.

The people want "justice for all and freedom to experiment with life and to dream, and freedom from fear," Arnall told about 8000 of the delegates in the Convention Hall. "Peace cannot be predicated on fear, yet some people believe the atomic bomb can solve the world's problems."

In recent travels about the nation, Arnall said he found that "Communism has no appeal to people of this country, other than a few crackpots on one hand and a few quislings on the other." He asked for a realistic and democratic education for all, to be attained through federal aid under an equalization formula.

A preliminary report submitted yesterday by the National Teacher Supply and Demand Study Group listed requirements for considerably more than 100,000 new elementary teachers next year, in a period in which only an estimated 13,500 will be available.

BURGLARS USE ACETYLENE TORCH TO OPEN SAFE, GET $509

A safe in the office of the Thompson Biscuit Co., 2728 South Second street, was moved from the office to the warehouse and cut open with an acetylene torch over the weekend. A company spokesman said $509 was taken from it.

Police said the burglars used a ladder to get into the second floor of a building next door at 2724 South Second, occupied by the Papendick Dog Food Co. From there they forced a connecting door to the biscuit company.

James Anderson, 20 Foxboro road, Ladue, office manager, said the missing money was in an envelope in the safe. About 100 checks, written for a total of $8000, were left behind by the thieves.

"Is there still so much demand for telephone service?"

Every month in the Southwest we get some 50,000 orders for telephone service.

This demand makes a shortage. Telephone service will be plentiful when we overtake the demand. Meanwhile there is less equipment to give service with than we need.

In 1946 we expected to catch up with our backed-up orders by spending 240 million dollars on new equipment, spread over a few years. Soon we had to increase that amount—to 400 million dollars, and later to about 500 million, where it stands now, twice what it was.

Higher costs for materials and for labor are two reasons for the increase. But the main reason is that the job keeps getting bigger.

As fast as we can—and that means twice as fast as prewar—we're changing dollars into switchboards, telephone lines, buildings, man-hours—everything it takes for more telephone service. In the last three years we've made the Southwestern telephone network more useful to users by adding over 800,000 telephones.

About 180,000 persons are now waiting for telephones in the Southwest. Most of these are fairly recent applicants. Except for some places with special problems, there has been a large and steady turnover in the waiting list.

We want to get a telephone to everyone who wants one, and keep improving the service to make it worth more to you all the time. Your understanding helps a lot. Thanks.

HOFFMAN DEFENDS $940,000,000 AID QUOTA FOR BRITAIN

Tells Senate Group Figure Is Minimum, Cut Would Retard Recovery Elsewhere.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Administration advised Congress today the proposed $940,000,000 in new aid to Britain is a "tight fit"—the absolute minimum needed.

"Any reduction in it," declared Paul Hoffman, head of the Economic Co-operation Administration, "would adversely affect continued recovery in both the United Kingdom and western Europe."

He and a group of advisers from various branches of the Government appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as the aftermath of a trans-Atlantic discussion of the state of Britain's economic health.

Because of varying official British statements as to how far it has recovered from the strains of war, the committee called in Hoffman to justify Britain's share of the new $5,580,000,000 European Recovery Program.

Sole Purpose of Hearing.

That was the sole purpose of today's hearing.

Chairman Connally (Dem.), Texas, said after the hearing that he doubted there would be any "material change" in original ECA estimates for Britain. But he hinted there "might be a small cut—$25,000,000 or so."

"Until Great Britain's earnings of dollars through exports and services to the United States and other hard currency areas are sufficient to pay for the essential imports she must have, she will still need American aid," Hoffman said in his prepared testimony.

"We are convinced that the salvation of western Europe depends upon joint economic effort of all the participants and can only be achieved by mutual aid and closer economic co-operaton.

"Any setback to a country so important as Britain would be bound to have the most serious consequences."

The question of cutting the British program by at least $200,000,000 had been explored, Hoffman said.

He not only pictured the adverse effect he said it would have on the British economy but also detailed how it might cut into United States exports in cotton, foods, tobacco and industrial goods.

Hoffman expressed serious concern lest British progress be reversed and a "stultifying and generally demoralizing influence on the whole pace and vigor of British recovery" be substituted.

Reports Careful Screening.

In describing the $940,000,000 as the "absolute minimum," Hoffman said the program it would cover had been screened not only by the British and the Economic Cooperation Administration, but also by the State, Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce Departments.

It also got a going over by the National Advisory Council on international monetary and financial problems.

The Budget Bureau gave it a further painstaking review, Hoffman said.

In general terms, Hoffman testified, if a $200,000,000 cut were made, Britain would have that much less to spend for goods and services in the United States, Canada and other markets where goods can only be bought for dollars.

He estimated a cut of $200,000,000 in aid would cause a $70,000,000 decline in British export earnings and thus would require a total cut in British imports of $270,000,000.

He said it was estimated that Britain thus would have to spend $90,000,000 less on food, including tobacco; $110,000,000 less on raw materials; $40,000,000 less on manufactured goods and $30,000,000 less on shipping and other services.

Thomas K. Finletter, chief of ECA's London mission also said the $940,000,000 figure for Britain is "absolutely rock-bottom." He said there were "grave questions" in his mind whether Britain could balance its dollar exports with its import needs by 1952.

The reason the British program got such a close going over was this:

Britain's Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Christopher P. Mayhew, told the United Nations his country had just about recovered economically.

Ever since, top officials on both sides of the ocean have been pumping out statements. They are all to the effect that while the British have made something of a comeback, they still need ERP help.

file for re-election to the office "which he has held so capably for the past 32 years."

"He has brought honor to our party and to the City of St. Louis, nationally as well as locally," Alexander said. "Through his fiscal policies, the credit of St. Louis is the best in the United States.

"I am confident the people of the city will elect Mr. Nolte and Mr. Gragg the candidate Mr. Nolte has indorsed for Mayor of St. Louis, and that their election will insure the people a clean and efficient municipal government."

Bader Pleased.

Bader, who filed last Thursday with the reported support of the anti-Kaufmann faction of the Republican City Committee, expressed pleasure that Nolte had decided to run.

"This is a happy solution to the situation," Bader said. "I am sure Mr. Nolte's candidacy will effect harmony in the Republican party. I am for Nolte first, last and always."

Bader's filing for the Republican nomination for comptroller threatened to throw the "harmony movement" in the local Republican party into reverse, party leaders had said. Despite Nolte's long friendship with Bader and Bader's family, he was reported by political associates to be determined that Bader's reported backers not gain control of the comptroller's office.

About 30 Republican leaders and well-wishers attended the meeting in Nolte's office this morning, including Howard V. Stephens, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri; George W. Hartman, chairman of the Republican City Committee; Magistrate W. T. O. Hart, leader of the anti-Kaufmann faction of the city committee, and Gragg.

Party leaders had been busy over the weekend attempting to find a solution to the knotty problem presented by the impending fight over the comptrollership nomination. The names of City Register Joe Gallagher and former Supply Commissioner William R. Orthwein had been under consideration as possible harmony candidates.

The presence of Nolte's name on the Republican ticket is expected to brighten considerably the party's chances of winning the April 5 election, Republican leaders said. And the fact that he will be unopposed for the nomination and Gragg has the support of the City Central Committee for the mayoral nomination will enable the party to devote most of its attention to the April election.

Democratic Races.

As the deadline for filings and withdrawals drew near, the Democrats were faced with contests in both the races for the mayoral and comptrollership nominations.

In the Democratic mayoral contest former Director of Public Welfare Joseph M. Darst has the support of a majority of the Democratic ward organizations. His principal opponent is Nicholas M. Blassie, president of Local 88, AFL Meatcutters' Union, who is waging an active campaign and forming his own organizations in the wards.

Others in the contest are Matthew J. McFatridge, a retired policeman, and George L. Sullivan, a filling station operator. A fifth candidate, Fred M. Joseph, lawyer, filed for the nomination, but his name was stricken from the voting registration lists by the Board of Election Commissioners because he is not a resident of the city. He could not qualify for the office, if the board's order stands. Joseph has not yet announced whether he intends to seek Circuit Court review of the election board's action.

Two candidates have filed for the Democratic nomination for comptroller. They are Milton M. Carpenter, district manager for the Patent Scaffolding Co., who has the support of most of the Democratic ward organizations, and Patrick J. Walsh, former alderman and retired loan company head, who has teamed up with Blassie.

Aldermen also will be elected in the odd-numbered wards of the city at the April election.

ORDER CANCELING PHONE RATE RISE ATTACKED IN PLEA

Kansas City Motion for Rehearing Says Commission Lacked Jurisdiction to Issue It.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28 — The action of the State Public Service Commission, in ordering Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. last Wednesday to cancel the rate increases previously granted to it, amounting to $3,228,529 a year, was attacked in a new motion for rehearing filed today by the City of Kansas City.

The motion, filed with the commission by Jerome M. Joffee, special utilities counsel of Kansas City, stated that the commission lacked jurisdiction to issue its order of last Wednesday, or any order. This was on the ground that the final decree of Judge Sam C. Blair in Cole county circuit court, issued last Monday, had not reached the commission.

Court Hearing Friday.

Judge Blair announced today that a hearing would be held at 2 p.m. Friday for counsel for the company and contesting municipalities to argue the actual form of the decree to be entered by the judge in his ruling a week ago. At that time he ruled the rate increase as granted by the commission was invalid, because the commission had not allowed adequate time for the filing of motions for rehearings.

A further contention of Joffee is that the commission had no jurisdiction to order the telephone company to refund the increased sums collected since Feb. 1 under the commission's former order. The commission, Joffee states, has not and has never had legal authority to require the company to make such a refund; such jurisdiction, he argues, lies in the courts.

Joffer's motion states that the commission had no jurisdiction to make changes such as directed in its order, without notice and hearing, and that no notice was issued in advance of its order Wednesday.

Frequent Objections.

Kansas City, St. Louis and other local units affected by the rate increase have filed objections at every stage of the proceedings. They were heard in public hearing of the commission extending over a year before the commission issued an order Jan. 18, granting the higher rates, two of the five commissioners concurring in full, and a third following with concurrence Jan. 31. The new rates went into effect Feb. 1, but last Monday, Feb. 21, Judge Blair reversed the commission's order on the ground that the protestors had not had time to file objections after the third commissioner acted.

The commission two days later, Wednesday, Feb. 23, made the order which the Kansas City motion now attacks, canceling the rate increase and ordering refund of increased charges. Friday, Feb. 25, the commission made a new order granting the increases, to be effective March 10. An attack on the latter order was made in a motion filed Saturday in Cole county circuit court by County Counselor Erwin F. Vetter of St. Louis county.

BOARD CRITICIZES MILITARY POWER IN DEFENSE SETUP

without damaging or destroying our national economy.

"At present, we can be sure of none of these things."

The commission recalled that in a previous report it had pointed out the weaknesses in government which result from divided authority. Under that outline, it said, "the national military establishment as set up under the act of 1947 is perilously close to the weakest type of department."

In a brief review of the world picture against which it was reporting on that establishment, the group noted a "total disruption of the old balance of power among nations," and said pointedly:

"At present outlook, the United States' need for a strong military establishment is obvious."

What Commission Proposes.

These were the commission's recommendations:

1. Give the Secretary of Defense full power over the defense budget including authority to give it a "major overhaul"; and require the armed forces to keep "complete, accurate and current inventories."

2. Center all the reins of the defense establishment in the hands of the Secretary of Defense, stripping the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air of their appeal over his head to the White House.

3. Make the entire personnel system of all three services subject to the Secretary of Defense—everything, that is, from recruiting and prescribing uniforms to supervising military education.

4. Improve teamwork by developing better relations "at the working level" among such agencies as the joint chiefs on one hand and the Central Intelligence Agency, Research and Development Board and Munitions Board, on the other.

5. Co-ordinate the medical departments of the three services with other Government health agencies, as outlined in a report to come later.

6. Take immediate steps to prepare for civilian defense, mobilization; and unconventional methods of warfare.

The commission split on major recommendation for giving the joint chiefs of staff a single "responsible head." The majority said the defense secretary should appoint a "chairman" for the nation's top strategy planning body, and that this chairman should represent the military establishment as a whole, and report directly to the defense secretary.

But four members, including Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson, said Congress should go further and create a new post of "chief of staff for the armed forces." The post would be filled by an officer holding a higher military rank than any other officer on active duty.

"He would be called the chief of staff and not 'chairman,' 'responsible head,' 'principal adviser,' or some other temporizing title," the minority report said.

Hoover and commission members Arthur S. Flemming, George H. Mead and Representative Manasco (Dem.), Alabama, dissented on a proposal to demote the service secretaries to under secretaries on the grounds the change in titles might weaken, rather than strengthen, civilian control over the military at departmental levels.

By United Press.

In response to press inquiries, Forrestal later isued a statement agreeing with the Hoover commission on the need for strengthening the authority of his office. He said he recommended that last December.

Forrestal said the National Security Act should be amended to make it clear that the Secretary of Defense has top responsibility and authority in the national defense set-up.

He noted also that he has used civilian advisory boards "to the maximum extent possible" and intends to continue using them. He said problems of relations between the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other agencies have not been solved fully, but that "substantial" progress has been made in the last few months.

3 DIFFERING VIEWS IN HOOVER REPORT ON ARMED SERVICES

a major reason for the failure of the 1947 unification law to achieve the benefits expected from it. That act, however, was a compromise between the White House, the Army and the Air Force, which wanted unification of the services, and the Navy, which opposed unification. The law did not stop the quarreling.

Many students of the military establishment believe that if the three chiefs of staff could be forced to settle their problems or have the problems settled for them, greater teamwork and efficiency would result down through the respective services.

The Hoover and the Acheson groups were agreed that the present chiefs of staff system demanded immediate change. The majority, however, merely recommended to Congress that the Secretary of Defense, with approval of the President, be authorized to appoint a chairman to preside over the Joint Chiefs of Staff and to represent, and report to, the Secretary of Defense.

The majority did not say whether the chairman should be appointed from the present membership or, as the "task force" recommended, that he be a junior officer, who would manage the agenda of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and report disagreements to the Secretary of Defense.

Differences on Solution

The Acheson statement, which had the support of George H. Mead of Dayton, Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan, and James Rowe Jr. of Washington, said that the full commission was in complete agreement as to the problem inherent in the present Joint Chiefs of Staff system; differences lay in the way the problem should be solved. The statement quoted with approval these observations of the "task force":

". . . the individual chiefs of staff have allowed themselves to be influenced far too much by considerations of service particularism and aggrandizement and have failed sufficiently to recognize and accept their responsibilities as an integrating agency of national military policy . . . individually they have been too heavily burdened with departmental obligations to give their important duties as members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff the time and thought those duties demand."

The statement also noted approval of Secretary Forrestal's opinion in his last annual report that "the nerve center of unification lies in the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

On their own, the separate group had this to say for a superior Chief of Staff:

"If the President and the Secretary of Defense are to decide intelligently the civilian head must have staff advice responsive to him and not to one of the three services. If the Congress is to legislate wisely, to appropriate judiciously, it must be advised from an over-all strategic point of view, not on the basis of a compromise of desires of three separate services.

"A single chief of staff, with adequate staff, will, we believe, escape from the particularistic view of one service; a tradition aimed toward the over-all defense needs of the nation will begin, and today's habits of advocacy will diminish and gradually disappear.

"We believe that a single chief of staff will strengthen, not weaken, the tradition of civilian control of the military, a tradition which is held most closely by our people and one which we think needs affirmation by action."

Acheson Group's Proposal.

Here is how the Acheson group describes the proposed appointee:

"He would have staff functions only, not command functions. He would be a staff adviser to the Secretary who should make the decisions, and to the President whenever the latter so requires.

"He would preside over the Joint Chiefs of Staff, with the power to initiate and terminate discussions. He would bring to the Secretary for decision the recommendations of the Joint Chiefs, including disagreements. He would give his own recommendations to the Secretary on such agreements and disagreements. In the absence of the Secretary at meetings, he would give the Joint Chiefs the Secretary's views, if formulated.

"The Joint Chiefs would be subordinate to him. He would have such personal staff assistance as the Secretary would decide.

"He would be called the Chief of Staff and not 'chairman,' 'responsible head,' 'principal adviser,' or some other temporizing title.

"We would emphasize his importance by his rank. His post should carry the most senior active rank in the services. Like all other officers, he would of course be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. His would be the post which every professional soldier, naval officer and airman would aspire, instead of now, to be the head of a separate service."

Eisenhower's View on Rank.

Gen. Eisenhower, as reported in the Post-Dispatch, would give the appointee higher rank than the present five-star generals and admirals and would require that he retire from active service after a two-year tour of duty. The rank of "admiral-general" has been suggested.

"He would advise the civilian policy makers on the over-all strategic problems they must take into account. In turn, he will be familiar with our national policy, particularly with national economic considerations and, at the direction of the Secretary, will transmit them down through the three services so they will become more economy-minded than they are now.

"His awareness of considerations other than military, his over-all defense point of view, and his technical military skill should enable him to advise the Secretary on the military budget; he could distinguish the necessary from the merely desirable."

Other Viewpoints.

The Acheson viewpoint did not go as far as the dissenting reports former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and former Under Secretary of War John J. McCloy filed with the "task force" recommendations on which the Hoover commission's report was based.

Patterson wanted a single, merged Department of National Defense with, of course, a single chief of staff. McCloy wanted a superior chief of staff, who would sit with the National Security Council.

Patterson wrote that although the 1947 unification law was a step forward, "we might as well face up to the fact that the interservice frictions have not been reduced and that costly duplications have not been diminished."

McCloy, now the head of the World Bank, answered the Hoover fear that no military man should have so much power as a top-ranking chief of staff. This fear was exploited by naval officers during the debates on the unification law.

"I am not much influenced by the 'man on horseback' argument. It has been my experience that it is frequently put forward by those who themselves seek unfettered power. I doubt whether we need fear the man in uniform in this regard any more than the man or men in civilian clothes to whom we have given far greater authority. Indeed, as many examples as there are of authority usurped by generals and admirals, I believe history records about as many instances of usurpations on the part of civilians with at least as disastrous results. Witness Hitler and Mussolini."

Comment On Joint Chiefs.

The report of the full Hoover Commission appears to bear out the views expressed by McCloy and the Acheson group but it does not follow through with specific recommendations. In its introduction titled "What's Wrong with the Present Organization," the report says this about the Joint Chiefs of Staff:

"Three of the four members are spokesmen for separate service arms. (This indicates that the commissioners consider Fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, Truman's Chief of Staff who has announced he is about to retire, as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.) The Secretary of Defense, and his viewpoint for the unified establishment as a whole, is not represented in their deliberations. Thus, though the Secretary of Defense is, under the act, the principal assistant to the President, he cannot, as a practical matter, maintain effective civilian control over this most powerful of military units.

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff, as a unit, report to two officials — the Secretary of Defense and the President. As individuals, they report to the President, the Secretary of Defense and the service secretaries. Each will tend to answer more to the service secretary who is his direct superior than to the single policies of a unified establishment.

"Here, too, it is clear that divided responsibility and allegiances are tantamount to an almost complete absence of control. Under this system, the Joint Chiefs of Staff are virtually a law unto themselves, as evidenced in the fact that their activities are not well co-ordinated with intra-military establishment operations, nor with the policy work of the Cabinet councils. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, like the rest of the national military establishment, are not firmly under civilian control."

Staff members of the Hoover commission could give no explanation of the vague language of the later recommendations.

3 PRIESTS JAILED IN POLAND

WARSAW, Feb. 28 (AP) — Two Catholic priests, the Revs. Kazimierz Fertak and Wiktor Lubinski, were sentenced to 15 and four years imprisonment, respectively, today by a military tribunal. They were charged with urging underground band members to kill Communists and other supporters of the Warsaw Government.

A third priest, the Rev. Arnold Goetze, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment by a district court at Gdynit for "hateful preaching."

Wife Phones About Leak in Refrigerator Filling House With Fumes.

Fireman Salvatore Manaici of Hook and Ladder Co. No. 17 was unusually anxious to respond to a telephoned alarm yesterday. The alarm came from his own house, 5542 Palm street.

His wife had discovered that fluid in their refrigerator was leaking, and fumes were filling the house. She telephoned to her husband who was on duty at the company's station at Ridge avenue and Shawmut place.

$38 ROBBERY ON STREETCAR

George T. Johnston, operator of a Jefferson avenue streetcar, was held up by an armed Negro and robbed of $38.70 at the loop in the 3600 block of Natural Bridge avenue last night.

Johnston told police that after passengers alighted from the car the Negro appeared at the front door, pointed a pistol at him and said, "Give it to me." He handed over $16 in currency, his money changer containing $16.70 and four weekly passes. The robber ran to Palm street and disappeared.

FBI MEN LOOKING INTO SOME STATE MEDICAL GROUPS

Inquiry Into Whether Fight on Pre-Paid Medical Plans Violates Anti-Trust Laws.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP)—The Government plans to crack down on several state medical associations. The action may come soon after President Truman sends his national health insurance program to Congress.

A high Government official said the Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking into doctors' activities in several states to see if their fight against pre-paid medical plans violates anti-trust laws.

Doctors and medical associations in Seattle, Chicago, New York City and California have reported visits from the FBI in recent weeks.

The President's bill, no matter what it calls for, will be one of the most hotly-disputed issues before Congress. The American Medical Association is fighting the President's plan in advance with a $3,000,000 fund raised by assessments of A.M.A. members.

The Government already has filed an anti-trust suit against the Oregon State Medical Society. It accused the society of (1) expelling doctors who were affiliated with non-society medical service plans; (2) coercing hospitals into refusing facilities to doctors participating in non-society plans; (3) refusing medical service to members of non-society plans; (4) encouraging specialists to refuse consultation with independent plan doctors; and (5) spreading false propaganda about non-society medical plans.

REDS IN PEIPING BAR FOREIGN REPORTERS FROM SENDING NEWS

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28 (AP) — The Chinese Communists have reversed their past policy and ordered all foreign correspondents in Peiping to cease gathering and sending out news.

During their lean years in Yenan, former Communist headquarters in North China, the Reds welcomed foreign correspondents. By all accounts, no restrictions were placed on the correspondents then.

At Nanking a spokesman said the unofficial peace delegation to Peiping was satisfied as to the Communists' sincerity.

Chang Feng-chou, secretary to delegate Shao Li-tze, made the statement at a press conference. The delegation returned to Nanking with a letter from Communist leader Mao Tse-tung to acting President Li Tsung-jen.

Li's hand in efforts to deal with the Communists was strengthened by the return to the capital of Premier Sun Fo from Canton.

Chang declined to discuss whether the mission returned from the Communist area with concrete plans for peace. He said its sole purpose was to learn whether the Communists were sincerely in favor of ending the war.

Hot Water Fire.

OKLAHOMA CITY — George Rummel, a fireman, lit the hot-water heaters of the Church of Christ yesterday so that there would be warm water for baptismal services. Thirty minutes later the church was ablaze, causing $6000 damage.

Firemen said overheated water tanks cause the fire.

Christmas Relief.

OMAHA, Nebr.—Christmas was two months late for families living southeast of Shields, N. D. With roads blocked by snow, mail deliveries were cut off to the area shortly before Dec. 25.

Last Friday bulldozers broke through and Christmas presents were delivered, blizzard relief headquarters here said yesterday.

Four-Bit Verdict.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa.—Guy B. Cormany filed suit for $12,000 damages, charging false arrest. He won his case. The award: 50 cents.

Cormany complained that his arrest on disorderly conduct charges was due to his protest against a parking violation. The jurors deliberated two hours before returning their 50-cent verdict. They didn't explain why they fixed that sum.

Jap Holdout Killed on Guam.

GUAM, Feb. 28 (AP) — Guam police reported today one of two Japanese stragglers, holdouts since Japan's surrender, was shot and killed by Guamanian villagers in the island's Laguna district. The other Japanese escaped.

SUPREME COURT REVERSES NAVY'S COURT - MARTIAL

Rules Conviction of Petty Officer for Cruelty Was Invalidated by One-Day Break in Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP)—The Supreme Court today unanimously reversed the court-martial conviction of Harold E. Hirshberg, Navy chief petty officer, found guilty of brutality to fellow prisoners of war held by the Japanese.

The court ruled that Hirshberg's court-martial was illegal because it took place after he had been honorably discharged from the Navy and had re-enlisted. He had received a 10-month sentence.

The decision probably means that Hirshberg will go free because it is unlikely that civil court proceedings can be brought against him.

Hirshberg was taken prisoner at Corregidor and held by the Japanese until liberated by American troops in September 1945.

On March 26, 1946, his enlistment expired. He was given an honorable discharge. The next day he re-enlisted for another four years. In February 1947, he was charged with the offenses said to have been committed while he was a prisoner in the Philippines in 1943.

The court today agreed with Hirshberg's claim that he was not subject to Navy trial because of the one-day break in his service.

The court-martial had found him guilty of mistreating two Navy enlisted men in his charge in a Japanese prisoner work section. Beside the prison sentence, Hirshberg was demoted to apprentice seaman and ordered discharged dishonorably.

After the conviction, Hirshberg brought proceedings in the United States civil courts to have his trial declared illegal. The United States District Court for Eastern New York upheld him. However, the Navy appealed to the Second United States Circuit Court of Appeals which upheld the conviction. The Circuit Court said the prosecution was proper in view of Hirshberg's re-enlistment. Hirshberg then appealed to the Supreme Court.

At the court-martial, Hirshberg admitted he slapped some of the men under his command, but said it was done only to ward off more brutal treatment by the Japanese. He said he maintained strict discipline as a measure to win favor for his men from their captors.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF OPERATING BABY ADOPTION AGENCY

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (UP)—A woman sales executive was charged by police today with converting her luxurious Fifth avenue apartment into a "baby farm" from which she illegally sent infants for adoption to all parts of the country.

Police charged that Mrs. Alice R. P. Satterthwaite, 56 years old, of New York, placed out hundreds of babies after cultivating the acquaintance of unwed mothers and establishing contacts with doctors who referred to her women who did not want their babies.

According to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, Mrs. Satterthwaite, a divorcee, sometimes received orders for babies by mail and flew the infants to their foster parents.

She was charged with violating the social welfare law, which prohibits any but authorized agencies from boarding out children for adoption.

"She made placements in every part of the United States, but mostly in the New York area," Hogan said.

CITY WATER PUMPING STATION GETS CLEAN BILL ON FLYASH

The amount of flyash emitted from the stacks at the city's Water Division pumping station at Chain of Rocks is "well under" the limit established by an amendment to the anti-smoke ordinance, Smoke Commissioner James H. Carter announced today.

The amendment provides that .85 of a pound of flyash per 1000 pounds of gas may legally be emitted, Carter said. At the pumping station, a test made on Jan. 5 and Jan. 12, showed that only .0603 of a pound of flyash was emitted per 1000 pounds of gas emitted.

The tests were made in accordance with the city's announcement that it would examine its own stacks before making examinations of those of manufacturing plants and other businesses. Carter said the amount of flyash thrown out by the furnaces at the pumping station is about "normal" for a chain-grate feed operation with natural draft in the stacks.

CHANDLER TREASON CONVICTION UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP)—The Supreme Court today upheld the treason conviction of Douglas Chandler, Chicago-born propaganda broadcaster for the Nazis during the war.

The court refused to hear an appeal from Chandler, who is in Federal prison at Danbury, Conn. It was the first of the Government's postwar treason cases to reach the Supreme Court.

Chandler was found guilty in Boston last year of giving aid and comfort to the enemy through propaganda broadcasts over the Nazi radio. He was sentenced to life imprisonment and was fined $10,000.

Oil Leak, Causing Smoke, Forces Airliner Down; 54 on It.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28 (UP)—A DC-6 airliner, with 50 passengers and a crew of four aboard, made an emergency landing at International Airport here today after smoke billowed through the plane and forced it to turn back from New York. An oil leak in the ventilating system was said to have caused the plane to turn back. A spokesman for the American Air Lines said there was no evidence of fire on the plane.

ATTEMPT APPARENTLY MADE TO DERAIL L. & N. PASSENGER

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 28 (AP)—An apparent attempt to derail the Louisville & Nashville Railroad's passenger train, the Azalean, was reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation by police.

Police said today they were notified that an eight-foot railroad tie had been fastened on the track and wedged with an iron bar on the outskirts of the city. The discovery was made shortly before the Cincinnati-bound train was to leave yesterday morning. Railroad officials were notified and the tie was removed.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR

Britain has long been the world's greatest customer, and has led the way in the export of manufactured products. By initiative in modern research, and from experience of commerce with other nations, her industrial production has become greater and more varied than ever in history.

Renowned for the quality of her work, Britain has applied new technique to her famous industries. By enterprise in fresh markets she has achieved record deliveries, and export production still expands. To keep in touch with these developments great numbers of the world's principal buyers are making visits to Britain.

Every year, from over 100 countries, trade buyers gather at the British Industries Fair. The Chamber of Commerce in Birmingham, and manufacturers from every part of Britain, join with the British Government to welcome them.

At BIF 1949, from 2–13 May, three thousand exhibitors will display the latest developments in thirty groups of allied trades. The leading men of international commerce are invited to attend the world's greatest assembly of national products.

Dynaflow's on the Super Line

This one you've just got to see!

Got to see the room in its big and even more spacious interiors.

Got to see the brand-new outlook you get from wide, curved windshields, narrower corner posts, stepped-up glass area.

Got to see the comfort that's all through it, in everything from new Deep-Cradle seat cushions to oversize tires on extra-wide rims and the magic levelness of soft coil springs all round.

Most of all – it's a must to see how sweet the Buick SUPER is with Dynaflow Drive!

Feel the lift in its Fireball power plant, stepped up to a brilliant 120 hp. Sample the new quiet of engines with self-setting valve lifters that keep tappets from tapping throughout its lifetime.

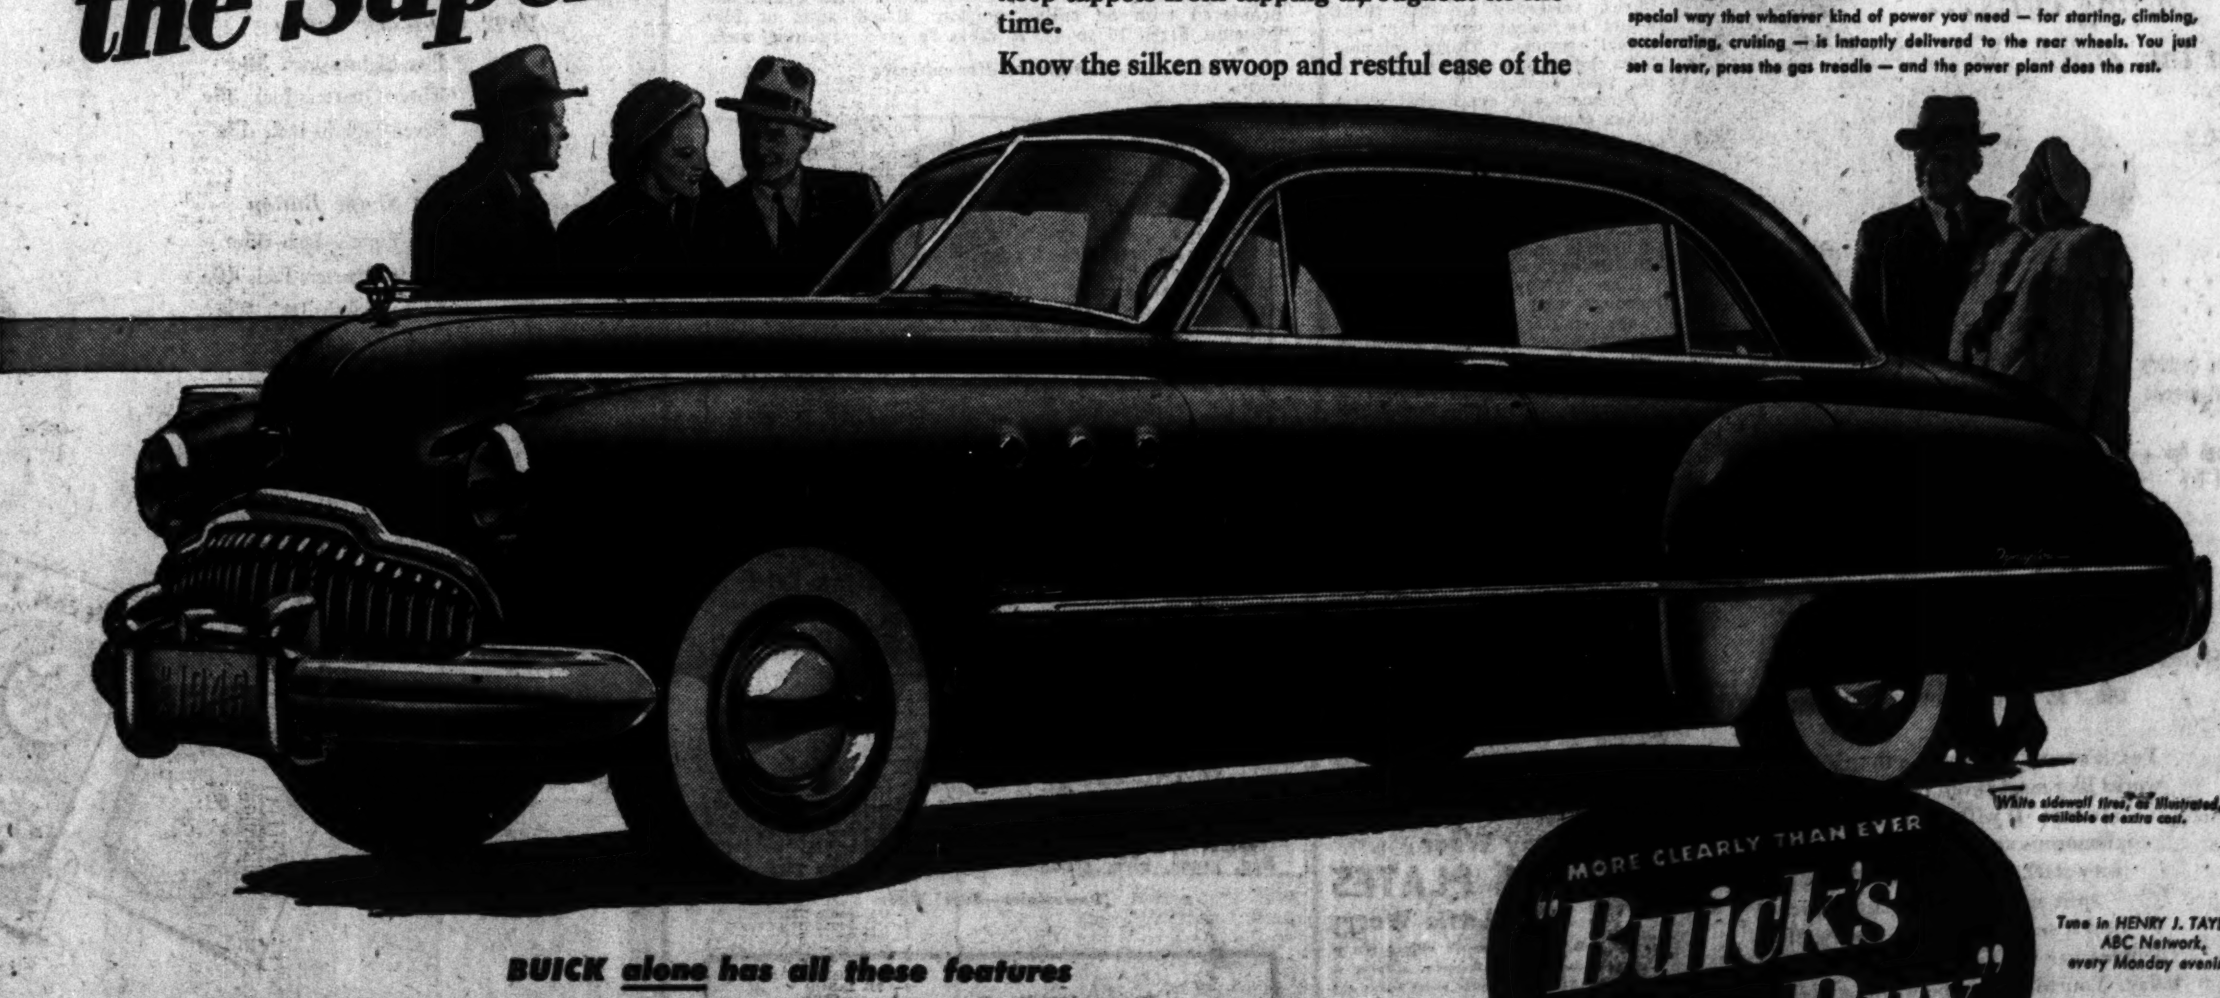
Know the silken swoop and restful ease of the only transmission of its kind in the country – Dynaflow Drive, in which oil does it all and no gears ever shift!

You can have Dynaflow Drive as optional equipment on any of the brilliant 1949 SUPERS – 4-door Sedan, Sedanet, Convertible and Estate Wagon.

Just specify it when you place your order – and since plenty of others will be doing just that, better see your dealer now and get your order in, with or without a car to trade.

Oil does it all in DYNAFLOW DRIVE

There's no clutch pedal in Dynaflow Drive. And no gears that shift. Instead, the engine makes oil whirl in this drum. And it whirls in such a unique and special way that whatever kind of power you need — for starting, climbing, accelerating, cruising — is instantly delivered to the rear wheels. You just set a lever, press the gas treadle — and the power plant does the rest.



White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

BUICK alone has all these features

Silk-smooth DYNAFLOW DRIVE* • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access • "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions • Buoyant-riding QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS • Cruiser-Line VENTIPORTS • Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER • Plus Sound-Sorber Top Lining (closed models), Road-Rite Balance, Dualmatic Spark Advance, Contoured Bumpers, StepOn Parking Brake, Permi-Firm Steering, Hideaway Hood Latches, Shielded Ignition.

MURDER OF POLK IN GREECE SOLVED, MINISTER CLAIMS

Killer of C.B.S. Reporter and Organization Behind Him Known, Security Chief Announces.

ATHENS, Feb. 28 (UP)—Greek Security Minister Constantin Rentis said today the murder of George Polk, American radio correspondent, has been solved.

Polk, correspondent for Columbia Broadcasting System, was shot in the head and his trussed body dumped in Salonika harbor last May. He apparently had been seeking an interview with Gen. Markos Vafiades, then leader of the Communist rebel movement.

"It is completely cleared up in a way which leaves no doubt about who committed the crime and the entire organization behind it," Rentis said after a conference with police at Piraeus.

He said the investigation in Piraeus had been followed by a further investigation in Salonika, and the Government now plans to release a special report containing all new details of the case. Rentis said his statement concluded a 40-day investigation in Piraeus.

Developments in the investigation included arrest of Mrs. Adam Mouzenides, whose husband, a fugitive, has been accused by the Greek Government as the triggerman in the killing.

Rentis said statements of Mrs. Mouzenides and others "entirely supported" those of Gregory Staktopoulos, a Salonika newspaperman, and his mother. Staktopoulos was jailed last August when he allegedly admitted that he served as the "finger man" in the murder of Polk, leading the American correspondent to his death.

The Government has charged that the actual killing was done by Mouzenides and another Communist.

Communist sources have asserted that both these men were killed in fighting against Government forces sometime before Polk was murdered.

Two other pro-Communist newspapermen and a draftsman in an anti-aircraft plant are held for military courts charged with endangering national security by possession of defense secrets. The offense is punishable by one to five years in prison. All were arrested last week in raids on several newspaper offices.

War Minister Paul Ramadier also is reported to have filed charges against the entire 84-man central committee of the Communist party in France.

The Government suppressed the two chief Communist newspapers—L'Humanite and Ce Soir — six days before the outbreak of World War II. The papers had defended the Soviet-German non-aggression pact.

A month later, the Government outlawed the Communist party, ended the immunity of Communist deputies by adjourning Parliament, and arrested most of them. Thorez was deprived of his French nationality after he deserted the French Army and went to Russia. Bonte was arrested when he appeared in Parliament after the party was outlawed.

Basis of Complaints.

Complaints against the Communists now are based on charges of incitement to sabotage in last fall's bitter coal strike; appeals to soldiers not to fire on the strikers, and statements in Communist speeches and articles that "France will never fight the Soviet Union," and that Frenchmen should welcome the Red Army if it occupied France.

An examining magistrate is studying the statements to see what laws, if any, have been violated. It is his job to ask for lifting of deputies' immunity if laws have been broken.

A statement by Gen. Charles de Gaulle's People's party charged the Communists with "preparing a Soviet invasion and occupation," and the Government with "replying only by orders of the day or laughable police measures."

However, Gaston Palewski, De Gaulle's chief adviser on foreign affairs and a bitter anti-Communist, said in a speech at Limoges: "I am certain that if, by some misfortune, France were invaded by the U.S.S.R., the French Communists would again join us in the 'Maquis' of the new resistance."

Leader Says British Reds Will Favor Russia in War.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (UP)—Harry Pollitt, British Communist leader, said today that British Communists will side with Russia "in event of an imperialist aggressive war against the U.S.S.R." His statement, published in the Communist newspaper, Daily Worker, followed similar declarations by French Communist leader Maurice Thorez and Italian Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti.

Pollitt said that British Communists in event of war will implement their stand in favor of Russia with "strikes and councils of action."

In Rome, press reports quoted the pro-Communist Socialist leader, Pietro Nenni, as telling leftist crowds in Venice yesterday to refuse to fight under the colors of Italy's present government in case of a conflict between the United States and Russia. Nenni was said to have invited Italians to form a bloc with Socialists and Communists to become an "advance guard of the liberating armies."

Hoover Commission Would Merge Foreign Service Elite Corps With Group Having Lower Standards

Post-Dispatch Writer Says State Department Officials Wonder if Proposed Amalgamation Will Result in Higher or Lower Level of Requirements.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

OUTSIDE the national military establishment, the only remnant of the caste system surviving in the federal government is a group of 1315 men and women who, as officers of the Foreign Service of the United States, carry the heat and burden of American diplomacy. Sixteen of them are women and five are Negroes. In the name of democracy as well as efficiency, the very conception of this small, elite corps is menaced with destruction by the Hoover Commission's proposal to merge the Foreign Service with the State Department's 6000 classified employes.

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson is vice chairman of the committee and presumably indorses the amalgamation, as he entered no demurrer.

Such a reservation was expressed by a member of the commission, Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal, who wrote: "While concurring generally in this recommendation because of the administrative advantages of consolidating the two services, I think it is of crucial importance that this process should not be permitted to operate so as to destroy the morale and spirit of either group."

It is generally agreed that the merger can be put into effect only by Congress, and that in particular a thorough reworking of the Foreign Service act of 1946 will be required. The commission's report admitted that, owing to difficulties involved, the process would have to be gradual, over a course of years. A period still longer may be needed to erase the lines of distinction which are sharply cut between the Brahmans of the State Department and its humbler orders.

The officers of the Foreign Service are assuredly the choicest group in all federal employment. Man for man, they are probably also the most accomplished. Examinations for entrance into the corps are purposely made so formidable that 90 per cent of the applicants are bound to fail. A college degree is rarely enough.

It is supplemented in most instances by postgraduate courses in private schools on foreign affairs, or else in the department's own Foreign Service Institute. Fluency in at least one alien language is obligatory. Successful candidates must in addition pass the Navy's severe physical tests.

Salaries Are Generous.

This means that applicants in general spring not only from intelligent stock but from unusually prosperous homes. Salaries, allowances and retirement benefits are generous in comparison with those of classified employes. However, unless one becomes an Ambassador in an expensive capital, the highest wage attainable by a Foreign Service officer is $13,500 a year, subject to federal and state income taxes and to pension deductions. Therefore, if a Foreign Service officer hopes to rise, it is well-nigh essential that he should have personal means or contrive to marry wealth.

The opportunities for advancement are such as to tempt the least ambitious. The United States has 64 chiefs of mission, or Ambassadors and ministers. Of these 34 at present are Foreign Service officers. The most outstanding are Jefferson Caffery, Ambassador to France, and James Clement Dunn, Ambassador to Italy. Foreign Service Ambassadors or ministers have supplanted traditional political appointees in such countries as Switzerland, Sweden, Finland, Turkey, Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, as well as most of the American republics. Career diplomats pinpoint the map from Ottawa to Montevideo, from Addis Ababa to Pretoria and from Damascus to Tehran, Karachi and New Delhi.

As commander in chief, Secretary of State Acheson has a general staff of nine officials. Five were drafted from the outside world. Three are Foreign Service members holding the highest grade, that of career minister, a rank which requires confirmation by the Senate. These three are Charles E. Bohlen, counselor of the department; George F. Kennan, director of the policy planning staff, and George V. Allen, Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs.

He is John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary for Administration, who began his career not at Groton, but as an elevator boy at the Capitol. Should he become Deputy Under Secretary for Administration, when and if the department is reorganized, he will be the first of his class to drive a path into the topmost echelon.

The chiefs of the four geographical desks, who may be compared to corps commanders, belong by tradition to the Foreign Service. Present incumbents are Paul C. Daniels, American Republic Affairs; John D. Hickerson, European Affairs; W. Walton Butterworth, Far Eastern Affairs, and Joseph C. Satterthwaite, Near Eastern and African Affairs. In foreign embassies and legations are to be found the department's divisional, regimental and company commanders, all or nearly all being Foreign Service officers, ranging from third secretary to Ambassador.

Abroad also is the bulk of the service's non-coms and private soldiers. The first are American staff employes, such as accountants, code and file clerks, typists, couriers and translators. The second are alien employes, running from interpreters to charwomen and porters.

The entire personnel of the Foreign Service—officers, staff employes and aliens — number at present 11,364. The total includes 110 Foreign Service reserve officers, who are commonly specialists chosen from other government agencies or from private life. They act frequently as attaches in such fields as economics, farming and culture.

Military terms come naturally in speaking of the officers' corps of the Foreign Service. Its organization is modeled after that of the Army. It is a career service in that members must start without exception in the seventh or lowest class and progress one by one through all the others.

It is a slow and tedious course. Few members have enjoyed such advantages as those of Counselor Bohlen. The record shows that it took him 18 years to mount from vice consul to his current policy-making desk.

Under Rigid Discipline.

As in the military, Foreign Service officers are under rigid discipline. They are bound to secrecy, and are forbidden to take part in gainful occupations outside the service. They are not permitted to refuse a mission; however dangerous or unhealthy. Their hours of work, in critical times, are limited by no regulations. In return for such losses of freedom, the members acquire a proud esprit de corps and a sense of dedication.

Prior to 1924, when the Foreign Service was reorganized on the merit system, it had functioned largely as a private club for the idle and often ne'er-do-well sons of rich fathers. The days of drawing rooms, teas and striped pants have long been over, but distrust still lingers. According to the Hoover report, another generation will be needed to wipe it out.

The classified service is overwhelmingly a home or departmental outfit, with rare openings for missions outside the country. In contrast to the career system, it operates under the principle of private industry that the job should seek the man. For example, when the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs needed a special assistant, he was free to go outside and choose a noted foreign correspondent, Fred C. Oechsner. For director of the Office of International Information, it was possible to draft still another correspondent, Lloyd A. Lehrbas.

All members are under the regular Civil Service, which has facilities to hold examinations for specific jobs. They are free, with impunity, to accept or refuse a change of post, and to quit the service without prejudice.

Men and women with high school diplomas are eligible if they have passed so many years in Government service. Mastery of a foreign language is not essential.

New Title Suggested.

The title of Foreign Affairs Service is suggested by the Hoover Commission for the proposed merger of the two State Department branches. The recommendation is made that the new body should constitute "a safeguarded career group administered separately from the general Civil Service." It would therefore operate under the career and not the classified system. Foreign as well as home service would be compulsory for all members. The topmost and lowest levels of the Foreign Service would be excluded. Chiefly affected would be the Foreign Service officers and staff corps, comprising currently 5281 men and women.

The question exercising the department is whether the amalgamation would level standards up or down. Will the severe requirements for admission to foreign service be relaxed, or would newcomers from the classified branch be obliged to learn or brush up a foreign language and acquire the equivalent of a college degree?

Officials studying the consolidation plan are not comforted by the Hoover report's reminder that the United States is the only great power that has not abandoned a division of personnel in foreign affairs. They point out that the American classified system is unknown in other countries, and that Anthony Eden, when Foreign Minister, was able to merge the British Foreign Office and Foreign Service with no more trouble than a stroke of the pen. Both were already career establishments.

From the report emerges the curious fact that the Foreign Service is not a field agent for the State Department alone, but for the government in general. Its official title is the Foreign Service of the United States. Over this body the Secretary of State has adequate policy controls, but in administration it is semi-independent. One purpose of the amalgamation is to remove this anomaly.

Communists Jeer at Churchill Making Plea for United Europe

150 Hecklers Arrested at Brussels Mass Meeting — Delegates Elect Jouhaux as Council Head.

By ALFRED CHEVAL
BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 28 (AP).

WINSTON CHURCHILL made a fiery plea for European unity yesterday in a Communist-heckled speech to a mass meeting of 10,000. He said a unified Europe was "the sole means of preventing another hideous war."

Churchill is a delegate to the Council of the European Movement, an unofficial organization aiming toward a United States of Europe, which is now meeting here.

The wartime British Prime Minister and leader of Britain's Conservative party ignored Communist hecklers, but not so Belgium's Premier Paul-Henri Spaak who followed him to the rostrum.

Addressing the Communists in the crowd directly, Spaak said, "At one moment in 1939 you stood idle because you said this was a capitalist war and we should remain neutral. . . . It was you who applauded those who signed a pact with Nazi Germany, and you who applauded those who invaded a prostrate Poland."

Socialist Chosen President.

Immediately after the mass meeting the 130 delegates to the convention chose French Labor Leader Leon Jouhaux as president of the movement. The election of the prominent Socialist was regarded as an effort to gain the confidence of Britain's Labor Government, which has held aloof from the movement largely because of the influence of Churchill. Election of a Socialist was considered an effort to minimize Churchill's role.

The council also voted to recommend that a "supreme court" of Europe be set up to enforce the United Nations' declaration on human rights. The nine-member court would transcend national boundaries and have jurisdiction over violations of freedom of religion, opinion, association and freedom from arbitrary arrest or any form of compulsory labor.

The council today adopted a declaration of principles which set forth the movement's aim as "the union in freedom of all peoples of Europe." The declaration said, "No state should be admitted into the European union which does not accept the fundamental principles contained in the (U.N.) Charter of Human Rights."

The council unanimously adopted a resolution condemning all judicial systems which "break the human spirit." This was an obvious reference to the trial of Cardinal Josef Mindszenty in Hungary and that of 15 Protestant churchmen in Bulgaria.

The council agreed that west Germany should be invited to become an integral part of the union, and that "when possible the whole of Germany" should be invited to take part."

Churchill began his speech at yesterday's mass meeting in English. He soon shifted to French, however, and that won him a great cheer from the crowd in the Place de la Bourse.

"Why cannot the prominent and the small people of Europe, the mass of workers, live in peace?" he asked, then said: "It is because they have not yet found the international and European organizations which will let them live in peace without being tyrannized, without being attacked by other nations or ideologies."

A unified Europe, he declared, "is the only way a broad shield of light, power and virtue can be placed over the scores of millions of humble homes where little children have a right to a peaceful future."

He told the Belgians they have "no need to fear" steps toward unity. Such steps, Churchill said, are the best way to protect humanity's right to freedom.

"We have only to continue to march along this road and Europe will again be the hope and the chieftain of the liberal forces of the world," he added.

Declaring a union of European nations could count on American support, Churchill said:

"On the other side of the Atlantic, the great republic of the United States guarantees its aid if we are attacked. There we have hope and a practical plan. If you have foresight and wisdom you will work every day toward the ideal of a united Europe."

Churchill warned his audience against dangers from the east, saying: "Europe is now shattered, in ruins, and half of it is in prison. The other half is not afraid, but

Atom Scientists Urge Control Plan Concession

Federation Asks U.N. to Consider Destroying Bombs as Simultaneous Step.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP).

THE Federation of American Scientists today urged the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission to give full condiseration to a Russian suggestion that an international atomic control plan might be set up simultaneous with destruction of present atomic weapons.

"Perhaps this is not a major step toward agreement, but it is an essential step," the federation said. "The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission should give this proposal full consideration."

The statement said that one point of deadlock on atomic control negotiations has been the Russian insistence that atomic weapons must be outlawed and destroyed before an international control plan is created.

Last fall, Russia modified this approach and suggested the simultaneous destruction of weapons and creation of the control program.

The federation's statement was issued by Dr. Arthur Roberts, physicist at Iowa State University and chairman of the federation's administrative committee.

The federation proposed a four-point program to the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission. It suggested that the commission's discussions proceed along these lines:

1. Work out details of the organization of an international control authority, including the operation's financial and administrative details.

2. Setting up of quotas for such atomic facilities as nuclear reactors, processing plants and radioactive isotope production to be allocated to each participating country. It said Russia has indicated willingness to discuss this.

3. Stages leading to full international control, developing a system which would give no special advantage to any nation.

4. Sanctions which would be used by the international authority against violators of the rules.

"A complete plan for the control of atomic energy will of necessity require a certain amount of national sovereignty to be relinquished in the interests of survival," the federation said. It added:

"Even if the immediate chances of gaining a semblance of agreement are small, elaboration of the plans should proceed."

STOCK MARKET SAYING '48 PROFITS CAN'T LAST?

By J. A. Livingston

THE stock market has been saying—in the only way it knows how to speak—that maybe the long-awaited economic readjustment is here. Stocks have been going down—not panic-like, mind you, but gradually and persistently. Railroad shares are off about 15 per cent from the 1949 high, industrials about 6 per cent.

The stock market seems to be feeling business out—asking the question: How far will this recession go? Department store sales are running below last year; unemployment insurance claims continue to increase; farm prices have broken badly. And virtually all major lines of industry have caught up to demand. In 1950, even automobiles may be in a buyers' market.

Dominant Trait: Inertia.

In prewar years, such an economic conjuncture would have sent the stock market into a collapse. A pertinent instance: 1937-38. And in the fall of 1946, when speculators anticipated a change in the business tempo—a postwar adjustment as in 1920-21—the market dropped more than 40 points in eight weeks.

The dominant characteristic of this market—ever since the 1946 break—has been inertia. Industrial shares have moved in a 30-point rut for 30 months—undoubtedly a record for stability. From low to high, the price change has been less than 20 per cent. In railroad shares, the movement has been wider—23 points, and about 60 per cent from low to high. And today, as the result of the recent declines, the Dow-Jones averages are near the bottom of the 30-month range:

	High	Low	Recent
Industrials	193.16	163.12	171
Rails	64.95	41.16	46

Even G.M. Is Suspect.

The market — speculators and investors—regard 1948 earnings as a snare, a delusion, and temporary. For instance, Real Silk Hosiery sells for only twice what the company earned per share in 1948; ditto for Continental Baking, Jones & Laughlin Steel, and American Woolen. That means that if a person bought the stock today, and earnings continued at last year's level for only two years, the company would have earned his money back. He wouldn't get all the money in dividends. But what he didn't get would be in the enterprise, working for him. Inference: The market is saying these profits can't last. Even the earnings of General Motors a suspect, as the accompanying table shows.

Inventory Quandary.

From the business standpoint, the basic question is: How big are inventories? Back in 1939, manufacturers carried twice as much goods as they sold each month. Today they've cut the proportion down to 1.8-to-1. That would imply that manufacturers are not overstocked. However, if sales were to turn down sharply, what looked like a reasonable stock one month would seem topheavy the next month.

Moreover, manufacturers have been producing faster than they've been shipping. Finished goods are now one-third of their inventories, as against only a quarter two years ago. That has its good side. It means wholesalers and retailers don't have to stock so much. They can rely on quick delivery. But it also carries the suggestion that any decline in orders will result in immediate curtailment in production and layoffs of workers—as has been happening.

This may be a healthful trend—getting inventories to comfortable levels, so that manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers all have elbow room in dealing with their customers and with one another. Or it may represent piling up, implying further layoffs. Which—remains to be seen.

SAVINGS UP BILLION DOLLARS IN '48; POSTWAR BOND RECORD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Savings accounts in banks increased one billion dollars in 1948, Maple T. Harl, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, said yesterday. Government savings bond sales set a postwar record.

IRAN DECREES MARTIAL LAW IN ALL GARRISONED AREAS

TEHRAN, Feb. 28 (AP)—Official sources said last night martial law has been declared and curfew imposed in all localities of Iran where army garrisons are stationed. (The dispatch gave no reason for the decrees.)

Settled Policy Toward Reich Being Studied

By STEWART ALSOP
(Copyright, 1949.)
WASHINGTON

REPORTS FROM BERLIN appearing in this space have posed the question, "What sort of Germany?" What are the real objectives of American policy in Germany? This is as important a question as any that confronts the United States. And it is highly significant that at long last the United States Government is now making a serious effort to find an agreed and intelligent answer.

An attempt is now being made to draft a whole series of agreed policy papers dealing with all aspects of American policy in Germany. The preliminary drafting is being done by a four-man committee, which is now quietly meeting two or three times a week in the State Department.

Members of Committee.

Chairman of this committee is George Kennan, brilliant chief State Department planner. Richard M. Bissell, able deputy Economic Co-operation Administration administrator, speaks for the ECA, which has a vital interest in the German problem. Robert Blum, special assistant to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, represents Forrestal and the Defense Department. The Army and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, are represented by Assistant Secretary of War Tracy Voorhees, who may succeed William Draper as Under Secretary of War and chief Washington spokesman for Clay.

These four men will not, of course, make German policy independently. The policy papers they draft will be referred back to the organizations and individuals they represent, including Clay. Moreover, each preliminary paper will be sifted through another, higher committee. This committee consists of Secretary of State Dean Acheson as chairman, ECA Chief Paul Hoffman, and Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall. If Acheson's committee approves a paper, it will be referred in turn to the National Security Council and the President for final decision.

What this means is simply that

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Will St. Louis Stand for It?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As a citizen of St. Louis, I wish to commend your stand against gambling interests which are obviously seeking to operate here.

It is apparent that there is something rotten in Denmark with the whole matter of the new St. Louis Police Board. After reading of the reasons behind Dan Reardon's resignation as president of the board, I am amazed that the St. Louis citizenry stand for the gangsterism tactics of Edward J. (Jellyroll) Hogan in his attempts to dictate policies to the new police board.

I was not too keen about Mr. Reardon's appointment as president of the board, but if the reports are true that he refused to be intimidated on demotions in the police department, I commend him, too, in his brave stand.

To date, Gov. Smith's explanations and denials of his affiliations with gambling interests have been all too weak. I heard him say in a recent speech, "I am a servant of the people." I say to him, let him prove it. Let him give us a police board in St. Louis that will publicly say for the record, "We defy any gambling interest to open in St. Louis."

St. Louis should not sit idly by and allow the same sort of cancerous growth in our city which has fallen to municipalities of Illinois. Gov. Smith should remember that we are voters, that we have wives and families who must live in this city, and we want to walk unafraid on its streets. We don't want St. Louis infested with rats making their living by gambling and carrying automatics for collection purposes.

The Post-Dispatch is doing a good job. Keep it up! Give us the facts! Keep this subject alive and we'll make it hot for any faction.

History by Fitzpatrick

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thanks to your wonderful cartoons in the editorial section I passed history. In our class we had to bring in and explain the meaning of the cartoons. Your cartoons were so simple and easy to understand that I passed history with no trouble at all.

10 S. O. B.s

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What did Harry from Missouri mean by his S. O. B.? Here are 10 of a possible million answers, and fortunately, each of us choose his own answer:

Salty Old Bill, Smart Old Boy, Sorry Old Buzzard, Sad Old Bat, Sick Old Boy, Sack of Bananas, Sack of Beans, Silly Old Bird, Sheaf of Barley, Slab of Butter.

President and Pearson

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I hold no brief for Drew Pearson. Judging from the tenor of his newspaper column and radio talks, he must be a very obnoxious person.

But Mr. Truman lowers the dignity of his high office when, in his obvious and rather funny attempts at "earthiness," he descends to obscenity.

ROBERT MOORE.

Sulla Wasn't Even There

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Whether or not Count de Prorak made a mistake in his dates of Sulla, as it was pointed out by Mr. Salyer, is immaterial, because Sulla and his soldiers had nothing to do with the galley that was shipwrecked off the Tunisian coast. I am afraid that the romantic picture of Sulla and his soldiers loading the galley with the loot from Athens is only a dream.

The wreck, known to archaeologists as the Mahdia wreck and lying in only 39 meters of water three miles off the coast of Tunis between Sphax and Sousse, has been explored exhaustively by French archaeologists headed by Prof. A. Merlin and in four different campaigns in the years 1907-1910. The French Government at the time had placed at the disposal of the excavators all its resources in money and in machinery. And the results have appeared in well-known scientific publications.

Among the relics recovered was a series of commercial marble statues and reliefs that were made in Athens in the first century of our era. These will date the wreck in that century. The galley indeed started from Peiraeus-Athens, but almost a century after the death of Sulla. And according to the generally accepted view it was loaded by an antique dealer for Roman patrons of doubtful taste.

In fairness to the explorers one must add that the task of the exploration of the wreck was never fully completed. And from personal experience I can state that no other adventure can be more thrilling than under-sea exploration of a treasure ship. Good luck to our explorers.

Bunche's Place in History

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A peace treaty terminating racial conflict between Israeli and Egypt has been signed. Some of the world's great minds have attempted to solve this seemingly insoluble problem, but peace had not been attained until now.

Representatives of both the combatant nations paid tribute to the inexhaustible efforts of the man largely responsible for that hour that brought peace. Now all the world must acclaim him as must the pages of history.

Turn Them Back Again!

Are the taxpayers of Missouri going to be put to the unnecessary expense and effort of still another statewide battle to protect the non-partisan Conservation Commission?

That is the issue to be decided at the hearing of the House Constitutional Amendments committee, Wednesday afternoon, at Jefferson City.

Conservation of wildlife was taken out of politics in 1936 by the people of Missouri in one of the greatest demonstrations of popular determination in the history of the state. The vote was 879,213 to 351,962.

Five other times within a decade the meat hounds have raised this issue. Five times they have been turned back. Five times those who would revive the old system of patronage game wardens and favoritism and political pull have been repudiated. Yet again they chose to ignore the unmistakable will of the voters.

What the enemies of conservation propose is transparent. They have drafted an amendment to the State Constitution to take from the Conservation Commission all its authority to make rules and regulations and to control the expenditure of funds derived from conservation sources. In short, they would retain the front of a nonpolitical Conservation Commission, but take away from the commission all of the means by which it now operates.

There is not the slightest reason to believe that the people of Missouri want to throw conservation back into the political arena of the Legislature. Then why, with so many pressing issues, worry the state with a third referendum on something definitely decided?

There is, of course, no good reason. What small backing there is for this proposal comes from a few malcontents, from those who would sacrifice scientific conservation to serve their own whims and from the courthouse rings which are always glad to see a lot of official printing each campaign year.

Yet there is a danger that the proposed amendment will be reported out by the committee which Representative Tom A. Shockley of Waynesville heads. And if it is reported favorably by the committee, there is no telling what may happen in this uncertain Legislature.

There need be, however, no guesswork in an appraisal of what the Conservation Commission has been able to achieve. If individuals and groups who know the record of improvement will make it their business to be represented at Jefferson City Wednesday, the meat hounds will be so swamped that they will not have the face to send their sabotage plan to the floor.

Turn them back again!

Senator Langer's Position

We cheered Representative Leroy Johnson of California for coming out for direct popular election of President and Vice President. We said that so far as we knew he was the first member of Congress to announce for complete abolition of the electoral college system. Senator Langer of North Dakota has now declared himself in favor of direct election with no electoral vote monkey business. Since the Lodge-Fulbright-Gossett group thinks that small states will be eager to hold on to their electoral vote power, the declaration of Senator Langer is doubly notable. His state has only four electoral votes—two for its Senators and two for its two Representatives. If some other Senators from states with relatively small populations will speak out, this proposed constitutional change can be amended to remove every last vestige of the outmoded and dangerous electoral college.

A Filibuster Can Be Averted

Vice President Barkley will, we hope, rule that the Senate can invoke cloture on a motion, and so prevent the filibuster which some Southern senators are threatening.

He gave the best possible reason for doing so when as Democratic floor leader last year he was urging it upon then President Pro Tem Arthur Vandenberg.

Unless cloture—the limitation of debate—can be invoked upon a motion as well as upon a bill, he said then, the effectiveness of the cloture rule is "completely destroyed."

That was true when Senator Barkley said it, and it will be true if Vice President Barkley repeats it. It is inconceivable that the Senate should have no way to shut off a garrulous minority which is unwilling to submit a matter in controversy to a majority vote. Yet as long as the self-contradictory idea prevails that debate can be limited on a bill but not on a motion, there will be no practical way to stop filibustering. Due care can always be taken to base the filibuster on a motion.

The talk fest currently threatened is on a proposal to amend the cloture rule so as to give the Senate better protection against filibusters. Its real purpose would be to preserve the present privileges of filibuster to kill the civil rights program. If Vice President Barkley clears the way, the Senate should enact strong enough curbs to prevent the will of the majority from ever again being endlessly frustrated by the trickery of an undemocratic minority.

Limitation of debate by a simple majority vote has been proposed in two books in recent years by serious students of the workings of Congress—"A Twentieth Century Congress," by Estes Kefauver, now junior Senator from Tennessee, and "This Is Congress," by Roland Young of Harvard, former secretary of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. It is the surest way to eliminate what has become one of the major handicaps to the Senate's effective functioning.

National City Lines says it doesn't control the St. Louis transit system because it owns only 45 per cent of the stock. No doubt it can tell us, then, who does?

Immortal for a Decade

Perhaps adults ought to lay off the compiling of such lists as The New Colophon's poll on the American author most likely to achieve immortality. They are too much like those senior class guesses as to the graduate most likely to succeed in business, the one most likely to become President or what have you.

There is more evidence for a guess about authors, it may be admitted, than there is for most ventures in prophecy. Even so, how does it make sense that Eugene O'Neill, who placed third in an immortal authors poll a decade ago, should have nosed out Sinclair Lewis this year? Neither one added much, if anything, to his stature in the last 10 years. And why should Ernest Hemingway have been No. 13 in 1936 and No. 4 in 1949? He did publish "For Whom the Bell Tolls" in the interim, but if his name is to be kept alive through the ages, it surely will be done by his much earlier short stories and by "The Sun Also Rises" and "A Farewell to Arms." Or why should T. S. Eliot have been moved up from No. 20 to 7? His "Waste Land" was well known by 1936.

On discovering that Edna St. Vincent Millay has been dropped from No. 4 to No. 10, it seems the whole business is a reflection of current taste. And taste is a changing thing indeed. Miss Millay's emancipated woman is old hat now, but who can tell whether a new onset of puritanism may not renew her fascination? Maybe she is even now more highly regarded, say, in Boston than in New York.

Why Use Smelling Salts?

A rash of anti-Communist bills is being presented to state legislatures. In 13 states, proposals are being made to bar Communists from public jobs. Loyalty oaths would be required of people on public payrolls. Illinois and Maryland are considering outlawing the Communist party. And so on.

Our old friend, the Man from Mars, would no doubt conclude from all this that the nation is in deadly peril from within. Actually, the Communist party in the United States is fighting for its very life. We recently quoted a survey made by Newsweek showing that since V-J day, party membership has slumped 25 per cent; the Communist youth movement is virtually wiped out; fellow-travelers, once numbering hundreds of thousands, have fallen off sharply; non-Communists will no longer front for the party in any cause; the party has lost much of its labor union influence; it is racked with internal dissension; and its leaders admit that the party has no longer any influence in Washington.

Of course, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty and the nation would be foolish to blink the fact that Communists, by the very nature of their philosophy, cannot be loyal American citizens. But it is one thing to be vigilant and quite another to be hysterical. In many of the states proposing major measures against Communism, it would be hard to find more than a corporal's guard of these termites. Why use a pile-driver when a fly-swatter would do?

Communists can be kept out of public jobs and are being kept out of public jobs by the routine scrutiny of personnel officials. The FBI has records of every dangerous Communist in the country and is relentlessly watching such gentry. As to outlawing the Communist party itself, that would be a precedent for outlawing other parties that do not conform to a conventional pattern. In his Oregon debate with Harold Stassen last year, Gov. Dewey showed the unwisdom of such a move and it was generally agreed he had won the debate.

The bills now pending in state legislatures are a sign of weakness rather than strength; they are another example of the notion of a good many Americans that thought can be regulated by law. Passage of the measures, instead of suppressing Communist thought, is more likely to stimulate it. The Communist party in America is on the verge of a knockout; why administer smelling salts?

A Cheer for the Air Lift

Hats off to the Americans and Britons who are flying the air lift to Berlin. For the third time in five days they have broken their tonnage record. The newest record has them delivering to the Russian-blockaded city more than 8000 tons in a 24-hour period. With the worst of the winter behind, the air lift has proved a success beyond the expectations of even the most hopeful. It is proving that the Western Allies will not let down the people of their sectors of Berlin and it is keeping an ever larger number of American air force pilots in constant training in Europe.

A chap who was arrested for making out a check for an automobile in vanishing ink was just a few months too late. He would have been an ideal customer for those fellows over in Illinois who filled their orders with vanishing automobiles.

The Dutch Take Their Time

The Dutch are a round two months behind the schedule set for them by the UN Security Council in releasing the leaders of the Indonesian Republic. On Dec. 28, they were ordered to do so within 24 hours. But not until Feb. 26 did The Hague make up its mind to free Soekarno and Hatta.

In announcing the release, the Dutch said that it was part of an effort to comply with the further UN command to have an interim government set up in Indonesia by March 15. This sounds like double-talk because they also have set March 12 as the date for a round-table conference to work out the details of this regime. And it is not even clear whether Soekarno and Hatta will be permitted to attend as representatives of the Indonesian Republic.

The Dutch seem to us like those backwoods iconoclasts who used to get up on their soapboxes and dare the lightning to strike them. Apparently they feel it is as safe to defy the UN. They may find, however, that the international organization is rather more responsive to such challenges than are the powers of nature.

With the New Delhi powers against them and with some members of the American Congress only too eager to cut Marshall plan appropriations, Queen Juliana's ministers may yet realize that they are not as much masters of the situation as they seem to be. Meanwhile they are making a mock of democracy and international co-operation.

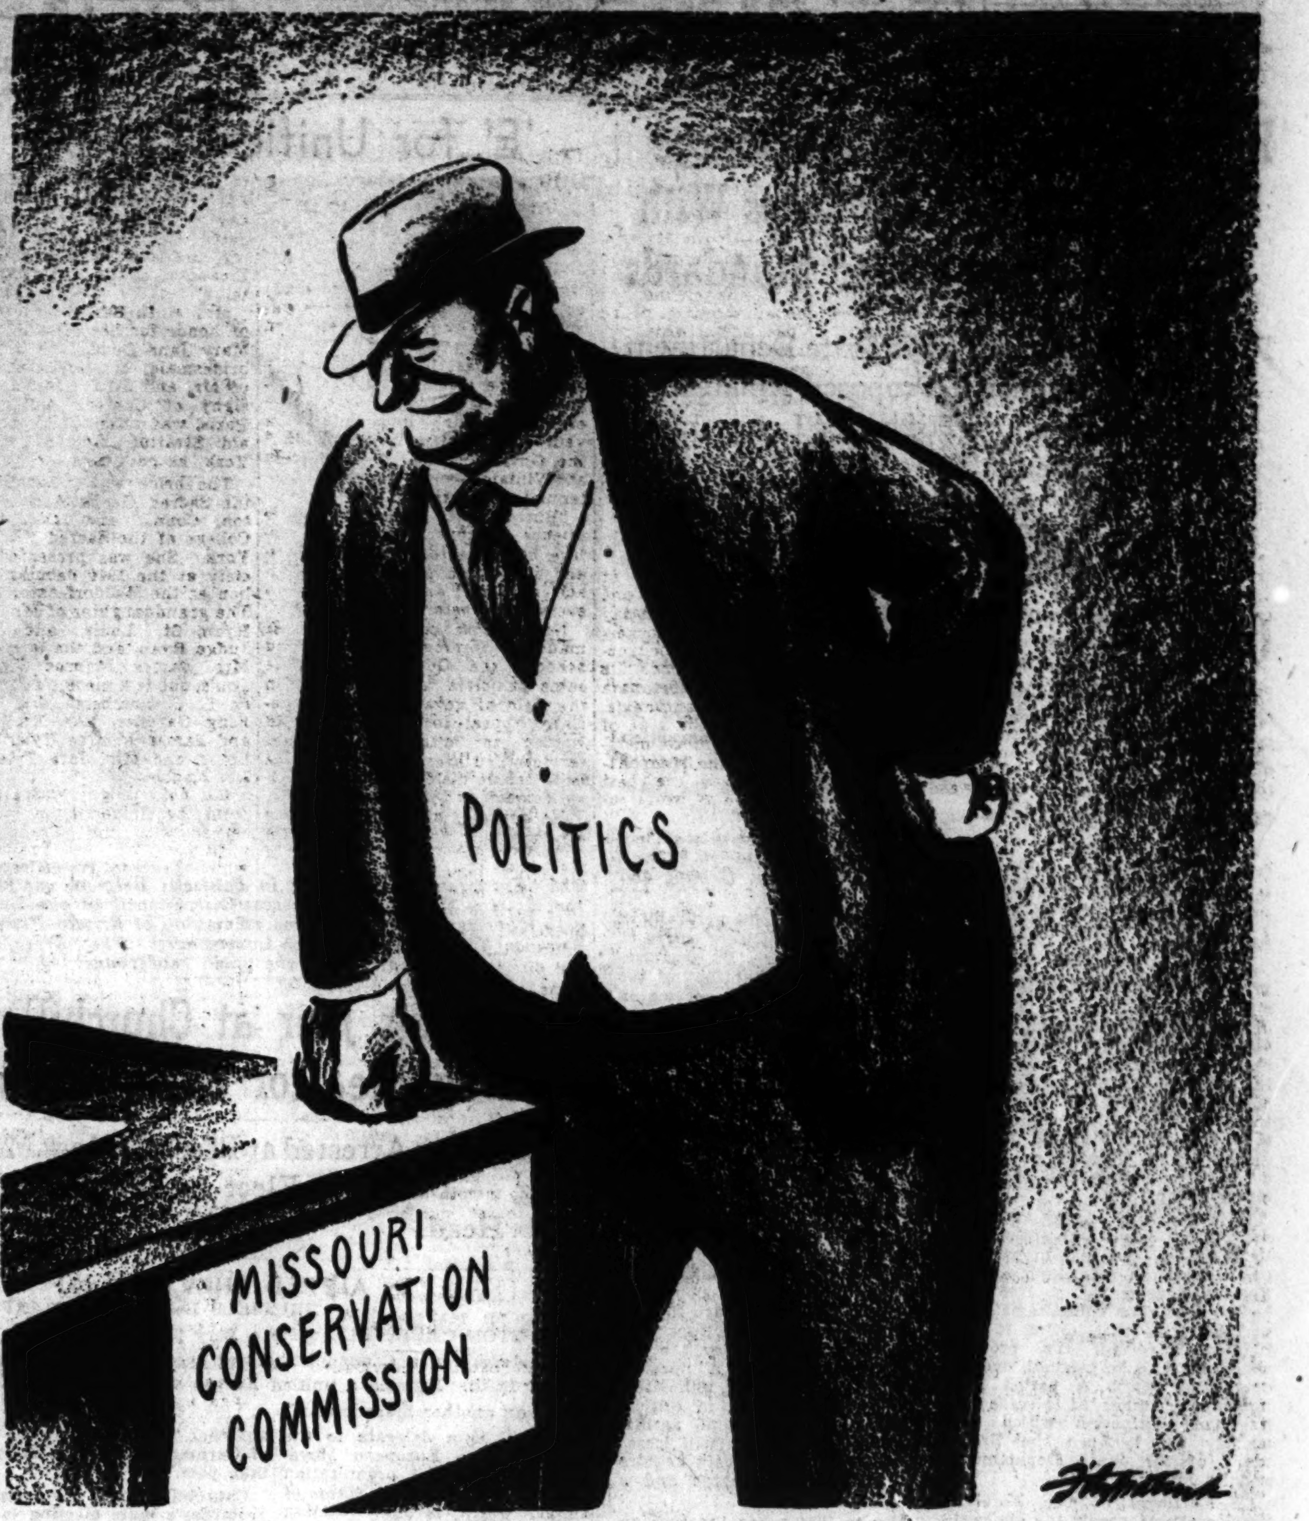
Winston Churchill in his memoirs tells of notable battles that saved Britain. The running one between him and the Labor party is conspicuously and, we guess, appropriately absent from the list.

A Cotton Loan to Spain?

Cotton exporters are urging the Government to grant a loan to Franco Spain so that Spain can buy American cotton. One might ask why the exporters don't float a private loan for this purpose. If this is too risky for private capital, then the exporters are simply asking for a subsidy from American taxpayers and are willing to share the gravy with Spain.

When it comes to turning a dollar their own way, the fact that Franco Spain is a ruthless police state which millions of democratic people find offensive means nothing to these cotton exporters.

Film actor Robert Mitchum, serving a jail term for possessing marihuana, is photographed trying to milk cows, and as well as we can make out he doesn't know how to milchum.



"ALL WE WANT IS THE CASH BOX"

The Buyer Comes Into His Own

The Mirror of Public Opinion

With the returning buyer's market, automobile dealers again proclaim the customer "a wonderful guy"; paper is delighted not only because competition is back but because courtesy comes with it; observes that a regard for human dignity is a part of freedom.

From the San Francisco Chronicle

At a symposium held in connection with their convention here, the nation's automobile dealers were told that in order to increase their cut of the lucrative service and parts business they are going to have to pay more attention to "that wonderful guy," the customer. A part of this increased attention was described as better, more personalized service.

This is an intelligent conclusion reached in the face of an impending buyers' market. The sooner it is thoroughly absorbed and put into practice, not only throughout the automobile business but throughout the whole field embracing sales of goods and services, the better for the nation.

We view this matter as of tremendous importance, possibly because we have been watching with increasing concern an era of relative social brutishness engulfing the nation since the onset of World War II. The watchword of this era has evidently been: "Kick the customer in the teeth—he can't help himself."

No single industry or business, no single segment of our society can be held more culpable than any other—the snarling and gouging has been almost universal.

You have walked into a restaurant, and the waiter has assumed an attitude that clearly said: "You're lucky to get any service at all—and don't come that two-bit tip stuff with me; it's a half-dollar or you're as big a piker as I think you are."

You have gone to a hotel, shelled out a fancy price for a room, tipped the bellboy generously for a pitcher of ice water and then found on your bill an item: "One pitcher of ice water, 50 cents."

You have gone into a store to buy a pair of gloves and stood around for 10 or 15 minutes while the salesgirl finished telling the cashier what a wretched time she had the previous night because—well, it was a long story, and no detail could be spared.

In fact, wherever you went, whatever you wanted to buy, from a hairpin to a house, from a repair job on the pup's collar to the excavation of a city block, the attitude has all too frequently been: "Nuts to you, smart guy, you're just another cluck." Surveying a fat backing of orders, the proprietor has been able to make the customer eat out of his hand; surveying the shortage of labor, the union man has been able to dog it on the job and spread over 12 hours—the last four at time and a half—what should have been done better in eight.

We're glad to see the change under way, not only because competition among sellers promises greater money's worth to the consumer; not only because competition among workers promises greater efficiency, but also because we're convinced the changeover will produce increments of friendliness, courtesy and concern for the other fellow's rights and feelings.

We consider those things normal and incalculably important to our kind of people, and we believe their conscious safeguarding and preservation essential to our kind of life.

Talmadge Purges the Rolls

From the Providence Evening Bulletin

The South pays a high price for its prejudices. On the issue of white supremacy, Herman Talmadge, son of the late Gene, rode into office with his machine in Georgia. In order to disqualify 150,000 registered Negroes, the Talmadge machine is tearing up the registry list and forcing a re-registration of the current list of 1,200,000, exacting a fee of $1 from each voter upon the new registration.

The ostensible purpose is to end Negro voting, but the actual purpose is to wipe off the voting lists white voters known to oppose the Talmadge machine. It is expected that when the Talmadge purge is completed, the registration will be cut in half.

With a specially selected list of voters, the Talmadge machine will be entrenched in power. By control of the electoral process, it intends to fasten itself upon the State of Georgia for a good long time.

Thus, the voters who followed the leadership of those who made the issue of white supremacy will find themselves bossed by one of the most ruthless and expensive political machines in the land. They voted a prejudice and got a machine that plays tough.

The unhappy part is that such a machine is so reactionary that it holds back the growth and development of the whole state and, by repercussions, the whole South suffers. Moreover, the situation presses home the argument that the only action for protection of civil rights must come from the Federal Government. A Talmadge, riding high the white supremacy issue, sets back the clock for those liberals who hope that the South will be able to solve its own problems.

Indiana's Bonus Squabble

From the Milwaukee Journal

What could be happening here in Wisconsin if the voter, at the November election, had approved a state veterans' bonus to be financed by a sales tax?

Perhaps we can get some idea if we look at what is happening in Indiana, where the voters approved a bonus and indicated preference for the sales tax as a way to raise the money. Right now there is a mad scramble to get out from under, to exempt this or that group, or even to ignore the wish of the voters as to the form of the tax.

The Indianapolis News comments: "Seldom have so many wanted so few to pay so much."

It probably simmers down to the fact that Indiana folks are just coming to the realization that a fair sized bonus for World War II veterans imposes a really staggering cost on the taxpayers—including the veterans and their families. The cost is simply too big to pass along to some small group that is politically insignificant, and therefore relatively defenseless. So a sales tax, or some form of sales tax disguised under another name, becomes about the only practical means for raising the bonus money.

MEMO TO SPEAKERS

From Dublin Opinion.

The human brain is a wonderful thing. It starts working the moment you are born, and never stops until you stand up to speak in public.

Between Book Ends

The Shape of the Crisis

THE WORLD'S BEST HOPE, by Francis Biddle. (University of Chicago Press, Chicago, $3.50.)

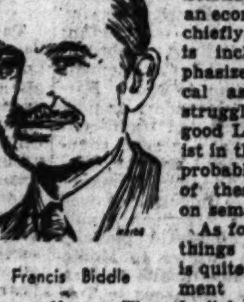
THERE'S FREEDOM FOR THE BRAVE, by Paul McGuire. William Morrow Co., New York, $4.00.)

These three titles are representative of a great deal of discussion feeding the printing presses of the nation these days, and can be considered together quite conveniently. Biddle is, of course, the former United States Attorney General—one of the Philadelphia Biddles. Sternberg is a German-born economist. McGuire is an Australian.

All three are trying to discover the shape of things as they are, the shape of things to come—and in varying degrees, to influence the future. There is a surprising area of agreement between them.

They agree, for instance, that the salient feature of our times is the struggle between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. They are in somewhat less certain agreement as to the nature of that struggle: Biddle thinks it is a struggle between world powers; Sternberg thinks it is an economic struggle, chiefly, and McGuire is inclined to emphasize the ideological aspects of the struggle. If there is a good Logical Positivist in the audience he probably can dispose of these differences on semantic grounds.



Francis Biddle

As for the shape of things to come there is quite certain agreement between our three authors: They don't know. Like the rest of us, they fear war and hope for peace.

Most surprising is the extent to which the three writers agree on a remedy. Bearing in mind the various emphases—power, economic and ideological—each suggests "containing" Russia, while we develop a positive program.

Both Biddle and Sternberg believe in a marriage between European socialism and American social service capitalism. McGuire rejects this vehemently, reasoning that a controlled economy leads invariably to a police state—a thesis by no means proven by history. Biddle would concentrate first on re-establishing a world balance of power. Sternberg would give top priority to the American New Deal at home and a New Deal abroad, largely economic in content. McGuire believes deeply in the moral heritage of feudalism as an instrument for public good without curtailing private freedom—a point of view less unreasonable than it will sound offhand to most liberal ears.

Considered as literature, the Biddle book wins easily. His style is rich and urbane. Sternberg's prose is scratchy, perhaps due to language difficulties. McGuire is earnest but sometimes naive. Together, the three books provide a lively conversation, but we'll have to wait 100 years or so for final answers.

The Banana Split Age

AND NEVER BEEN KISSED, by Sylvia Dee. (The Macmillan Co., New York, 247 Pages, $2.75.)

If Booth Tarkington had written mainly about Marjorie Jones of the golden curls and only incidentally about Penrod his juvenile classic would have been a story something like this one. Flory Patterson is 13 at the beginning and sweet 16 when the story ends. She is more or less in love throughout the story and what she says about the boys to Millie Myers, her close companion, and what Millie says back, make up a lot of the merriment.

The time, however, is not the present, but back when Gloria Swanson was the movie queen of the '20s and banana splits at the corner drug store were climaxes to many a date. Yet bigger things were already stirring as the episode at the Marigold, a dive of sorts, goes to show. Few girls or women will be able to read this story of giggling adolescence without laughing out loud many times.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Aren't We Blundering on Norway?

THE long shadow cast by the decision taken by Norway and the United States is as yet hardly apparent. Only with events that are expected to flow from this decision will its far-reaching consequences be realized both here and in Western Europe.

But it is not too early to bring home to Americans the responsibility this country must bear for inducing Norway to join the Atlantic alliance. To join, it might be added, before the alliance has taken a definite form or been accepted by the participating nations of Western Europe.

Childs

The declaration by the State Department that arms from the United States would go only to countries in the alliance appears to have been the clinching factor with the Norwegians. Behind this declaration was a prolonged campaign of persuasion on both sides of Norway and Sweden. The Swedes were given a clear intimation that unless they quickly made up their minds to come into the alliance, the United States would have to decide that Sweden was strategically indefensible.

An Expert's View.

From one American who knows Scandinavia well has come a note of grave warning. Lithgow Osborne, Ambassador to Norway from 1944 to 1946 and now head of the American Scandinavian Foundation, has made available to several Senators a memorandum setting forth cogent reasons why the State Department should hesitate before disrupting the unity achieved by the three Scandinavian countries.

While the die seems to have been finally and fatally cast, the Osborne memorandum is important since it underscores so heavily the significance of the step that has been taken. For that reason excerpts are printed here. Osborne presented two points for immediate and urgent consideration as follows:

Less Than Greece?

"1. Withdrawal of our opposition to a mutual Scandinavian defense alliance. In view of the rugged democratic character of the Scandinavian peoples and their unquestionable ideological sympathy with the West, an independent position for them seems unimportant, in fact, the more 'neutral' such a defense pact is, the more it works in our favor in that it furnishes less provocation to Russia.

"Under it we would, it is true, be precluded from any active collaboration with the Scandinavians on defensive measures. On the other hand, we also would be relieved of additional moral obligations which would certainly devolve on us, if one or more of the Scandinavian countries joined the Atlantic pact at our insistence.

"2. A statement that any Western European democracy or group of democracies which is prepared to defend itself against aggression will be eligible to receive military supplies. Why should the Scandinavian countries be treated worse in this respect than Turkey, Greece or Korea?

Soviet Counter-Moves.

"The high degree of unity of the Northern democracies is one of the bright spots in present-day Europe. It is one of the cornerstones on which the reconstruction of the Continent depends. Its disruption would be unfortunate for us as well as for Scandinavia. To destroy it now for the sake of securing one or two more members of the still non-existent Atlantic pact seems at the best doubtful wisdom and at worst extremely dangerous."

Regardless of the official terms of the pact, the grave moral responsibility of the United States, as Osborne points out, can hardly be overstressed. That responsibility is to the Norwegian people who for four years endured the sinister tyranny of Nazi occupation.

Might Weaken Us.

How the masters of Soviet Russia in the Kremlin will react no one may predict with any certainty. Their reaction may well be one of fear, prompting them to take advantage of the treaty with Finland, permitting Russia to use Finland as, in effect, a military base. Contrary to popular impression, Russia's reactions often can be explained more readily by weakness and fear rather than by strength and arrogance.

But if the Kremlin bosses were to react in the most cool and calculated fashion, they might follow exactly this same course. They could calculate that by projecting their force right up to the Norwegian border, they would frighten Norway into calling on America for immediate and large-scale military assistance.

The supply of arms from this country is necessarily limited. Yet the Government would feel under compulsion to respond to Norway's cry for help. As a consequence, arms urgently needed to strengthen Western Europe would be deflected to the north. The net effect might be actually to strengthen Russia's strategic position in Europe.

MERRYL L. M'CARTHY CONTRACTOR, DIES

Officer of St. Louis Firm That Has Erected State School Buildings.

Merryl L. McCarthy, St. Louis contractor, died yesterday of a heart ailment at St. Mary's Hospital. He was 51 years old and lived at 6245 Westminster place.

He was secretary-treasurer of McCarthy Brothers Construction Co., Rock Hill Quarry Co. and McCarthy-Pohl Co. McCarthy Brothers has erected state school buildings, done work on the Panama Canal and handled other large projects.

Mr. McCarthy was a graduate of the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Finney McCarthy; four sons, Francis, John, Robert and Timothy; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy McCarthy; one brother, John E. McCarthy, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert S. Carr of Fort Myers, Fla., and Mrs. Sidney L. James of Rye, N.Y.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 10 a.m., at St. Roch's Church, 6060 Waterman boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

OPENS CAMPAIGN ON DUCKS, CHICKS AS EASTER GIFTS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 28 (UP)—Those fluffy yellow ducklings and rainbow-hued baby chicks found a friend today in General Sessions Judge William J. Bacon—without going to court.

Bacon, elderly president of the Memphis Humane Society, wants to protect biddies and ducklings. He has initiated a pre-Easter educational program for parents and grownups. Bacon wants to eliminate "this silly business" of giving baby chickens and ducks at Easter time.

"It's inhumane and wasteful," he said. "A great many of the baby chicks and ducks die shortly after Easter. Small children either squeeze them to death or smother them or don't know how to feed them."

On a national basis Bacon says "hundreds of thousands" of baby chickens and ducks are sacrificed. Bacon said that the Humane Society plans to appeal to prospective buyers—not dealers—to eliminate the fad.

DEATH OF CHARLES W. LOGAN

Funeral services for Charles W. Logan, a furniture salesman here for 40 years, will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Drehmann-Harral undertaking establishment, 1905 Union boulevard. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Logan died Saturday at St. John's Hospital. He was 73 years old and lived at 4970 Lotus avenue. He was a founder and past president of the St. Louis Furniture Salesmen's Association. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Louise Logan.

ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION

Walter G. Kelly and Raymond B. Hopfinger, State Representatives from St. Louis county, will conduct a round-table discussion tonight at 8 o'clock on state legislation at Clayton court house.

The meeting, open to the public, is sponsored by the Democratic Women's Club of Clayton Township. Mrs. Schuyler Smith is president of the club.

A coaxial telephone cable 544 miles long will be placed in service tomorrow between St. Louis and Jackson, Miss., it was announced by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The cable will provide hundreds of additional long-distance circuits for calls between the North Central and the Southern states. Connecting at Jackson with the coaxial cable now supplying telephone circuits between Los Angeles and Jacksonville, Fla., it will add a new transcontinental coaxial cable route, linking New York, Cleveland and Chicago with the Pacific Coast by way of St. Louis, Cape Girardeau and Sikeston, Mo., Blytheville, Ark., and Memphis.

Work on the underground cable, a joint project of Southwestern Bell, Southern Bell Telephone Co. and American Telephone & Telegraph Co., began in 1947. Submarine cable was used to cross four streams and at points intermediate aerial splices were made so the submerged line would be readily accessible for repairs during floods. In Mississippi, where soil erosion is extensive, vegetation had to be restored after the cable was laid to keep topsoil from washing away and exposing the line.

Burying the cable protects it from damage by storms, floods, fires and falling tree limbs. Small "repeater" buildings were erected along the route. These structures, installed about every eight miles, house amplification equipment to step up the electrical currents carrying conversations.

The cable is about as thick as a man's wrist and contains eight hollow copper tubes three-eighths of an inch in diameter. Running down the center of each tube is a copper wire. The cable is called coaxial because both the tube and the wire have the same axis.

WOMAN HURT IN FALL, DIES

Mrs. George Beck, a 91-year-old widow, died yesterday at Lutheran Hospital of a brain injury suffered last Thursday in a fall in her home at 3009 Hawthorne boulevard.

She had fallen while walking down a flight of stairs in the house.

12:15 p.m.—William Korfmacher, dean of University College, evening school at St. Louis University, reviews report of the President's Commission on Higher Education, at Central Public Library, 1301 Olive street.

12:15 p.m.—Arthur F. Gerecke, former chief of press control in occupied Bavaria, talks on "Berlin Background" at luncheon of St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade, at Hotel Statler.

7:30 and 9:15 p.m.—Mexican motion picture, "The Wave," shown at Y.M.H.A., 724 Union boulevard.

GOV. SMITH TALKS POLITICS TO TEACHERS

Tells Them He and Other Officials Are Not Selling 'Birthright for Pottage.'

LIBERTY, Mo., Feb. 28 (AP)—Gov. Forrest Smith last night urged educators and church workers to take an active interest in politics and government.

"There has been a tendency among the teaching profession to shy away from any part of government, calling it politics in a vein of criticism and ridicule," the Governor said in an address at William Jewell College's centennial celebration.

"But politics, after all, is the science of government. I therefore urge the teaching profession and all church people to take an active interest and strong hand in every issue before the people."

Noting that constant effort is made to improve churches and schools, the Governor said the same principle "should prevail in the field of government. I especially appeal to young men and women to enter governmental service. You are needed and there is a fertile field therein for advancement and security."

He appealed also for support of officials who "have been elected by you to conduct the affairs of your local government. Being human, they may at times err. Then, they need your constructive criticism."

"In winning your way in political life," Gov. Smith said, "you come under the scrutiny of 4,000,000 Missourians and they look you over pretty well, and say all manner of unkind things about you. That is their privilege and you have to be able to take it.

"But if there are any who think that those of us who have spent most of our lives in public service, and have been honored by being placed in responsible positions by a vote of the people, are going to sell 'our birthright for a mess of pottage,' they are sadly mistaken."

PLAN TO BAR SALE OF CRIME BOOKS TO CHILDREN INDORSED

A proposal by Alderman Alfred I. Harris that the sale of crime-comic books to children be prohibited in St. Louis by ordinance has been indorsed by the Missouri Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, it was announced yesterday by John W. Giesecke, president.

In a letter to Charles E. Albanese, president of the Board of Aldermen, Giesecke said the society's board of managers had appointed a committee to investigate the effect of crime comic books on children. The committee reported, Giesecke said, that such publications were a menace to the development of good character and good citizenship, frequently led to commission of crimes, and that the need for regulation is particularly great in this area.

The ordinance proposed by Harris would not apply to accounts of crime "which are part of the general dissemination of news," or to the publication of drawings or photographs illustrating news stories. Violation would be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of from $50 to $500.

OPERA STAR RISE STEVENS FORGETS WORDS, STARTS OVER

OXFORD, O., Feb. 28 (AP) — Rise Stevens, Metropolitan Opera star, forgot the words in one of her songs here last night but then carried on, to the enjoyment of a Miami University audience of 3500.

She stopped abruptly and then told the audience: "Oh, Oh. Sorry. I have forgotten the words."

She smiled, took a deep breath, signaled her accompanist and started again. She remembered the words on the second round.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE marriage of Miss Sara Anne Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill Ryan Jr., of New York, formerly of St. Louis, to George Pierre de Lussigny of Paris, France, took place Saturday morning at Our Lady of Perpetual Help, New York. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Ryan gave a family breakfast at the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

Mrs. Horn Berkeley was matron of honor for her cousin and Miss Mary Jane Dodd, New York, was bridesmaid. Mr. de Lussigny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond de Lussigny of Chateau Quincy, near Paris, was attended by Lord Gerald Stratton, London and New York, as best man.

The bride was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent, Noroton, Conn., and Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart, New York. She was presented to society at the 1944 debutante cotillion at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The granddaughter of Mrs. O'Neill Ryan, St. Louis, and the late Judge Ryan, and the late Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe Tyler, St. Louis, she is a niece of Mrs. Marion L. J. Lambert, Mrs. William King Gardner, Mrs. Emile Caloz and James Monroe Tyler Jr., St. Louis, and Mrs. Sara Tyler Lacy, Los Angeles.

Mr. deLaussigny was graduated from the University of Paris and served with the French Army until the fall of France after which he was an officer in the American Army. He and his bride, who met in France last summer, flew to Paris yesterday, where they will live.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. O'Neill Ryan Sr., went to New York for the wedding.

Mrs. Preston J. Bradshaw and her daughter, Judy, a student at Villa Duchesne, will return from Palm Beach, Fla., about March 12. Mr. Bradshaw has already returned. The Bradshaws, who live in Grays Summit, Mo., have been staying at the Biltmore Hotel since before Christmas.

MRS. SHOENBERG DIES, STORE MAN'S WIDOW

Succumbs at 89 of Infirmities—Husband One of May Co. Founders.

Mrs. Moses Shoenberg, widow of one of the founders of the May Department Stores Co., operators of Famous-Barr, died at Jewish Hospital early today of infirmities. She was 89 years old and lived at the Chase Hotel.

Before her marriage to Mr. Shoenberg, who died in 1925, she was Miss Dollie Bernheimer of Buffalo, N.Y. Her husband and his brother-in-law, David May, founded the department store firm, which was incorporated in 1910.

Mr. Shoenberg left an estate valued at $1,711,648. His wife received a $100,000 bequest, with the bulk of the estate going to their son, Sydney M. Shoenberg. In the will, it was pointed out that Mrs. Shoenberg received substantial gifts from her husband during his lifetime.

Sydney Shoenberg, a broker, survives. Funeral services will be private.

CHARLES O'NEILL

CHARLES O'NEILL DIES; COAL MINE SPOKESMAN

Former Miner, UMW Officer Who Became Top Bargainer for Operators.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—Charles O'Neill, who rose from a miner to become spokesman for operators in the soft coal industry and a top bargainer with John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers, died in a hospital here last night. He was 61 years old.

O'Neill, a resident of nearby Scarsdale, N.Y., suffered a cerebral hemorrhage a week ago.

O'Neill, an expert in the mining industry, had been prominent for many years in representing the operators in negotiations with the United Mine Workers.

In his youthful mining days he was a member of the UMW, and in 1918 was elected president of the union's District No. 2. Later, he assisted in organizing the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, and became its president several years ago. He became active in Washington for the Eastern Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association in 1933.

O'Neill also was president of the United Eastern Coal Sales Corp., and a member of the board of directors of the National Coal Association. His activity in negotiations with the UMW resulted in re-establishment in the 1930s of collective bargaining in the coal industry under the terms of what was known as the Appalachian agreement.

O'Neill, as the spokesman for the operators, got along reasonably well with Lewis of the UMW. But once, at a war labor board hearing in 1945, Lewis threatened to go around the table and punch it out with O'Neill. O'Neill stood his ground and no exchange of blows took place.

P. HAL SIMS, BRIDGE EXPERT, DIES IN CUBA

HAVANA, Feb. 28 (AP)—P. Hal Sims, American bridge expert, died Saturday night at his winter home in the Country Club Park. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Sims was playing cards with some friends when he suffered a heart attack.

He is survived by his wife, the former Dorothy Rice, one of the first women in the United States ever to fly solo in her own airplane.

He was born in Selma, Ala., and attended a theological school briefly, but left it to study banking under his uncle, Will Hunt, in Chicago. His uncanny appreciation of odds and psychological advantages made him one of the best poker and bridge players in the country. He served with the British Naval Air Service in World War I.

ALICE FAYE, PHIL HARRIS RADIO PROGRAM TO STAY WITH N.B.C.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28 (UP)—Alice Faye and Phil Harris will keep their radio show on the National Broadcasting Co. network for at least two more years, an N.B.C. announcement said today.

Harris, who doubles as a gag-throwing band leader on Jack Benny's C.B.S. show, will have to continue racing from one studio to another between programs.

The announcement spiked rumors that the team would follow other top N.B.C. stars to the Columbia Broadcasting System. Amos 'n' Andy and the Edgar Bergen show are among the shows which also have moved over to C.B.S.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT SENIORS ELIGIBLE FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

St. Louis high school seniors who are members of Junior Achievement Inc. are eligible to compete for 65 college scholarships to be offered by the national organization, it was announced today.

The basis for the scholarship awards is leadership, attendance, teamwork and business efficiency in the miniature companies formed under the Junior Achievement plan, Robert L. Lund, board chairman for the St. Louis branch of the organization, announced.

Junior Achievement Inc. is a national non-profit organization which gives business training to high school seniors and juniors by having them organize and operate small companies.

Dyer Takes One Look at Kurowski and His Card Outlook Brightens

Of Course Eddie's Got Other 'Ifs'

Slaughter Named Captain of Cards; Means Extra $500

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28

ENOS SLAUGHTER, veteran of the Cardinal squad, has been appointed captain of the team, succeeding Terry Moore, Manager Eddie Dyer announced today.

"Slaughter is a fine team man, an example for the other boys, and I am sure he willl make a fine captain," Dyer said.

As a result of the appointment, approved by Fred Saigh, club president, Slaughter will receive an extra $500 for 1949 for performing a captain's duties.

By J. Roy Stockton
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28—Eddie Dyer arrived at Camp Cardinal yesterday afternoon, grinned as he looked at a lean, trim George Kurowski and declared that his Cardinals would be in the 1949 pennant race all the way and that they would win if they got a few breaks.

"It's going to be a race that may be decided by breaks," Dyer said. "We could have won last year if we'd had our full manpower all the way. We will win this year if Whitey here can play Kurowski ball for 140 games, and if Red Schoendienst doesn't have shoulder trouble."

Dyer, pointing out that the day before the opening of spring training was a little early to give out pennant predictions, finally relented and picked the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers as the clubs the Cardinals would have to beat.

Rivals in 'If' League Too.

"They're if club's too," Dyer pointed out. "The Braves could make it two straight pennants if Pete Reiser were to have a great year. And the Dodgers, with a good relief pitcher and no slumping by their young players, could make it tough for everybody."

Eddie hopes to keep Musial in the outfield, preferably in left or right, but if he finds first base wide open, he won't refuse to bring Stan back to the infield.

Schoendienst might even be moved to center field, if anybody in camp shows that he can play an exceptionally good second base.

Tommy Glaviano is the No. 2 man when the Cardinal skipper considers his third base problem, but he hopes Kurowski can make it, because with Kurowski in form and playing every day, it will look like a championship team again.

Jones Must Fight for Job.

Nippy Jones and Glenn Nelson will get full and long trials at first base. Jones, however, will have to show quickly that he's better than the .253 hitter he was last year.

Center field is wide open and perhaps the No. 1 problem. It's no easy job to find a man who can replace Terry Moore defensively and the man who wins the job will have to do some hitting, too.

The pitching staff is not too heavy and there will have to be help from young pitchers. Jim Hearn, Ken Johnson, Cloyd Boyer, Kurt Krieger, Bill Reeder and other young hurlers will be considered immediately as prospective regular starters.

Rookie an Extra Guest.

Sollie Hemus, rookie from Houston, who isn't even on the roster, will be given a chance to prove why he is what they call him down Houston way—"the Eddie Stanky of the Texas League." If he's as good as scouts say he is, he'll be transferred to the Redbird roster and may even play second base.

There'll be no hesitation about breaking up the Cardinal machine and putting new men in important spots. But Dyer won't make the changes just to be different. The new men will have to prove they're better than the veterans.

Howard Pollet was the only holdout today as Dyer and his squad prepared to open spring training tomorrow at Al Lang Field, Glaviano having signed yesterday. Gerald Staley won't be on hand for the opening, as he has been given permission to delay reporting because of illness in his family.

Kurowski's appearance was the talk of the camp on the eve of training. George has lost a dozen pounds, is down to 187 and says his arm apparently is as good as it was in 1947 when his bat was a big factor in the Cardinal attack.

Fred Saigh, Cardinal club president, announced that he has an appointment this afternoon with Commissioner A. B. Chandler, after having had a telephone conversation with President Ford Frick of the National League.

Saigh declined to discuss the nature of his conference, but it was assumed that it had a bearing on the Cardinals' controversy with the Browns over the Sportsman's Park situation.

Florida Tennis Team Defeats Havana Squad

HAVANA, Feb. 28 (AP) — A picked tennis team from Miami Beach, Fla., defeated a Havana team, three matches to one, yesterday in an inter-city series. Two other scheduled matches were canceled because of rain.

Gardnar Mulloy and Leslie Pollack scored singles victories and then Mulloy teamed with Sidney Schwartz to win a doubles match. Mulloy trounced Jose Aguero, 6-2, 6-2. Pollack defeated Reinaldo Garrido, 7-5, 1-6, 6-4. Mulloy and Schwartz topped Aguero and Dr. Juan Weiss, 8-6, 8-6.

The lone Havana triumph was scored by Mary Carvajal, who defeated Susan Herr, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

By Harold Tuthill

McBride today holds the same No. 1 position it had at the beginning of the high school basketball season. Eight coaches and the district board met yesterday to seed the teams for the regional tournament starting tomorrow at Washington University.

Following the Irish were John Burroughs, "ABC" League champion, Kirkwood and Principia Academy, all winners of subregional finals.

Last December when officials met to rate the teams for the Normandy Christmas tournament McBride was given the No. 1 assignment. After a spotty season due largely to the illness of all-district Bob Murphy the Irish slumped, lost their Prep League championship to St. Louis U. High and went into the Webster Groves subregional seeded sixth in the district with a 16-4 mark.

Then Came the Comeback.

After that four straight victories plus the elimination of the first five teams shoved McBride to the top.

John Burroughs, which has won all but two of its 17 games including a series of four triumphs at University City was the logical No. 2 choice.

Principia Academy, with a 14-4 record, including the Normandy subregional final, was seeded No. 4 and chosen to open the regional at 7:30 against University City (14-7). McBride will oppose De Andreis (14-11) for the fourth time this season on the 9 o'clock portion of the opener. McBride won the first three games.

Kirkwood, seeded No. 3 with a 17-8 record after its triumph in the Maplewood-Richmond Heights subregional, will oppose Lutheran (19-7) in Wednesday's first game, while John Burroughs will meet C.B.C. (15-10) in the second game.

Thursday will be an open date but the four winners will compete in the semifinal round Friday and the third place and championship games will be played Saturday at the Field House.

Then On to Springfield.

The St. Louis winner and runner-up will advance to the 16-team state tournament at Springfield, March 9-12.

The eight coaches who met with C. E. Potter, representative on the state board, were Bob McIntire, McBride; Ray Wolfe, John Burroughs, Denver Miller, Kirkwood; Whitey Schubert, Principia; C. A. (Stub) Muhl, University City; Ervin Leimer, Lutheran; Ken Farmer, C.B.C., and Bill Lenich, De Andreis.

Officials selected to work the series are Clay Van Reen, Tom McConnell, George Stuver and Walter Rulon. McConnell also will officiate in the state finals.

Bills Begin Grid Practice Monday; Awards for 67

Opening of spring football practice for the St. Louis University football Billikens, originally scheduled for tomorrow, has been put off by Coach Joe Maniaci until next Monday.

In conjunction with this announcement, Maniaci today also made known the names of the varsity and freshman players from last fall who will receive awards at the annual Blue and White sports banquet in May.

Twenty-six players are listed for varsiay letters while 41 from the freshman aggregation will receive numerals. Thirteen varsity monogram winners will be missing from this year's squad due to completion of college eligibility. Among these will be Lee Alberts, Bill Dolan, Al Mundwiller, Tom Hemp, Pete Wismann, Ed Shortal, Jerry Stroot, Ross Nagle, Bob Mosher, Tex Young, Johnny Stites, Babe Pappas and Ed Nestor.

Charles Meets Maxim Tonight

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 28 (UP)—Ezzard Charles, the Cincinnati clouter, who aspires to the heavyweight crown, was no better than even money tonight as he put his title hopes on the line against Joey Maxim, the Cleveland cutie, in the first fight to be held at new Cincinnati Gardens.

A surprising lack of money backing Charles was noticeable with most bookies and the fight was quoted at 6 to 5, "take your pick."

Regardless of the result of the bout, its financial success was assured. The ticket sale indicated that a sell-out crowd of 15,000 would pack the brand-new arena for an expected gate of $75,000.

Akins to Box Cheatum.

Virgil Akins's opponent in the third eight-round match on Hans Bernstein's boxing card next Tuesday night at Kiel Auditorium will be Willie Cheatum, Newark (N.J.) boxer. Willie, who beat Paul Davis in 1947, fought some tough foes in 1948 and lost on knockouts to Jackie Graves in six rounds and Freddie Dawson in ten and also was outpointed by Talmadge Bussey.

Marjorie Lindsay and Picard Grab Honors

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Marjorie Lindsay and Henry Picard, battling a letdown all the way, yesterday won the Eighth Annual International Mixed Two-Ball Golf tournament.

Miss Lindsay, Decatur, Ill., and Picard, Cleveland veteran pro, scored a 2 and 1 victory over Louise Suggs, Lithia Springs, Ga., and Gus Novotny, Cincinnati.

It was the first time in the history of the tournament that a medalist team went through to claim the championship.

Ozark King Winner in St. Louis Club Trial

Ozark King, a Phelps County setter, won the first renewal of the St. Louis Field Trial Association's shooting dog stake at Weldon Springs, Mo. Ozark King was best in a field of 48 dogs. He handled three bevy finds in good fashion.

Edgemont Joey, female pointer, owned and handled by Roy Kimberlin of St. Louis, was second while Titan's Willing Girl and Pay Lard, both pointers, tied for third place.

Five Name Players Of Boston Braves Listed as Holdouts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (UP)

GENERAL MANAGER JOHN QUINN of the Boston Braves said that the team's five holdouts have indicated they will not report to the Braves' training camp at Bradenton, Fla., for the opening workout tomorrow.

Quinn made the statement aboard the train which passed through here carrying a group of players southward for the March 1 opening.

Quinn said he had talked by phone to Pitchers Warren Spahn and Clyde Shoun, Catcher Phil Masi, Infielder Eddie Stanky and Outfielder Heath, all holdouts, and all said they would not report for the opening session.

C.Y.C. Elevens Battle to Draw

The playoff series in the Catholic Youth Council Soccer League ran into an interruption yesterday when the St. Philip and Holy Rosary teams played a 1-1 draw in their first-round Senior Division game at Sherman Park. Four extra periods failed to bring a decision.

Intermediate Division results were: St. Luke 2, St. Gabriel 0; Sacred Heart 2, St. Engelbert 1.

There was a surprise development in the Junior Division wherein SS. Mary and Joseph was eliminated by St. Leos, 2-0. St. Agatha advanced by defeating St. Edwards, 5-1.

Suspension of Plaza Soccer Club Expected

Failure of the Plaza club to take the field for its scheduled Municipal soccer playoff game at Fairground Park yesterday poses a problem for the league executive committee.

Suspension of the club is expected to be announced at a meeting tomorrow night of officers of the league. But that alone, will not solve the dilemma. Five teams started the Senior division playoffs; each was to meet the others in one game. Two points are awarded for a victory, one for a tie, the greatest number of points to win the championship. However, in the event of a tie in points (as occurred in the Junior playoffs) greatest number of goals would decide.

One team, the Ace Cabs, defeated the Plazas, 3-2, a week ago. The Ace team wants to retain credit for those three goals and is expected to object to starting a new four-club playoff. But, if the present round-robin plan is pursued to a conclusion, with Santa Cruz, Spanish Youth and Zenthoefer clubs each getting a forfeit victory, none of them would have an opportunity to equal the Ace team's three goals.

So far as Vic Cromer, Municipal soccer delegate, was able to learn, the Plaza club, composed almost entirely of boys from East St. Louis, failed to appear because it had given up hope of winning. The weather was bad, but not so wet as to threaten cancellation. Four players did report, ready to don their uniforms and any suspension of the club would hardly include them, an official said.

So, the Santa Cruz club was credited with a victory and the small crowd that had assembled at Grounds One, looked elsewhere for entertainment. Some held fast, in spite of rain and a chill wind, and watched the second game in which the Zenthoefers and Spanish Youth teams played at scoreless tie.

Schultes Back Into Soccer Title, but Dohles, El Reys Promise to Enliven Playoffs

By Dent McSkimming

The local professional soccer league race that had lost much of its charm because of the wide gap between first and second division clubs has suddenly become a free-for-all.

In the concluding round of their second half-season, at Sportsman's Park yesterday, one of the leading clubs, the Schultes, was held to a 4-4 draw by the tailend Dohles, and the other leader, Simpkins, was spanked by the El Reys, 3-1. Had the Simpkins won they would have taken the half-season title.

That all adds up to a championship for the Schultes and promises a wide-open playoff series, starting Sunday. At that time, in the first round of a three-week tournament, the Schultes will oppose the rejuvenated El Reys and the Simpkins will engage the revived Dohles.

The chips, in the shape of prize monies, were in the center of the table as the teams played out their skein yesterday. Few fans who had watched since the opening of the season, last Oct. 10, expected anything but victories for the Schultes and Simpkins, clubs that were tied for the lead with 12 points.

And as Oscar Corona, Emil Munis and Hal Weigel scored to give the Schultes a 3-0 lead it became almost a certainty. But this Dohle club refused to fold up. It kept right on top of the ball, beating the slower Schulte players in the sprints, and giving as good as they received in the bumping matches. At half-time it was 3-2, and midway in the second period they had tied the score, thanks to a mis-kick by Jack Rooney.

The real proof of their fighting spirit, if not of their soccer finesse came when they regained an even position at 4-4 after Corona had put the Schultes ahead, 11 minutes before the end. Eddie Marsek, on a tear-away drive from 40 yards out, scored the tying tally.

Sensational work by two goaltenders contributed heavily to this surprise development. It was Mil Valdez who saved the situation for the Dohles in that opening game and it was Nick Riggio, playing his first game as a member of the El Reys who stopped the Simpkins.

In spite of heroic efforts of Charley Colombo, in moving all the way up from his customary defensive position to approach the penalty area of the Dohles, emphasized the desperate measures the Simpkins took to avoid defeat.

It was the vigorous defensive tactics of Charley Pozza, John Finn, Eddie Linehan and others of the El Rey backfield that dropped the Simpkins into second place, as much as the goals scored by Mike Duffy and Bill Fogarty.

A prime factor was the "stopper" maneuver of Willie Welsher who, as a wing halfback, dogged the steps of Gino Pariani. Seventy-five per cent of the Simpkins' scoring plays are initiated by Pariani but Welsher reduced Gino to mere ornament. Willie didn't give his own forwards much help but he certainly tore a gap in the Simpkins' line.

If the Dohles and El Reys can continue to approximate the form they displayed yesterday the league championship playoffs could be very entertaining.

Bob McEneny and Frank Adams have been released by the El Reys while the Dohles have turned Larry Kickham loose.

Field and Trap Shooting Century Ago

Capt. Bogardus Shot Through Thigh by Blast From Own Gun

(Installment No. 8 from the book "Field, Cover and Trap Shooting," written by Capt. A. H. Bogardus and published in 1878).

By Capt. A. H. Bogardus
Wing Shot Champion of the World.

DURING the first part of my residence in Illinois, although I was a good shot, as twenty brace of quail may serve to prove, I was nothing like as good as I have since become. Years of experience, shooting many months in each year, and nearly every day except Sundays, with much thought over the principles of shooting as an art, have enabled me to arrive at as much certainty as man attain to.

It may seem like boasting, but nevertheless I declare my conviction that I can shoot game-birds on the wing, in the field, as well as any man who lives or ever did live. I have had a challenge out for three years, offering to shoot against any man in the world, Western field-shooting, and another offering to shoot against any man in the world at pigeons.

Challenge Withdrawn.

The challenge for field-shooting has now been withdrawn, in consequence of the accident which befell me in 1872, when I was shot clean through the right thigh by my own gun when the muzzle touched me. It occurred in the way I shall now relate.

I was engaged in shooting prairie chickens in December, in the neighborhood of Elkhart. On the ninth of that month, when starting at break of day, I drove to Mr. Gillot's pastures in my buggy, and got there before it was quite light. I opened the gate, went into the pasture, and, getting into the buggy again, prepared for shooting.

The birds at that time were quite wild, and it was necessary to shoot them from the buggy.

My gun lay upon my knees, both barrels cocked, as I was stooping over to draw the blanket upon my knees, the right fore-wheel of the buggy fell into a deep rut. The gun canted, and before I could catch it the butt hit the hind wheel, and the right barrel went off, making a hole through my thigh. The gun was loaded with five drams of powder and an ounce of No. 6 shot.

It was a terrible wound, but happily most of the shot missed the thighbone. Some, however, hit it, but did not break it. They are in my thigh now.

Laid Up Four Months.

I drove home, was laid up four months, and am now well again. But the wound has had the following effect: I cannot walk as long as I used to before I received it. It is also very painful at times, so much so that I almost fear it is going to beark out again.

Now, under this altered state of things, it would hardly do for me to shoot against any man in the world, and see who could kill the most game in a week, say; but I will even now shoot against any man in the world, for a reasonable number of hours on a reasonable number of days, and take shot about, as game offers, one man to follow the shot of the other.

Grand Circuit to Remain At Fairmount Full Month

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP).—An Illinois court decision switching harness racing dates of Aurora Downs and Maywood Park will force a temporary retirement of the two tracks from the Grand Circuit, it was announced today.

Judge Charles A. O'Connor ruled last Friday that the Illinois Harness Racing Commission had wrongly awarded the May 9-July 16 dates to Maywood Park. He said Aurora Downs had applied first for the dates and under the law must be given first preference. A 60-day fall session starting Sept. 1 had been given Aurora Downs.

Officials of the Grand Circuit, major league of harness racing, said the June 6-18 Grand Circuit dates at Maywood would be transferred to Fairmount Park, Collinsville, Ill. Fairmount already has May 18 to June 4, thus the Grand Circuit will remain at the Collinsville track for one month.

The Oct. 10-22 Grand Circuit dates originally given Aurora Downs were nullified.

"This will give the horsemen penty of time to move stables from the Lexington, Ky., trots closing Oct. 8 to Hollywood Park, Calif.," a spokesman said. The Hollywood Grand Circuit dates are Oct. 24-Nov. 26.

"It is a big boost for the Western Harness Racing Association," the official added, "for now many more owners will have a chance to get to California."

Retirement of Maywood and Aurora reduces the number of Grand Circuit tracks this year from 16 to 14.

More and Bigger Fish for Opening Of Trout Season

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28 (UP)—Everything was fixed today but the weather as Missouri trout fishermen converged on three state parks for their big day tomorrow.

It's the opening of the special trout season. And rain or shine, a record attendance will be on hand at Montauk, Roaring River and Bennett Springs. Reservations long have been sold out.

If the weather is agreeable tomorrow, it will be the first time in several years that the trout men have had the elements on their side on an opening day.

They had blustry weather last year and rain and snow the year before.

It's too early to predict yet what tomorrow will bring, but the general forecast calls for rising temperatures in Missouri.

State Park Chief Abner Gwinn predicts a record catch on the opening day, regardless of the weather.

He said more and bigger fish had been released in all three parks this year.

Ponta Delgadas Wins In Overtime, 1 to 0

TIVERTON, R. I., Feb. 28 (AP)—Ponta Delgadas of Fall River, Mass., today held the New England National Amateur cup championship for the second successive year after defeating the Lincoln Club, also of fall River, 1-0, yesterday in an overtime game at Ponta Stadium.

English Women Grab Squash Racquets Title

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28 (AP)—Janet Morgan and Mrs. Alice Teague, England, won the United States women's squash racquets doubles championship yesterday by defeating the Connecticut pair of Betty Howe, New Haven, and Barbara Banks, Greenwich, 13-15, 18-14, 15-11, 18-15.

It was Miss Morgan's second American title. She won the United States singles championship a short time ago in Boston. Miss Morgan and Mrs. Teague held the No. 2 foreign seeding in the doubles, while the Misses Howe and Banks were unseeded.

St. Louis U. and Kentucky Get Official Bids for N.I.T. Meet at Garden

Acceptance Only Matter Of Formality

By Robert Morrison

Acceptance of a bid to defend the National Invitation Tournament basketball title awaited only formal action by St. Louis University this afternoon after the invitation had been announced in New York.

Blue and White Athletic Director Bill Durney said the University Athletic Council was being polled by telephone for official approval of the Billiken participation in the tournament.

"It is expected that the council will accept the invitation," Durney said. "We have yet to make a final courtesy contact with Asa Bushnell before we announce acceptance."

Bushnell, chairman of the committee in charge of selections for the tournament to be held next month in Madison Square Garden, said in New York that both St. Louis and Kentucky had been invited to enter.

Strong Assurance Teams Will Play.

Bushnell, the Associated Press reported,, said he had received no word of acceptance, but such announcements of invitations rarely are given unless there is strong assurance the teams will play.

Kentucky, beaten this season only by St. Louis in the Sugar Bowl tournament final, has been the No. 1 team in the country for several weeks, with St. Louis ranked in the No. 2 spot.

Kentucky has been anxious to meet St. Louis again and has been considering play in both the N.I.T. and the N.C.A.A. post-season tournaments. The N.I.T., in which eight teams will play, is scheduled for March 12-14-17-19.

Since the defeat by St. Louis, Kentucky has won 17 straight games for a 25-1 record. St. Louis, defeated for the second time by the Oklahoma Aggies Saturday night, has lost also to Ohio State for an 18-3 mark.

Billiken-Tulsa Contest at Gym

While Henry Iba, the Duke of Stillwater, and his Aggie legions move on to Peoria for another major Missouri Valley Conference battle with Bradley, St. Louis University turns tonight to a minor skirmish with Tulsa at the Billiken gymnasium.

A generous conqueror after his Oklahoma A. & M. had defeated for the second time this year its only contender for the Valley basketball championship, Iba said:

"Don't worry about that St. Louis team. It was a good team before and it's still a good team. We just got some good hops Saturday night and St. Louis some bad ones. St. Louis, I think, was over-ready for the game, surprisingly tense. That was a good new pattern it tried against us, but the boys broke off the pattern too often. They were just too anxious."

A victory at Peoria will clinch sole possession of the Valley title for the Aggies. In Iba's time the Aggies never have played at the tough home court of the Bradley Braves. But unless the Aggies break down they should manage to squeeze through.

Need One to Clinch.

After eight victories in conference play the Aggies need only to win one of their two remaining games to take the title. They play Wichita Thursday at Stillwater—nearly a cinch. But should they lose their last two games and St. Louis beat Tulsa tonight and Bradley at Peoria Saturday, the Bills would tie for the title.

As Iba says, however, the Aggies always "get awfully high for the top teams in the conference," so their eighth clear title in thirteen years should be a shoo-in.

Such a finish puts A. & M. in line for the N.C.A.A. postseason tournament series. Unfortunately the Aggies may be required by the Fifth District Selection Board to engage in a single playoff game with the Big Seven representative for the right to enter the western eliminations. This may depend on what happens in Big Seven games to come.

Three Toughies to Come.

With an 18-3 record so far, St. Louis must face Notre Dame at South Bend and Missouri at Kiel Auditorium March 10 in addition to Tulsa and Bradley. Despite the disappointing 40-37 defeat by the Aggies, St. Louis appears almost a certain bet to defend its National Invitation Tournament championship at season's end in New York.

Billiken Coach Eddie Hickey, now suffering from an 8-13 lopsidedness in his coaching duel with Iba, found the work of his reserves some consolation in the Aggie defeat.

"It has almost come to the point where we might have to make some changes in playing personnel," Hickey said. He didn't mean he was going to change the starting lineup, an honor valued by the regulars, but he had a point to make.

"We've always operated on the basis that who plays the most depends upon what's being accomplished."

Hickey believed All-America Ed Macauley's sub-par performance might have grown out of Ed's worry over defensive responsibilities against Bob Harris and Jack Shelton of the Aggies.

Call for the Undertaker.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 28 (UP)—Commissioner Doxie Moore of the National Basketball League said today he was going to sign Easy Ed Macauley for the professionals "despite anything his coach says."

Macauley's coach, Ed Hickey of St. Louis University, charged that Macauley's game against the Oklahoma Aggies was ruined because the boyish star was offered a tantalizing salary. The Aggies beat St. Louis 40-37 Saturday night.

Hickey said he would oppose Macauley's signing with the National League. "He'll go only over my dead body," he said.

To this, Moore said "maybe Hickey had better start looking up a good undertaker, because we're going after and we're going to get Macauley."

What, No Calumet Derby Hope in Sight?

You Cant' Believe Your Eyes!

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

It looks as though JOCKEY PAUL MILLER (right foreground) has gone back to long stirrups and straight-up riding. ... However, the rider has just lost his stirrups, which explains why he sits erect as he brings IDA A. home winner in a race at Sunshine Park.

WHAT'S going on in the Calumet barn? . . . Here it is only three days before the Flamingo Stakes will be run in Florida, and yet the country's most famous racing string hasn't a three-year-old that's being talked about.

The Flamingo is supposed to be the big Florida winter test for Derby candidates. . . . In the past, it has been the testing race for the Jones boys, Ben and Jimmy, who almost annually have shown a Derby factor in this stake.

The race, once known as the Florida Derby, has seen the Joneses send such famous contenders to the post as Lawrin, Technician, Faultless and Citation. . . . Annually, for years, Calumet horses have been Derby threats in the headlines by this time. . . . Four winter-trained Jones products won Derbies. . . . This year? . . . Well, name one three-year-old from the Calumet barn regarded today as a Derby menace.

The stable's General Manager Ben Jones expects to have two in Thursday's race, to run against Olympia, Ocean Drive and other well-seasoned thoroughbreds. . . . They are Ponder and De Luxe. . . . On what they've done this year and last they do not seem to rate. . . . But—you can't sell short anything the Jones boys send to the post. . . . We'll keep an eye on that closing Hialeah stake race.

They Don't All Buy Lemons, in Racing.

WHILE it's probable that many flops like Pericles and Broadway Limited have been peddled in the thoroughbred sales rings of the country, there have been plenty of Alsab and Stymie bargains, too. . . . One of these was purchased by I. J. Collins, Ohio former racing commissioner. . . . He has been dabbling in racing affairs for 40 years.

Retiring, he decided to buy himself a horse and he had his agent look for one. . . . The agent turned up with Vulcan's Forge, from the C. V. Whitney barn. . . . Collins's agent paid $80,000 for the Mahmoud-Burning Bright colt. . . . Saturday Vulcan forged to the front at the finish of the Santa Anita Handicap and paid himself out —in one race! . . . He won $102,000 for his owner.

* * *

The Calumet Stable, at this time, seems to be leaning on Coaltown and Faultless as its main breadwinners. . . . The Joneses will have to pull some new rabbitts out of the hat pretty soon.

Coaltown may be relied on to beat most of the handicap horses in the field. . . . But if the high winning record of the stable's last two seasons is to be repeated, Citation will have to be showing something. . . . He has recovered from a firing operation and is in easy training. . . . He'll be heard from in a few weeks.

Armed has done not too well, thus far in his comeback. . . . He has finished third in each of his two starts. . . . Probably he'll be campaigned at Gulfstream Park to determine if the old fellow really can do his stuff as in other days. . . . Even the Joneses have been skeptical of this. . . . Fervent is another good one that's not yet ready.

GETTING back to something less gloomy, it won't be long until Derby entries will be released and the winter book be available. . . . One early note seems to indicate that Myrtle Charm, top filly last year and rated on a par with Blue Peter and Mr. Busher as the outstanding juveniles, will not appear at the Derby starting gate as hoped.

Earl Combs told a Racing Form reporter that he was pleased with the way his charge has wintered at Combs's Spendthrift Farm. . . . "She is sound," he commented, "and has begun to furnish out. . . . Probably Jack Skirvin will take her up about April 1 and train her for summer stakes." . . . The Derby being held on the first Saturday in May, the statement seems to knock the Charm out of the Derby picture. . . . Nor has either Mr. Busher or Blue Peter been to the post this year, although both are in training.

The best three-year-old performers to date appear to be Olympia, Ocean Drive and Old Rockport. . . . Since the last-named beat both the other two in the Santa Anita Derby, he may win early favoritism in the Kentucky winter book. . . . But he'll not top Blue Peter or Mr. Busher in the opening future wagering, that's practically certain.

Vulcan's Forge Won't Start In Closing Feature at Anita

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—Santa Anita, graveyard of the favorites in its big racing stakes, offers one more prize and one more chance for an upset this week.

The track closes its 50-day meeting Saturday with the renewal of the San Juan Capistrano Handicap and its added purse of $50,000.

Nominations include some of the best routers in the business for the long mile and a half race, some of the disappointments in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Saturday—and the upset winner of $102,000 cash in that big race, Vulcan's Forge.

Vulcan's Forge, an $80,000 colt bred by C. V. Whitney in Kentucky, probably won't go in the Capistrano, however. He suffered minor heel cuts in the big 'cap and owner I. J. Collins, a kindly, down-to-earth sort of old gentleman who's been in racing for some 50 years, indicated he wants to save his colt for campaigns in the East and not risk serious injury this week.

Among those nominated for the San Juan, as turf talk even today swung back to the water show at Santa Anita Saturday, included Dinner Gong, Miss Grillo, Rialto, War Trophy, Stepfather, On Trust, Ace Admiral, Rose Beam, Manyunk, Jimmy John, Hank H., Chagin and others—a curious mixture of distance animals and the so-called stakes elite of the track.

Selles in 3rd Place In Women's Bowling

There'll be a new champion in the Class A division of the Women's City Bowling Tournament. The Selles, who won the title last year, could do no better than 2651, good for third place in yesterday's round at the Sports Bowl. The Californias are leading with 2707, followed by the Oaks, 2656.

Norma Erlinger, aided by a handicap of 72 pins, totaled 599 to take over first place in the singles, while Muriel Foelsch and Pat Harting are leading in the doubles with 1129. The B-Hives of Waterloo, with 2467, are tops in the Class B team competition.

Flyers Beaten, Miss Chance to Climb in Race

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 28 (AP)—The Rhode Island Reds notched their 40th victory of the American Hockey League season by defeating the St. Louis Flyers, 6 to 3, last night before a 6181 crowd at the Auditorium.

The loss cost the Flyers a chance to advance in the tight battle for Western Division playoff positions.

Jack McGill, who paced the Reds attack with two goals suffered a bruised back when he crashed into the boards after colliding with Johnny Mariucci, St. Louis captain, in the final period. He was replaced by Chuck Scherza, Providence utility man.

McGill's two goals and Roger Bedard's tally gave the Reds a 3-to-1 first-period lead, but the Flyers pulled into a 3-all tie during the 13th minute of the second stanza. Pete Kapusta regained the lead for the homesters on his own rebound at 19:09. The Flyers outshot the Reds, 22 to 6, in this stanza, but Harvey Bennett's brilliant work in goal limited them to two tallies.

Providence.	Pos.	St. Louis.
Bennett	G	Almas
Michaluk	R. D.	Olson

Leswick Sparks Barons.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Pete Leswick, one of the smallest players in the American Hockey League, is sparking the Cleveland Barons' bid for the circuit's Western Division title.

Leswick, only five feet, six and one half inches tall, has scored six goals in the Barons last three games to boost his output in this department to 37, one more than his previous high for a single season.

The tiny mite scored four times over the weekend as the Barons divided a home-and-home series with the first-place Indianapolis Capitols. Leswick netted twice in the Barons' 6-4 defeat Saturday night and followed up with two goals and one assist in their 5-1 triumph yesterday.

The Baron triumph cut the Caps' margin to three points. The Barons, however, remained in a second-place tie with the Pittsburgh Hornets. The Hornets bowed, 4-3, to the Providence Reds Saturday, but downed the Buffalo Bisons, 5-2, last night.

Weeb Ewbank Quits As Washington Coach

Wilbur (Weeb) Ewbank, football coach who came to Washington University two years ago to direct the Bears' football team under the Hilltop "amateur" program, announced this afternoon that he had accepted an assistant's job with the Cleveland Browns of the All-America Conference.

Ewbank was the second Washington U. coach to take a new job within two days. His assistant, Frank (Red) Cumiskey, quit the Bears yesterday to become an assistant to Bill Edwards, recently named head coach at Vanderbilt.

The Bear head coach, who had directed two post war Hilltop elevens to unusually good seasons, said he was taking the professional job "as a matter of advancement."

"It was not a matter of money, nor the athletic policy at Washington University," Ewbank said. "I've enjoyed my work here and I think Dr. Compton (Washington University chancellor) has the right idea. It is a pity that all schools can't operate under a similar policy."

Ewbank learned the "T" formation under the Cleveland coach, Paul Brown, while an assistant to Brown at the rGeat Lakes Naval Training Station during the war.

"This is an opportunity that in justice to myself I can't turn down," Ewbank said, adding that he would either become a backfield coach or a tackle and end coach with the professional club.

Ewbank earlier this year had been approached for college coaching jobs elsewhere. His thorough knowledge and teaching of the game had produced a Washington U. record of nine victories in 10 games last season. In the first postwar season at Washington, Ewbank's Bears won five of eight games.

"This move has been in the making for some time," Ewbank said, "and the school has not been caught unprepared."

Cumiskey, a 1937 graduate of Ohio State, was one of Ewbank's most important assistants. He will depart for Nashville, Tenn., to get acquainted with the Commodores of Vanderbilt before spring practice starts March 21.

The departure of Ewbank and Cumiskey leaves the coaching staff represented by Erwin Uteritz, backfield coach and Les Avery and Frank Noble, general assistants. Scheduled to start organization for spring practice today, the Bears had lost most of their important stars in the backfield and many in the line.

Basket Team at Fulton.

Washington University took a 16-man basketball squad to Fulton, Mo., this morning for a return game with Westminster College there tonight. The Bears won the first game, 52-38.

With a season record of 11-9 so far, the Bears have a chance to win three in a row and set up the final game of the campaign against Indiana State here Thursday night.

Collegian Triumphs in Skates Title Event

BOSTON, Feb. 28 (AP) — Al Broadhurst won the mile and placed second in the two-mile event to capture the New England indoor speed-skating championship yesterday over a field of 44 competitors at the Boston arena before a 2150 crowd.

Second place was shared by four other contestants with 30 points each. They were Clayton Meade of Jackson Heights, N.Y., winner of the senior men's 880-yard race; Bobby Jahn of Bogota, N.J., winner of the three-quarter-mile race; Edgar Dame of Revere, winner of the two-mile, and Broadhurst's younger brother, Frank, who captured three third-places.

Twenty-year-old Marian Davis of Flushing, N.Y., successfully defended her New England women's indoor speed-skating crown by winning the 880- and 440-yard events. Miss Davis, who also holds the New York indoor championship, barely won the trophy in a post-event skate-off with Myra Shapiro of Brooklyn.

Sweden Protests U. S. Hockey Team's Rock 'em, Sock 'em Style of Play

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 28 (AP)—The rock-'em, sock-'em style of hockey, so popular in the United States and Canada, is strictly taboo in peaceful Sweden and other points on the continent.

The United States amateur ice hockey team, currently touring Sweden, has been sharply criticized the past three days for its rough play.

Chief agitator has been Gerry Kilmartin of Providence, R. I. Kilmartin was envolved in a fist fight last Friday and again yesterday in the Americans' 4-2 triumph over the Doedertaelje Sporting Club.

The play of the Americans yesterday caused the Swedish Ice Hockey Association to send a polite protest to the American Embassy on the conduct of the United States players. The Swedish body also cabled the American Hockey Association requesting that "measures" be taken against the team.

Two for Co-Eds.

Helen Stephens's Co-eds had a successful weekend in Illinois with basketball victories at Mounds, 61-48, over the Rhodes-Burford team Saturday and at McClure, 55-54, over the Woodmen of the World Aces yesterday. Miss Stephens scored 30 points in the first game and 28 in the second. The Co-eds, who now have won 20 and lost 21, will play at Martinsville, Ill., Thursday.

Chicago Bowlers Sweep 4 Classics

Two Events End in Tie For Honors

When it comes to picking up the big money in bowling tournaments, leave it to Chicago tenpinners. They made a clean sweep of first prizes in the four major events which ended on St. Louis district drives early this morning.

And in two of the number, there was the oddity of two Windy City keglers finishing in a tie for first place. This happened in the Waibel and in the Playdium event in East St. Louis.

But the oddity in the Waibel did not end with the tie. Buddy Bomar and Ned Day, who finished with 1711, are teammates on the match game champion Tavern Pales of Chicago. And when they put together their big counts they were rolling on the same alleys. That 1711, one of the top scores to win the Waibel in several years, showed an average of better than 213 for the two ex-match game kings.

Day had games of 181, 240, 199, 266, 180, 224, 205 and 216, while Bomar's counts were 214, 194, 193, 223, 269, 178, 187 and 253. Each collected $1750.

In the Perkins, it was Fred Fikes and Harry Lippe, two other Windy Cityans, who shared first place with identical totals of 1305. Fikes counted 212, 222, 199, 205, 224 and 243, while Lippe's individual scores were 190, 212, 223, 199, 214 and 267. For their efforts each kegler received $900.

Not satisfied with tieing for first in the Waibel, Day carried off first prize of $500 and a trophy in the Kaley classic with a total of 910, an average of better than 227. And to make the Chicago first place sweep complete, Joe Kristoff won the DuBowl four-game event with 877. He had games of 235, 223, 226 and 196 to win $1000.

The best showing for a St. Louisan in the competitions was made by Nelson Burton, former St. Louis match-game champion, who totaled 875 to tie for second place with Garner Wells of Fort Worth in the Kaley tournament. Vic Bliss, another Mound City star, was third at the Playdium with 1299, while Fred Moll's 837 netted him third money at the DuBowl.

Top finisher for St. Louis in the Waibel was Ray Bluth, who tied for fifth place with Roy Bade of Los Angeles with 1688, good for $300.

A total of 388 bowlers competed in the Waibel and the prize fund totaled $9700. Marty Marino of Jersey City collected $250 for his 1659, which was high for the first week; George Paul Jr. of Chicago won the 50 to 300-mile prize, while the one to the bowler traveling 300 miles or more went to Earl Johnson, 19-year-old Tacoma, Wash., shooter with 1604. Ted Menze and Ray Caniglia of Cleveland tied for high single, each hitting 267.

New York Five Rolls to Second In A.B.C. Meet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Feb. 28 (UP)—Teams from New York were running one-two today at the top of the five-man standings in the American Bowling Congress tournament at Convention Hall.

Ticknor Furniture of Portland, N.Y., pulled into second place last night with a 2877 series. However, the American Bowling and Billiard team of New York City still was the pacemaker with a 91-pin spread over Ticknor.

The De Luxe Weld team of Chicago, which meets Tavern Pales of Chicago for the national match title later this year, failed to make an impression in the team standings, turning in a comparatively weak 2817 score.

In the only other change yesterday, Billy Williams and Bob Crawford of Detroit rolled into fifth place in the doubles division with a 1254 tally.

Little Pat's Nephew Gains Upset Victory

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 28 (AP) Little Pat's Nephew, owned by A. L. Derby of Wichita, Kan., and driven by Jimmy Cruise, staged an upset photo finish victory in the featured free for all mile pace last night at Sportsman's Park. The brown gelding went the distance in 2:05, equaling the track record and paid $16.20.

Cruise became the track's leading driver by one point through his horse's victory. Clint Hodges, who drove Mr. Morris Scott, is now second.

The featured mile classified trot was also an upset, with Barrage, owned by Chris H. Veck, Petaluma, Calif., winning in 2:09 2-5. Barrage paid $33. Second was Put 'N Take, owned by A. B. Hanson, Santa Maria, Calif.; and third was Simon Pure, owned by L. D. Whitehurst and W. Taylor, Pomona, Calif.

Riggs and Budge Win From Kramer, Segura

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Feb. 28 (UP) -- Tennis Professionals Don Budge and Bobby Riggs took three of five sets yesterday from Jack Kramer and Pancho Segura to win a $1000 purse donated by the Racquet Club. The score of the match was 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

In the first day of the two-day club tourney Saturday Johnny Faunce and Kramer defeated Riggs and Segura 6-3, 6-1 and took a $500 prize.

Lakers, Bullets Rewrote B.A.A. Record Books

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Minneapolis helped rewrite the Basketball Association of America record book during the weekend, but it lost ground in Western Division flag chase. Five marks were bettered.

The record breaking came Saturday night at Baltimore where the Lakers edged the Bullets, 115-114, in two overtimes. Minneapolis sank 51 of 63 free throws; the old mark was 43 of 51 by Washington. Ninety-seven fouls were called; the old mark was 91 in a game between Washington and Rochester. Seven Baltimore players fouled out; the old mark was six by Fort Wayne. Fifty-five fouls were called against Baltimore; Rochester held the old mark of 46. The total score was 10 points better than the old mark of 219 by Providence and Chicago.

Every record that was broken had been set earlier this season.

The Saturday performance took so much out of the Lakers, however, that they succumbed meekly at Fort Wayne last night, 74-50. George Mikan, who had scored 53 points Saturday night, managed only 14 last night.

Rochester, meanwhile, beat Boston, 64-59, Saturday night and now leads the Lakers by a game and a half.

The Minneapolis-Fort Wayne game was the only action in the circuit last night. In other games Saturday New York defeated Indianapolis, 81-76; St. Louis edged Providence, 93-90, and Chicago whipped Washington, 103-90. Washington now holds a nine-and-one-half game lead in the Eastern Division.

Butler Gains Victory In Dog Sled Derby

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 28 (UP)—Veteran Alaska dog-sledder Jake Butler won his third-consecutive 75-mile dog-sled race yesterday, covering the course 24 minutes faster than a pretty 26-year-old housewife who finished second.

Butler, who has won both previous annual races, set a new record for the last 25-mile lap and took home $1700 in prize money. His elapsed time for the three laps was six hours, 54 minutes.

Second place went to Mrs. Natalie Norris, wife of Alaska dog breeder Earl F. Norris. Mrs. Norris, the first woman to place in a major Alaskan dog race, took over when her husband became ill before the race began.

Tiger Scout Killed In Crossing Accident

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP)—A scout for the Detroit Tigers Baseball Club was killed Saturday night in a grade crossing accident at nearby Peckville.

The victim was Marcus McDonough of Jessup, Pa., a prominent sports figure in this area.

Deputy Coroner W. J. Barrett said McDonough's car was demolished by a fast freight at Decker's bridge crossing.

Four Marks Set In Y.M.H.A. Swim

Carol Pence, Olympic swimmer and former Y.W.H.A. record-breaker, was defeated by a teammate on the Lafayette, Ind., Club as four records were broken yesterday in the fourth annual Y.M.H.A. - Y.W.H.A. invitational swim.

Miss Pence, winner in the 100-yard breaststroke, was beaten by Dorie Weber in the 220-yard free style event. The Lafayette No. 1 team of Miss Weber, Kay Manuel, Ann Champ and Jane Jacobs set one of the records with a time of 1:33 in the 160-yard free style relay. The old record, by the Y.W.H.A. in 1942, was 1:36.4.

Tooty Boor of the Lafayette Club broke the 60-yard free-style mark for girls in the 15-16-year-old class with a time of 47.4 to better the mark of 48 seconds made by Carol Powers last year. Miss Powers was third in yesterday's race.

The St. Louis University team of Jim McKenna, Lynn Durbin, Jim Quinlivan and Joe McDonald broke the Washington University 1948 record of 2:04 in the 240-yard free style relay with a time of 2:03.5.

Alan Rapperport of the host team set the fourth record, 30.4 in the 60-yard free style event for boys 15 to 16. The old mark was 31.4 seconds.

Harris Wins Baseball Players Golf Tourney; Joe Medwick Fourth

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Pete Harris, who retired from professional baseball some 20 years ago, yesterday won the tenth annual National Baseball Players' tournament with a 36-hole total of 142.

Harris, a "twice-a-month" golfer who'd rather go fishing, carded a 70—two under par—to add to his opening round of 72 and finished nine strokes ahead of big Paul Derringer, former Cincinnati Reds pitcher, who came in with 79 for 151.

Paul Ryder, former Tallahassee (Fla.) player, was third at 153 over the 6326-yard Miami Country Club course.

Three players tied for fourth at 154. They were: Joe Medwick, former St. Louis Cardinals player, who now manages Miami Beach in the Florida International League; Heinie Manush, former Washington and Detroit outfielder, and Jack Russell, former Washington and Boston Red Sox pitcher.

Kansas City Driver Wins Outboard Race

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Sid Street of Kansas City, Mo., guided his swift inboard racing hydroplanes to two victories yesterday in the thirty sixth annual Biscayne Bay power boat regatta.

He won both the 135- and 225-cubic-inch classes in rough weather that caused three spills during the afternoon.

An estimated 10,000 people watching the final day of the regatta off Rickenbacker causeway saw two Miamians tossed into the water when their boats collided in the first heat of the D and E runabout class. The drivers, Bill Price and Johnny Reid, escaped with minor injuries. C. A. Widenhouse of Concord, N.C., spilled in the first heat of the 225-cubic-inch class, but was not hurt.

Former Trainer Dies.

VOTE CASE VOIDED IN BUTLER COUNTY; WITNESSES MUM

Those Called by U.S. Refuse to Testify on Ground of Possible Incrimination.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Feb. 28—Indictments charging two officers of the Butler County Republican Committee, the county clerk of Butler county and six Negro voters with conspiracy to violate the election laws in 1946 were dismissed here today by United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen after Government witnesses refused to testify on grounds of possible incrimination. The dismissals cleared the docket of the southeast Missouri vote fraud cases growing out of the general election of Nov. 5, 1946.

Defendants were William F. Priest, president, and H. P. (Boss) Bennett, treasurer, of the Butler County Republican Committee; Butler County Clerk George Collins Jr.; and Jannie Barnes, S. S. Smith, Virgie Fairchild, Josh Allen, Richard Hill and Will Jefferson, janitor at the Butler county courthouse.

Dismissal of the indictments was on the motion of Special Assistant Attorney General Lafayette Broome of Washington, who told the court: "Something has happened," apparently in the last three days, which has changed the viewpoint of the witnesses." Broome today polled key witnesses among the 65 who appeared, and reported that all claimed Constitutional immunity on grounds of possible incrimination.

Broome said he understood a handbill had been circulated over the weekend among the witnesses, telling them how to claim Constitutional privileges and avoid testifying. "Those we polled said all the witnesses had decided on the same course," he told the court. The witnesses were subpenaed last week by United States deputy marshals and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, at considerable expense.

The indictments, voted by a federal grand jury at St. Louis a year ago, charged a conspiracy to violate the election laws through payments of money for votes in the 1946 general election. One count of the indictment against Priest, Bennett and Collins charged the payment of more than $8000 in amounts of $1 and $2.

Last May the Government's case against three Sikeston Democrats, charged with conspiracy to buy votes in the 1946 election, was dismissed here by Judge Hulen after Negro witnesses, who reportedly saw election day payoffs of $1 per vote, either refused to testify, or suffered lapses of memory. Some of the same witnesses had appeared before the grand jury which voted the indictment.

Defendants freed last May were, Charles L. Blanton Jr., editor of the Sikeston Standard; N. E. Fuchs, automobile dealer, and Scott County Collector Grover C. Baker.

KILLS WIFE, BURIES HER WITH LIVE BABY IN NUDIST CAMP

FAIRFAX, Va., Feb. 28 (UP)—Charles F. Holober, jewelry clerk, confessed today, police said, that he shot his wife, Frances, three times and buried her in a nudist camp, then buried his infant daughter, June, alive when his weapon jammed.

Holober, 40 years old, was arrested on a murder warrant outside his home in Washington several hours after searchers came on the shallow grave. For a while he himself had helped the searching party.

Detectives quoted Holober as saying he and his wife, 37, who was expecting a second child, had quarreled much since their marriage in December 1947.

The victims had been missing since Friday. Their bodies were found in an 18-inch grave late yesterday.

2 EX-CONVICTS ADMIT TAKING $855 IN 5 TAVERN BURGLARIES

Two former convicts admitted yesterday that they had taken a total of $855 in five tavern burglaries. They had been arrested Saturday for questioning in connection with a burglary early Friday of a tavern at 1825 Pestalozzi street.

Donald W. Richardson, who gave an address in the 1800 block of Crittenden street, admitted that he had robbed the place. George Gerren, who gave an address in the 1400 block of Monroe street, admitted that he had robbed a tavern at 4212 Virginia avenue twice, and had committed burglaries at taverns at 5552 South Kingshighway and 1982 Arsenal street last fall.

Both men said Gerren was not involved in the Pestalozzi street burglary, but he had attempted to cash a payroll check stolen from the place, police said. Gerren was sitting in an automobile stolen last Feb. 1 from Gilbert Farrell, 5220 Pauline place, when he was arrested.

6 BAKERIES CLOSE WHEN STRIKE IS CALLED AT ONE

Teamsters Order Walkout—Utility Strike Threat Is Ended in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Six major baking companies, which make 70 per cent of New York City's wrapped bread and cake, have stopped production.

A strike order against the Continental Baking Co.—effective last midnight—led the five other companies to suspend operations yesterday.

The strike was called by Local 550 of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters after negotiations in a wage dispute broke down.

Meanwhile, the threat of a 28,000-man utility strike—which a CIO union said would have made a "dead city" of New York—was canceled last night.

BIG NAVY CARRIER PUT OUT OF ACTION IN A-BOMB 'ATTACK'

By JAMES J. STREBIG

WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET ON CARIBBEAN MANEUVERS, Feb. 28 (AP)—Surface ship men were unhappy today over highly successful atom bomb and submarine attacks on a fast carrier task force.

The Navy's "most realistic" war games, now in a regroup phase, have revealed weak defensive spots in the tactics that smashed the Japanese fleet. Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the Atlantic fleet, had the bad news yesterday in messages from combat units operating north and west of Puerto Rico.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt, super-carrier representing an investment of about $200,000,000 was put out of action in two successive phases of the six-week-long exercises. A snorkel or "guppy" submarine, able to stay under the surface for weeks at a time, pumped torpedoes into the 45,000-ton carrier, base for as many as 130 aircraft, and officially "sank" it. Ignoring its demise, the F.D.R. took its position in a triangle of carriers which included the Kearsarge and Leyte, and headed for a strike on Vieques island.

But an "enemy" force of three patrol bombers, one carrying a parachute flare to represent an "A" bomb, roared in and dumped their load from 21,000 feet without being intercepted.

A destroyer escorting the F. D. R. was "sunk," and the big carrier itself was ruled to have suffered severe damage and loss of personnel.

Blandy said the "atom bomb" attack was "well delivered," and he attributed its success in part to sloppy radar search efforts by the task force and in part to the cleverness of the attackers.

AFL SAYS INFLATION DANGER GRADUALLY IS DISAPPEARING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor said yesterday "a gradual and orderly decline in high prices is greatly needed now to increase buying power of workers and other consumers and bring them back into the market." The danger of inflation is gradually disappearing, the federation said in its monthly survey of the economic outlook.

"The need at present is rather to make up the serious lag in workers' buying power so that business can reach a normal peacetime balance without sliding off into a recession," it said.

The union organization characterized the present business situation as "precarious." Unemployment could increase, or inflationary policies "might check the normal downward adjustment of prices," the AFL said. "Much depends on the wisdom of union leaders, business executives, Government officials," it added.

ALL-WEATHER JET FIGHTER DEVELOPED FOR AIR FORCE

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—The new Northrop XF-89 all-weather fighter plane is capable of speeds in the 600-mile-an-hour class and has been named the "Scorpion," the United States Air Force disclosed yesterday.

Test flown last Aug. 16, the Scorpion has undergone tests at Muroc, Calif., Air Force base. Northrop Aircraft, Inc., developer of the thin-winged fighter, is working on 48 production models of it for the Air Force.

POLICE TAKE WEAPONS OF 15 IN YOUTH GANG

A shotgun, a rifle and a pistol were taken from 15 Negroes in a poolroom at 1815 Franklin avenue last night by police, acting on a tip that the "Eighteenth street gang," was "out to get" a rival gang, the Barracudas.

Two Negro detectives learned of the proposed fight last night and went to the poolroom. They arrested 13 Negroes between the ages of 17 and 29, one of whom had a pistol in his pocket. Police said members of the Barracuda gang were blamed for beating a member of the Eighteenth street gang recently.

A 16-year-old youth in the group had a shotgun concealed in the leg of his trousers and another, the same age, had a .32 caliber rifle, which he tried to hide under his coat. After the weapons were confiscated, these two youths were placed in custody of their parents. Both said they had borrowed the guns "for protection."

This was the first activity of either of the teenage gangs since last July 12 when a 17-year-old Negro boy was shot four times in street-corner warfare. Prior to that, police said, two youths were wounded by bullets in a pitched battle in the 3000 block of Rutger street.

Grangs of youthful Negroes were organized during the war years, police said. Immediately following the war police were called frequently to quell disturbances and street fights. In recent months, however, there has been comparatively little heard from the groups, which are known as the Pirates, the Crusaders and the Hornets. Police attributed the peace to the inauguration of a recreational program at Buder playground, California avenue and Hickory street, and other playgrounds in the area.

DRIVER GIVES UP, BOOKED IN INJURIES TO 3 ON STREET

A warrant will be sought today against Michael A. Carparella, 2809 Semple avenue, who reported to police on Saturday that he believed he was the driver whose automobile struck three persons in front of the Sears, Roebuck Co store, 1408 North Kingshighway, Friday night.

Injured by an automobile, which failed to stop, were Charles H. Lorenz, a painter, 425 Shirley avenue, Ferguson, his wife, Evelyn, and Marlene Niehaus, 11 years old, 5046 Ridge avenue. Lorenz suffered fractures of the pelvis and legs and head injuries. His wife suffered multiple contusions and a head injury. Both are in serious condition in City Hospital. Marlene Niehaus was treated for contusions of the leg.

Carparella appeared at Penrose Police Station with his attorney Saturday and said he felt a thud when driving ni front of the Sears Roebuck store Friday night, but saw no one, and believed he had struck a depression in the street. After reading about the accident he examined his machine, he stated, and found dents on the hood. He added that he carried liability insurance and wanted to "take care of the injured persons."

Police booked Carparella suspected of careless driving, and leaving the scene of an accident, and will apply for a warrant on the latter charge. Carparella, an iron worker, was released on bond.

FOUR CHILDREN IN FAMILY TREATED FOR FOOD POISONING

Four children were treated yesterday at City Hospital for food poisoning which their father, Bernard Unnerstall, attributed to sausage they ate for supper Saturday at their home, 3922 North Twentieth street.

The children are Mary Ann Unnerstall, 14 years old; Robert, 13; Marlene, 11, and Geraldine, 3 years old. Mary Ann and Robert remained in the hospital last night. Mr. and Mrs. Unnerstall and two other children were not affected.

STEEL MILL OUTPUT 100 PCT. OR BETTER FOR SEVENTH WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP) — Steel mill operations were estimated at 100.5 per cent of capacity today, tying a 1943 record for sustained operations at 100 per cent or better.

It was the seventh successive week that output has held at the 100 per cent or better mark.

KILLER OF THREE IS SHOT TO DEATH; TRAPPED IN CABIN

Said He Would Not Be Taken Alive—Fails in Boast He Would Kill Two Officers.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 28 (AP)—The vicious killer, Bill Ray Gilbert, made good his boast he never would be taken alive. He fell dead before police gunfire here last night.

He failed in his second boast—"I'll take two officers with me when I die," but did shoot a policeman three times in the leg.

The fight with police ended a crime foray in which Gilbert and a prison friend, George Adolph Schmid, 22, kidnaped a Phoenix woman, killed the three Californians, and returned to Arizona with a plan to kill the state prison warden and other officials.

Companion is Caught.

Schmid was captured without resistance by two city policemen here early yesterday as he tried to reach his mother's home. He was armed with two pistols.

Police surrounded a tourist court cabin last night when the operator, C. A. Jensen, reported a man he recognized as Gilbert had registered in the afternoon.

Two policemen pounded on the cabin door and ordered Gilbert to come out. The answer was a blast of pistol fire from the cabin's attic. Detective Ed Langevin fell wounded. Police poured bullets through the thin cabin walls.

Raises Empty Pistol.

As police held their fire, Gilbert came to the door. He threw it open and, blood streaming down his naked body, stood swaying in the glare of police lights

"Raise your hands," Sgt. Orme Moorhead shouted.

Gilbert's companion, Schmid, and the woman they kidnaped, Florence Margaret Chisholm, 31, Phoenix, already were being taken to California when he was killed. Schmid is charged with murder. Miss Chisholm is held as a material witness.

Schmid, in a statement to District Attorney Jerome D. Kavanaugh of San Bernardino, Calif., said he and Gilbert last Tuesday abducted Miss Chisholm from the riding stable she managed here.

Three Shot to Death.

They took her with them to Needles, where they joined acquaintances of Gilbert. On Wednesday, at a nearby ranch Ernest Winsted, 21, Needles city employe; his wife, Frances, 22, and Willis Pugh, 70, were shot to death.

Schmid said Gilbert believed Winsted was "wise to us."

Miss Chisholm told police that Gilbert shot Mrs. Winsted when she jumped in front of her husband as Gilbert threatened him with a pistol. As Winsted turned and ran, the woman said, Gilbert fired several shots at him and Schmid fired once. Then, she said, Gilbert shot Pugh between the eyes.

Escaped From Jail.

District Attorney Kavanaugh Gilbert apparently believed Winsted had put a policeman on his trail. Gilbert had escaped from the Kingman (Ariz.) jail three weeks earlier.

Schmid deserted Gilbert when posted as a lookout on the desert about 30 miles east of here Friday. Hiding in daylight and walking at night, he made his way to Phoenix.

"I figured it was a good time to leave," Schmid told police. "I thought Gilbert was crazy."

Schmid said Gilbert and he returned to Arizona after the California killings to carry out Gilbert's plan to kill Warden Lon E. Walters of the state prison and several other officials.

Gilbert and Schmid were released from the prison late last year after serving sentences for robbery.

POLICE DEPARTMENT OPENS ANNUAL REFRESHER COURSE

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

The second annual Commanding Officers' Conference of the St. Louis Police Department opened today at the Police Academy, Twelfth and Spruce streets. The conference, a refresher course which will be given to all members of the Police Department in subsequent conferences, will continue through Friday.

At today's meeting Morris Shenker, an attorney, discussed "Cases as Viewed by the Defense Attorney," and Assistant Circuit Attorneys Edward Dowd Jr. and James Connor spoke on "Cases as Viewed by the Prosecuting Attorney."

Other scheduled speakers were William Rand, president of Monsanto Chemical Co.; Gerald B. Norris, agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here, and Lt. Kenneth Johnson of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

DECISION ON TRANSIT PASSES ATTACKED BY PROGRESSIVE

Herschel Walker, chairman of a local Progressive party committee against increased streetcar and bus fares, today attacked the action of the State Public Service Commission in granting permission to the St. Louis Public Service Co. to eliminate weekly passes.

Walker said thousands had signed petitions against the proposed increase to a 12-cent fare, which was not granted by the commission. "We could not afford a 12-cent fare, and we cannot afford a straight 10-cent fare," he said. "Our wives have lost their shoppers' passes, our children have lost the weekend children's pass; but the $1.50 pass at least must stay."

RAILS, STEELS BOUGHT, LEADING MARKET UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP) — The stock market moved ahead briskly today in light trading.

Gains of fractions to more than a point were made under the urge of only moderate buying interest. At the close, prices were at their highest points of the day among the leaders.

Steels and rails provided leadership, but advances were scattered widely among individual issues throughout the list.

Airlines were somewhat backward, a reaction from the gains of last Saturday. Utilities were mixed but the plus signs outnumbered the losses by a small margin.

The upward movement started out with the opening of the market and made headway until midday when some of the leaders slipped back from their best points of the day.

Curtiss-Wright went ahead in a show of activity after directors decided to ask stockholders to approve the purchase of common stock up to $4,202,152 at the lowest prices offered not to exceed $11 a share during 1949.

Paramount held to the higher side most of the day after plans were disclosed for new financing for two new companies to handle film distribution and theater ownership.

M-K-T preferred was the third most actively traded issue, 12,700 shares selling with close of 21, up ⅛, and the common was twelfth most active, 5200 shares selling, and closing at 5, down ⅛.

Stocks in the curb market were mostly unchanged to higher in quiet trading. Up at times were Alles & Fisher, Sunbeam Corp., American Light & Traction, Consolidated Mining & Smelting, Cities Service, and Babcock & Wilcox.

In the bond market, railway issues were generally improved but trading was slow. U. S. Government issues in the over the counter market were unchanged.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

Many liens posted rises ranging from fractions to 2 points in carrying along the recovery trend that developed Saturday after two days of sharp declines. There were twice as many gainers as losers late.

Selling pressure uncovered weak spots in New York's Third Avenue transit system bonds. The adjustment 5s were down 1½ at one time at a new 1948-49 low of 33 on turnover of 215,000. On lighter trading, the 4s also dropped 1½ at 61½, a new low.

C.C.C. BUYING OF CASH WHEAT LIFTS FUTURES

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP) — Wheat forged ahead for fair-sized gains on the Board of Trade today, giving a lift to everything else. The May contract, up around 2 cents at one time, set the market's pace.

Mill buying and short-covering aided May wheat. The upturn followed announcement that the Government had made large purchases of cash wheat late last week.

May corn also was strong at times, reflecting a good demand for the cash grain. Dealers noted that corn bookings on a to-arrive basis totaled 50,000 bushels, largest for one day in several weeks.

The Kansas City CCC office today was bidding 38c over the May future for wheat at the Gulf of Mexico, down 3c from last week. The bid was for February delivery. After February, the bid was 1c a bushel less for each 15-day period through April 15.

"Now I Can SLEEP"

"Coffee nerves used to keep me tossing and turning. But since switching to POSTUM, I sleep soundly—and friends have commented on my improved appearance."

SCIENTIFIC FACTS: Both coffee and tea contain caffein—a drug—a nerve stimulant. So, while many people can drink coffee or tea without ill-effect—others suffer nervousness, indigestion, sleepless nights. But POSTUM contains no caffein—nothing that can possibly keep you awake!

U.S. URGED TO RELAX TIME PAYMENT RULES

Retail Credit Association Favors Longer Period to Prevent 'Undue Strain.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The National Retail Credit Association urged the Government yesterday to give people more time to pay for installment purchases.

The association, in a statement, proposed new terms which it said would let persons of average income buy necessities while paying debts "without imposing upon them undue strain."

For one thing, the 25,000-member organization proposed that the present one-third down payment be continued for automobiles with the rest payable in 24 months.

Under Federal Reserve Board regulation W, if the balance after the one-third down payment is less than $1000, it must be paid off in 15 months. If the balance is more than $1000, it must be paid within 18 months.

It also urged that the down payment requirement of 20 per cent on furniture, radios, television sets, washing machines, refrigerators and similar items, be reduced to 15 per cent. It proposed the payment time be extended from 15 to 18 months on purchases of $1000 or less and to 24 months where the unpaid balance is over $1000.

The board of governors of the Federal Reserve system is reported to have the question of possible modification of the controls under study. They were put into effect originally to apply a brake to some of the buying demand last fall that was forcing prices upward.

JEWELRY SALESMAN'S AUTO RECOVERED; TAKEN IN HOLDUP

An automobile of the Bauman-Massa Jewelry Co., 710 Olive street, which was stolen by robbers who took $368 in cash and jewelry valued at $2370 from a salesman of the company in University City last Friday, was recovered yesterday by police at 312 North Twelfth boulevard.

The automobile was used by Richard A. Schoninger, a salesman for the company, and was at his home at 6810 Waterman avenue last Friday when two robbers went into the house and held up Schoninger. Value of the stolen jewelry was first reported to be $4200. Since that time, however, the estimate has been revised downward.

Police said they would examine the recovered automobile for fingerprints.

the period of improvising policy in Germany is coming to an end. Because the United States Government has had no really clear objectives in Germany since the war, policy has necessarily been made on the spot by Clay, in response to the actual situation as he has found it.

In the process, Clay has been forced to decide what sort of Germany we do NOT want. We do not want a Western Germany kept in a permanent colonial status, at or near the starvation level. We do not want a Germany in constant danger of being drawn into the Kremlin's orbit. And we do not want to be forced out of Berlin by ruthless Soviet pressure.

These decisions have already taken effect. Western Germany is coming back. The Russians have been frustrated in their efforts, first to gain control of all Germany, and second to force the Western powers out of Berlin. Having decided, more or less by default, what kind of Germany we do not want, it is now necessary to decide what kind of Germany we DO want. This is the immensely difficult task to which the Kennan committee, the Acheson committee, and the National Security Council have now addressed themselves.

Decisions to Be Secret.

The policy papers which result will be, and should be, secret. Nothing would be more damaging than to advertise to the world, and especially to the Soviet Union, a blueprint of American objectives and intentions in Germany. Yet the fact that the State Department, the Defense Department, the Army Department as spokesman for Clay, and the ECA are all taking part in the effort to draft agreed policy papers on Germany is itself significant and encouraging.

There has been no secret about the bitter disagreements within the Government on German policy in the past. When German policy was to the fore, the Army Department, the State Department, and the ECA have been apt to treat each other as sovereign, and potentially hostile powers. If the American policy-makers can reach agreement among themselves on American policy toward Germany, a long step forward will have been taken.

There remains the even more difficult task of reconciling American policy on Germany to the whole range of American policy in the world, and especially in Western Europe. To see Germany clearly as an integral part of a larger problem is difficult enough in Washington, but it is almost impossible in Berlin. And although it may fail, it is at least good news that the effort to define our real objectives in Germany has at last begun.

COMMUNISTS JEER CHURCHILL'S PLEA FOR EUROPE UNITY

Some of Churchill's Communist hecklers tossed handfuls of tiny pamphlets bearing Communist slogans. They set up concerted catcalls and jeers when Churchill came to the microphone. From various places in the crowd came shouts of "down with war!"

More than 1200 police and state troopers were on hand an hour before the meeting began and additional reinforcements were held ready in side streets. The city's burgomaster had denied the Communists a permit to stage an anti-European unity meeting in the Place de la Bourse a half-hour before the European movement program was to begin.

Mild Winter in Switzerland

At St. Moritz, They Want More Snow

By William McGaffin

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1949.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 28.

The weatherman has been stingy with the snow over these parts this winter, so stingy that unless man took a hand, there would not be enough snow in the streets for the sleighs to slide over.

The slick streets make business for the shoe shops as well as the sleigh taxis. If you try to walk on the streets in the leather soled shoes you arrive in, you are likely to find yourself paying more out for a doctor bill than the price of rubber-soled shoes to keep you from falling.

SO YOU hie yourself to a shoe shop and buy a pair of the prescribed shoes, telling yourself fiercely that even at $20 they are cheaper than a broken leg.

Of course, once you are in the shoe shop, you find out that you must buy not one, but two pairs of shoes. One pair are ski boots, made expressly to fit your skis, and rubber-soled so that you can stand on the slick streets when not skiing. Ideal all around shoes, you tell yourself.

But, no. The clerk carefully explains they are too heavy to wear except when skiing. For after skiing, you must have a pair of "apress ski" boots—after ski boots—lighter weight so that you can also dance in them at the daily tea dances at your hotel. It is not only the lighter weight, monsieur, it is also the fashion. Nobody would be seen dead wearing heavy ski boots at a tea dance. So shall I wrap up both pairs? Thank you very much.

One hundred and twenty-five dollars later you finally are outfitted for skiing, not counting the rent of skis at $2.50 a week, and lessons at $1.15 a time. Still, though, you tell yourself, think of the money I'm saving. If I were taking ice skating lessons it would cost $2.50 a time!

THE WONDERFUL THING, from the Swiss point of view, about taking a vacation in this place is the chain reaction effect it has on your pocketbook. You think you have finally got all the incidentials out of the way and you start to ski. Then you find this makes you thirsty, and there is nothing in the world that will quench your thirst but orange juice. So you hurry over to the ski lodge and order a double shot of pure orange juice (to make sure they don't water it). It's 70 cents a throw!

The scenery is magnificent—some of the finest I've ever seen anywhere—and the sun is warm enough to send you back on the job with a tan that will make your friends hate you. The air is stimulating, too—and they don't charge for it.

★ ★ ★

THIS IS EUROPE'S favorite winter playground and the season is at its height. Each evening sees a fabulous gathering in the swank bar of the Palace Hotel—respectable dowagers and bejeweled trollops, famous business men and notorious gigolos, rich and poor, the great and the nobodies. You overhear jaded women in decollete evening gowns making remarks like this: "I'd love to have a date with Pierre again tonight but I can't afford his price. I'll have to sell one of my diamonds if I do."

One American banker said he counted 20 men he knew were international crooks in the first half-hour he sat in the bar.

An orchestra plays North American swing and South American sambas; the champagne flows, and the dancing goes on till 5 or 6 a.m.

The people who stay up that late arise barely in time to loll in the sun before it gets too cold. The serious skiers are in bed long before that and up with the break of day looking anxiously out their windows to see if it has snowed during the night. They fret because there is not more snow on the mountain ski trails.

HANS AND ANDREA BADRUTH fret, too. Father and son, they run the Palace—and most of the rest of St. Moritz, too. At the start of the season they had 100 men working for three days shoveling snow on the "standard run" and packing it down so that it would be usable. There is still snow on the run, but the hot sun has made it spotted with dangerous uncovered rocks and clumps of grass.

Of course, here again you get the chain reaction. Your bad luck, if you break your leg, means business for the doctors. The doctors are very convenient. One knocked on my door within an hour after I arrived in the hotel. He said, "did you call me?" I said, "not yet."

Three days later I summoned him, not for a broken leg, but to cure me of the flu.

The Badruths, who are touchy about the health qualities of their resort, were visibly relieved when the doctor decided that I had not caught the flu in St. Moritz but had been coming down with it before I even left London.

Again, I told myself—think of the money I'm saving. If I hadn't got the flu, I probably would have broken my leg—which would have been much more expensive.

THE SWISS think of everything, however. You can even insure yourself against getting hurt while skiing. For 18 Swiss francs you can cover yourself for a week with a policy that will provide 500 francs for the doctor, and several thousand for your survivors if worst comes to the worst.

The sun has been so brilliant these last few days it has burned the snow off the streets faster than the men could haul in more from the valley. The horses strain, even going downhill, to drag the sleighs. But the sleigh bells make a pretty jingle.

The Badruths are by no means defeated.

Andrea told me: "I'm going up in an airplane and make it snow just as soon as we get the right kind of clouds over St. Moritz. I've got a book of instructions and all the necessary equipment."

What Am I Saying!

ALL men are not homeless, of course—but apparently some men are home less than others. As a home-loving friend of mine once sobbed upon my shoulder, "Home ain't what you make it, Frank. The neighbors make it noisy, my brother-in-law makes it messy, and my landlord—he makes it expensive!" FRANK MORGAN.

BROADWAY

By WALTER WINCHELL

Street of Dreams

THEY assure you that "Death of a Salesman" is about the author's late uncle, who died the night Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" won the Critics' Award. Miller gets about 20 per cent of the new hit's gross, which nets him around $5000 a week.

WILLIAM SAROYAN . . . MODEST.

Plus other rights, they say, he'll make a million on the play, which took him six weeks to scriven. . . . Modest Wm. Saroyan writes intimates that his latest play, "Don't Go Away Mad," is the most perfect play ever written. . . . "The Happy Time," which Rodgers & Hammerstein will unveil in the Fall, is the third version of Robert Fontaine's book. . . . Josh Logan's income is so high (from "Mr. Roberts," "Annie Get Your Gun," etc.) it is costing him coin to work on his next, "Tales of the South Pacific." . . . The President is not only miffed with commentators but with two Hollywood clowns who featured jokes about his wages. They got calls from the White House "telling them off."

★ ★ ★

THE VARIETY ARTISTES' Federation of London, which adopted a 10-year ban on all showfolks from the former enemy nations, has lifted it—except on Germans! . . . There are more screen notables on the Broadway boards than ever. . . . Billie De Angelis (a hatchick at Lindy's) has composed a tune titled "My Heart Parade." . . . Media Digest for February suggests films and plays be rated by jury panels instead of critics. The results posted in lobbies. It'll never take the place of a newspaper critic's orchids or scallions. . . . Gene Baylos, a click at Mother Kelly's, introduced a competitor comic: "He's an M.C.—Mental Case!" . . . Rose Murphy's unique way with a song sounds best when she's rendering the touching ditty: "Girls Were Made to Take Care of Boys."

★ ★ ★

HERE'S THE TELEVISION setup as of now. There are about one million sets—and about six million viewers. Not yet ripe enough, the experts argue, for the heavyweights. . . . "The Damon Runyon Story" book is being considered by Hollywood. . . . In "It Always Rains on Sunday" the landlady is played by Gladys Hanson, the Tallulah of her time. . . . Anna May Wong, rumored ill in Shanghai, must have taken an oof'ly fast boat to China. Just finished "Impact" with Brian Donlevy. . . . Michael Strange, the former Mrs. J. Barrymore, is being urged by two recording firms to narrate The Bible. . . . Alan Young doesn't need such tripe as the signoff used on Washington's Birthday: "Washington was the First Heartburn of his Country." Or does he? . . . Producer Mike Curtiz was testing actress Hanne Axmann at Warner's and told her: "You harv on occent!"

★ ★ ★

WHEN ELIZABETH TAYLOR, the screen star, hit the Big Town last week her first request was to "see some of the Broadway glamour." Her newspaper man-escort took her to four of the swank "glammer spots," which closed early because they were "dying"! . . . That was Margie Truman joining in the chorus of "Amy" at the "Where's Charley?" show the other night. . . . When Warners' re-issues "Castle on the Hudson" (with Garfield & Sheridan) it'll be the late Warden Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." . . . Show biz is easy for some folks: Mary Malone, the 23-year-old scene-stealer in "Goodbye, My Fancy," is up for the lead in three forthcoming shows. . . . McCarthy & Farrell, who broke in their act at the Waldorf's Wedgewood Room last Fall, will get a mere $5000 at the Roxy. . . . Hits like "Mr. Roberts" and "Kiss Me, Kate" will make more for the gyp ticket specs than for the producers.

★ ★ ★

"MELANCHOLY MINSTREL" is a swell chune. May become another "Ballerina." . . . S. Hurok has signed Stella Roman, the thrush, for his bird menagerie. . . . Lorry Raine has a potential "Near You" called "Heartbroken," which the disc-jox will go for. . . . Add odd jobs: A big firm has hired a press agent just to publicize the word "danger." . . . Tony Martin's version of "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee" is a show-stopper. His special lyric to "No Business Like Show Business" is another wallop. . . . Lawton Carver, the Int'l News sports chief, is the father of a lovely in the Havana-Madrid ensemble. . . . Marlene Dietrich has seen Mae West in "Diamond Lil" 3 times. . . . Dorothy Shay is the initial star attraction for Glenn McCarthy's new Shamrock Hotel at Houston, Texas. Opens St. Patrick's day. Said to be a replica of the Waldorf.

★ ★ ★

THE ANDREWS SISTERS finally surrendered to the hillbilly fad and love it. The first chune they demolished (in the best nasal tradition) is christened: "I'm Biting My Fingernails Over You." . . . Allyn McLerie is dancing with tears in her ducts these nights since Ray Bolger nix'd her request to leave for the starring role in "Miss Liberty." She'll resign June 1st when the contract fades. . . . Eric Victor is threatening suit against showman Tony Farrell for altering the choreography in "All for Love" at the Hellinger. Farrell promises a counter-punch. Equity prob'ly will mediate. . . . According to recent statistics, 94 per cent of the Filmtown people are unemployed.

School Schedule

By Angelo Patri

"WHERE is your report card, Solly?"

"O, I forgot it. Left it home."

"Go home and get it," said Mr. Sharp.

"But—"

"Go. Don't bother me with excuses. You go get that card and make sure it has been signed."

Solly went out and raced down the street, hoping to catch his mother before she went out to do the marketing. The door was locked and his mother was out when he reached home, so Solly did not know what to do. He wandered down the street looking into the shops for his mother and was nearly run over by a car turning a corner. The brakes screeched and the policeman crossed over, grabbed Solly, shook him and asked, "Can't you look where you're going? Why arn't you in school?"

★ ★ ★

"LIKELY STORY. You're playing hookey. I'll take you to the office just as soon as the clock says ten. You stand right here by me until then."

One of the neighbors seeing Solly captured ran into the shop and breathlessly announced that Solly was arrested. His mother screamed and raced out to the corner. The policeman shouted, Solly shouted, his mother shouted and nobody heard the other. When the noise ceased a little, Solly managed to tell his mother the story.

"All right. He was nearly run over. You'd better take him and his card, if he's telling the truth, back to school and ask the teacher why he sent him home to get run over," said the annoyed officer.

AT SCHOOL the teacher was shocked to hear what happened. "Why didn't he look where he was going? He's old enough to take care of himself on the street, isn't he? And if he had attended to his business in the first place, he wouldn't have forgotten his report card." Fright makes people angry.

Parents take school schedules for granted. Once they send a child to school, they rest on the assurance of the time table. It is unwise to send children home unexpectedly. If this has to be done, the mother should be notified so she will be ready to receive the child. The schedule must be sacred because often the safety of the children rests upon it.

Hanns Eisler's Passport Troubles

Writer Tells of Composer's Losing Fight to Become U.S. Citizen

By Robert E. Stripling

Chief Investigator, House Un-American Activities Committee, 1938-1948

Edited by Bob Considine

Eighth Article of a Series.

IN my long search through the visa division of the State Department, while on the trail of Gerhart Eisler, employes there repeatedly suggested that I inquire into the passport escapades of Gerhart's brother, Hanns.

With Gerhart disposed of, so far as the House Un-American Activities Committee was concerned, I subpenaed such records as the State Department would give us, and looked into the matter of Hanns.

Hanns, a stout, stumpy, bald, bespectacled man like his brother, had lived with more ostentation than Gerhart, who, when finally subpenaed by the committee, was living in a modest little place in Sunnyside, Long Island.

Hanns Eisler had been respected and trusted enough in Moscow to be taken there from Germany to reorganize its International Music Bureau. In this country he had worked under a $20,000 Rockefeller Foundation grant, been a professor at the New School of Social Research in New York and was employed mainly by RKO in Hollywood.

He had composed the music for a great number of marching and rallying songs indorsed by his Communist colleagues, including one denouncing anti-abortion laws and another which ended:

From Russia victorious
The workers October
Cames storming reactions
Regime the world over.
We're coming with Lenin
For Bolshevik work
From London, Havana,
Berlin and New York.

Rise up fields and workshops
Come out workers, farmers;
To battle march onward,
March on world stormers.
Eyes sharp on your guns,
Red banners unfurled,
Advance Proletarians

When he arrived in the United States in 1935 The Daily Worker displayed a picture of him giving the Communist salute, and hailed him as "This famous revolutionary composer." It added:

"His arrival in America marks the further extension of an international tour which has so far included lectures and concerts in Leningrad, Moscow, Copenhagen, Brussels, Paris and London.

"The Hanns Eisler Tour Committee, composed of representatives of the Workers' Music League, John Reed Club, League of Workers' Theaters, Workers' Dance League, Anti-Nazi Federation, German Workers' Club and other groups are preparing for an outstanding reception for this courageous revolutionary musician and composer."

When he began his testimony before the committee Sept. 24, 1947, Eisler was a little vague as to whether he had actually joined the Communist party, though he admitted sending in his application. He couldn't remember how many times he had been in Russia, nor did he remember a letter his sister had sent to him on April 27, 1944, accusing him of an association with the GPU and warning him if the GPU killed her that the guilt would fall on him and his brother Gerhart.

"I think the letter is absolutely idiotic," he said, when I read to him the copy with which the committee had been provided.

By 1938 Hanns Eisler's excuses for remaining in this country were wearing thin. He and his wife decided to go to Havana and there made application for a visa that would entitle them to permanent residence in the United States.

But Hanns wanted to be certain. He first had an attorney file the application, and when the American consulate in Havana noted that the State Department had a considerable "file" on Eisler, the composer began rounding up considerable support.

"Dear Sumner," wrote Mrs. Roosevelt to Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles on Jan. 11, 1939, and inclosing a dossier on Eisler, "all these papers were brought to me yesterday by a friend of Mr. Eisler. The man who brought them is a perfectly honest person and very much disturbed.

"He thinks the State Department has really told the Cuban consul that they do not wish to admit the Eislers, and he is perfectly sure that the Eislers are not Communists and have no political affiliations of any kind.

"He is sure they believe our form of government is 'heaven' and would be entirely agreeable without reservation to take an oath of allegiance.

"I believe that it is said that the Labor Department did not examine the case carefully enough. Why not do it all over again and bring it out in the open and let the Eislers defend themselves.

"Cordially,

★ ★ ★

WELLES, busy, asked Assistant Secretary George Messersmith to look into the matter. Messersmith, four months earlier, had taken a very dim view of Eisler. On Jan. 24, 1939, Welles replied at length to Mrs. Roosevelt, telling her that Eisler had been "connected in some measure with Communist organizations," but Messersmith was already in the process of an arresting change of view.

Welles at first recommended that the Eislers proceed to Havana, however, in the hope of disproving the charges. "Mr. and Mrs. Eisler," he concluded, "may also be assured that the consul general will accord them every possible consideration."

But complications developed. Coert DuBois, American consul general at Havana, began looming as an imposing obstacle to Eisler's plans and hopes. On Feb. 7, 1939, Mrs. Roosevelt again wrote to the State Department:

"Dear Sumner: This Eisler case seems a hard nut to crack. What do you suggest?" Mrs. Roosevelt inclosed a letter from Don Stephens of the National Arts Club of New York, pleading Eisler's case.

Welles replied that there were no prejudices against Eisler. If he could conform to well-established State Department rules, there would be no trouble, etc. He ended by suggesting that Prof. Alvin Johnson, of the New School of Social Research, interest himself in supporting Eisler.

Johnson eventually wrote Eisler:

"I understand that your visa is being held up because you have been boosted by 'The Daily Worker' as a 'Comrade,' that is, as a Communist. I personally have no prejudice against Communists and can see no earthly reason why a good Communist should not be a good musician."

Thirteen days after Mrs. Roosevelt showed an interest in the case, Messersmith, who had written Dorothy Thompson of the evidence of Eisler's Communism, wrote Consul General DuBois:

"I may tell you that I have personally gone through the rather heavy file that we have covering Mr. Eisler. While there is no question in my mind that Mr. Eisler is a man of very liberal views and while his name has been mentioned in some Communistic papers and while he may have written certain pieces of music which have a Communistic title, I find it difficult myself to believe that information which we have so far seen would be sufficient to prove that Mr. Eisler is a Communist or holds views which would exclude him from our country.

"I am inclined to believe that Mr. Eisler is a musician and an artist who does hold liberal views, but I can find nothing which would indicate that he believes in the overthrow of government by force or that he has been engaged in activities of a Communistic or subversive character either abroad or in this country.

". . . If, when Mr. Eisler should call at the consulate at Havana, he definitely states that he does not hold views for which he could be excluded under our immigration laws, I do not believe that a visa could be withheld unless the consul has evidence which would disprove his statement.

"In view of the fact that this case has been pending for some time and has received a certain amount of attention, I believe it would be advisable, when Mr. Eisler presents himself for a visa, that you either see him yourself or that you delegate one of your most responsible officers to consider his case."

Throughout this curious conduct the conscience of the State Department seemed vested largely in Robert Clark Alexander, former private secretary to Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, and holder of other important jobs during his 25 years in the department. Alexander judged Hanns Eisler an out-and-out Communist, and when Eisler decided to try to get into the United States permanently from Mexico City, instead of Havana, Alexander wrote:

"The interested persons may believe that they can bring greater pressure to bear on the consul general at Mexico City—possibly through Ambassador Daniels—than they have been able to bring on the consul general at Havana through the department."

Messersmith termed Alexander "a clerk . . . a law clerk, or something of that kind."

Alexander, refusing to be intimidated, informed P. C. Hutton, visa officer at Mexico City, "I am sure we will be called upon to render an explanation concerning the issuance of visas to so many of the Reds and 'Pinks' who have been filtering into the country in recent years."

The Eislers by now had long overstayed their visitors' permits. Among those who asked the State Department to prolong their stay were Raymond Swing, Dorothy Thompson, Russell Davenport of Fortune magazine, George Cukor, Clifford Odets and William Dieterle of Hollywood, Curt Reiss, Oscar Wagner, dean of the Juilliard Graduate School, and Harold Clurman, director of the Group Theater. Swing wrote:

"The people I know in New York are greatly upset and offended by the failure of the eminent composer, Mr. Hanns Eisler, and his wife to obtain an extension of their visitors' visas."

ON September 7, 1939, at Mexico City, the Eislers were granted additional visitor's permits, valid for two months. They returned to the United States and ignored the termination of their permits. On July 17, 1940, a warrant was issued for their arrest and deportation. At first they hid out in fashionable reaches of Bucks county, Pa. Later they fled to Calexico, and there applied for visas which would entitle them to permanent residence in this country.

The immigration inspector at Calexico said no.

The Board of Special Inquiry said no.

But the Immigration Board of Appeals in Washington said yes. Hanns Eisler, as much of a Communist agent as his brother Gerhart, was granted permission to enter the United States with his wife and apply for citizenship.

It was not until last year that the Department of Justice, acting on the evidence the committee produced long before, issued orders to deport Hanns Eisler and his wife. They were permitted to leave the United States voluntarily, on the promise that they would never return.

Yet, throughout the entire case, and to this day, the committee found itself accused of dealing exclusively in smears.

Fix It Yourself

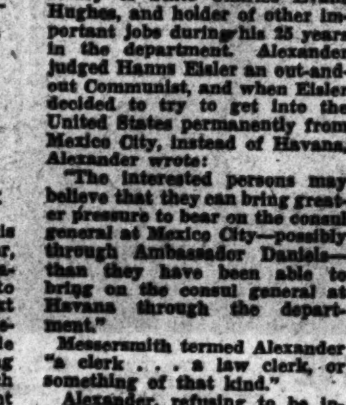
Moist Plaster.

PEOPLE continue to run into interesting conditions around the home and one of these happens to be damp plaster. Today our opus has to do with damp plaster when the plaster has been applied right over outside masonry walls.



The most obvious reason for the plaster being damp under these circumstances is that the masonry wall either leaks at the mortar joints, seams at window frames or because it is porous. Pointing up the mortar joints, caulking seams and coating the outside of the wall with a masonry waterproofing compound should do the trick. The big headache is, however, that during the cold weather this moisture is more apt to be caused by condensation. The outside masonry is cold and because the plaster is in direct contact with it, it gets cold too.

About the only sure cure for this trouble is to remove all the plaster, set furring strips over the masonry and then apply the laths to these. The plaster goes on next and the small empty space between plaster and masonry made by the thickness of the furring will provide an air space which will act as insulation and prevent the plaster becoming chilled.

OFF THE RECORD

"Since you're a door-to-door salesman this clause, 'FOR LOSS OF RIGHT FOOT,' will have to be struck out."

My Day -O- By Eleanor Roosevelt

CHICAGO.

MY first day in Chicago on my current trip was rather busy. A press conference here really means a lot of questions, and it took them over an hour to finish talking and taking photographs. I then did a short interview for the radio, after which it was time to go to the Executives' Club luncheon.

Mrs. Roosevelt

The Executives' Club here occasionally includes wives at these luncheons, and I think there must have been more than 1000 people present. This group seems to be a cross section of young business men, with a number of representatives from the older groups included. The present Mayor, Mr. Kennelly, ex-Mayor Kelly, and the Governor of the state, Adlai Stevenson, were on the dais.

★ ★ ★

TALKING ABOUT the United Nations with Governor Stevenson present was rather difficult, for he served as head of the preparatory commission and knew more of the individuals concerned in setting up the organization, and of the difficulties solved, than anyone else. When we went to London in January 1946, the basis of our work was all laid down before our arrival by Mr. Stevenson and the group that worked with him. He has since served on the delegation, and I am sure will never lose his interest in the efforts made through this organization to achieve an atmosphere in the world in which peace may grow.

I was very happy to see the Governor again, since during the campaign I was extremely interested in his election and in that of Paul Douglas as Senator. Both of them are justifying the confidence of the voters by their performance in office.

In the evening the National Phi Beta Kappa Association gave me its distinguished service medal, their annual award for achievement in some particular field. The award was given to me in the field of human relations, for our successful work in the Human Rights Commission.

I NEVER FEEL that these awards are really earned by one person, since no one could accomplish anything alone. But, I accepted it gratefully since it does draw to the attention of all those present the work which is being done in the field of human rights throughout the world.

The universal Bill of Human Rights is not yet complete, but the declaration passed by the last General Assembly of the United Nations does set world standards and aspirations. It also paves the way for the next step in accepting the whole bill, the ratification by the different countries of a first convention, which may be followed later by other conventions as they seem necessary.

RIDING AROUND TOWN

with BOB WOLFSON

One day last week I was suddenly hit with a strange, uneasy feeling. "Now what gives?" I thought. Was it that curried rice I'd concocted while mom stood by and watched with an anxious tsk-tsk smile? Nope. Even mom tasted it, pronounced it edible and admitted after all her Robert had brought back something cultural from his army life in India.

"Then what in heck is wrong with me?" I pondered. It's too early for Spring fever—can't be the itch to play golf. Suddenly, I had the answer: It's a vacation you need, me lad. It was then that I started to tote up how long it's been since I'd unshackled my ankle from a desk. About 3 years I figured—not counting that tour of duty in Calcutta. (Anyone calling that a vacation I'll be glad to wrap around the nearest post).

I looked around our Feld Chevrolet building here at Manchester and Laclede Station Roads. The glass in the three "all-view" showrooms was a glittering testimonial to the faithful ministrations of Willie Davis, Ford Newmeyer and Ralph Ward. Okay—the joint looks good.

Next step — how can they get along without me for about ten days? I got up and wandered into our several closing rooms. Hmmn, Homer, Les, Rudy, Johnny—each engrossed in getting all the facts and figures down so that the people they were talking to would get their Feld Chevrolets—and soon. Not much I can do here. As a matter of fact, as I opened the door to each of the rooms, Kermit, Joe, Dave, Bill, et al looked up with a "what in the dickens are you poking your head in here for?" sort of expression.

Slightly hurt at this lack of interest in my presence, I wandered back to the Parts Department. Here, I thought, they will give R. Wolfson, pres., the attention and respect he deserves. So what happened? Nothing. Carl Hemphill, Bill Miller, Al Hand went right on about their business, taking phone calls, making out parts orders, etc.

Back in the Service Department, Fred, Jeff and Jack gave me that "Can I help you, sir?" routine. (I looked all around and even under me, to see if I was accompanied by a Chevrolet). You'd think I'd never helped those guys solve hundreds of knotty mechanical problems.

A complete tour of the Feld Chevrolet plant convinced me that all departments were humming along so well that I could take a jaunt to Tahiti, be gone for six months, return, all bronzed from my South Seas life, and have some one of the gang say "Oh, hello, Bob, you been away for the week-end?".

So that was that. The idea of taking a vacation began to look brighter and brighter. But, while a vacation resteth a man's soul—it also flatteneth his pocketbook. Why couldn't I get a break like McLemore (round the world with expenses I'll bet). What's his prose got that mine aint? Or look at W. Rose. Untired from his efforts to make the Met good box office, he sets off casually on a world tour. Last I heard he was in South America. Well, maybe if I owned a couple of night clubs, Broadway plays and was getting royalties from some songs I'd written way back when—I'd show Rose he's not the only guy who can travel.

In fancy, getting off my elephant, pushing back my helmet with a casual air, while I tossed several crisp phrases in Swahili to my bearers, I sat down again at my desk and ripped open a letter from Miami. Beautiful weather here (are you listening, California?) — went to races today. Can give you small hall bedroom on the cuff. Maybe you can hitchhike down . . . " Well, it might not be in the same class with the Boca Raton Club or the Roney—but it's a chance to get in the sun and relax—take things easy for a week or so. So guys and gals, I've decided to be a Miami beachcomber for ten days at least. I have no doubt that habit will assert itself and I'll acquire most of my tan from the lights in various Miami Chevrolet dealers' showrooms.

In cleaning out a folder of notes for those Monday hunks of immortal prose, I came across several that I'd meant to mention long before this. Such as toothpaste, sun glasses, swimming trunks . . . hey, that's the wrong set of notes. Here it is:

Re the Tulip Box, the swell spot where Maplewood Kiwanis lunches on Wednesdays. Fred Saunders, the prop., did a fine bit of promotion back in New Year's week. By word of mouth only, patrons were informed that on a certain day that week, food and drink were on the house. And it was quite a mob that dropped in to partake of the free sustenance. Nice gesture on the owner's part—and a good will cementer for his place.

And a memo to write "thanks" to Union Electric. What is the etiquette on such a note? Do you write "Dear Public Utility . . Thanks, etc." Or do you address the president, J. Wesley McAfee, saying "Dear Prexy, Thought you ought to know how fine, etc., etc." Anyway, I'm mighty grateful to Union Electric for its cooperation in getting service operating in time for our Feld Chevrolet opening.

And here's a note to write a column about the Red Cross. The drive is upcoming. How do you add anything to the paeans of praise for the Red Cross and its work? War or peace their work goes on—and the need today is greater than ever. My thought is that if you look at the Red Cross symbol, you'll see the outline of a heart in back of it—it's the heart of the people who give of their time and money.

Now . . . it's time to say au revoir for a couple of weeks to all of you grand people — especially to those who are kind enough to say they like the stuff that unwinds in this space each week. I'd like to remind you that whatever your Chevrolet needs, head for Manchester and Laclede Station Roads, while I'm gone. Tell the boys at Feld Chevrolet that I (the name is Wolfson) sent you. Not that I have any influence . . .

In case I run into any column material down Miami way — I'll shoot a batch of it up here. Who knows—maybe I'll run into a couple of characters? My sister claims that, while God creates characters—it takes her brother Robert to find them. G'bye for now.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE been dating a certain man for the past six years, we have been engaged for the past three. Several times we have set the date and each time he has had something come up to postpone it. He doesn't seem to care if this engagement goes on forever—but I do. Sometimes he has to go out of town on business and usually he forgets to even write me. When he does they are lovely letters which make me feel much closer to him and more confident of his love than when we are together. He often forgets engagements and turns up late for them or not at all. I am beginning to wonder if he is ever going to be the sort one can pin down, and if I ever get him to the altar if we'll be happy afterwards. I am now 28 and he is 32. Do you think I should break this engagement?

YES OR NO.

I fail to see what you want with a man who seems so lackadaisical. Six years is a long time and if he hasn't become any more inclined to go through with the marriage in all that time you will be wise to give up the idea that he ever will. I think you would do well to break the engagement. If you don't you are likely to find yourself going on and on, and one fine day attending this man's wedding when you are about 50—but not as the bride.

Dear Martha Carr:

RECENTLY A FRIEND in a nearby town arranged for a date for me for their Junior Prom. I liked the boy and had a wonderful time at the dance and I believe he did also. Will it be all right for me to write him a little note telling him how much I enjoyed the party? I don't want to lose track of him.

E.G.

Since this was an out-of-town arrangement I see no reason why you should not drop the boy a note if you like. Tell him how much you enjoyed the party, what a lovely class he has and how much you like his town. Tell him all this, however, without gushing! You might even add that next time your girl friend who arranged the date for you, comes here to see you, you'd be glad to have him come along too. Then you can show him your town.

IN ANSWER TO "MRS. STAY-AT-HOME": You are thinking of taking very drastic measures to settle your problem. I believe if you and your husband will get together and make out a budget you will find if you will try to live within it, you may even come out a little ahead, instead of always in the red as at present. In your budget set aside a small sum each week for recreation and see to it that you manage to get out more. Anyone becomes depressed and worries over things who stays "put" week in and week out. Aside from movies there is plenty to do in a town this size which does not cost a thing. There are outings to the parks, the zoo and the art museum, free lectures and concerts, etc. Look into them.

* * *

IN ANSWER TO "Wondering": You are much too grown-up for those kissing games you seem so bent on having at your party. That is kid stuff and you are a big girl now. I have party games of all kinds, even a special selection of them for a birthday party. You'll find they are much more fun than the ones you have in mind. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll mail them to you.

* * *

IN ANSWER TO "B.G.": First of all, age 13 is much too young to be going steady. Secondly no matter what your age you make a mistake to continue to associate with boys who consistently mistake off-color jokes and speeches, for cleverness. They should be ostracized until they learn better manners.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE T-207: When Judy, our only daughter was 5 years old, she developed the following complaint.

"My head hurts," she protested, after she had gone to bed for her afternoon nap.

After a few more utterances of the same kind, I finally told her to take her nap, which was excellent medicine for headaches.

"But it hurts worse when I lie down," she countered.

"Where does it hurt?" I then inquired and turned my full professional attention to her problem, knowing that she had shown no sign of a headache until nap time, and that she'd probably convalesce as soon as she was permitted to go out to play.

"Oh, it hurts here and here and here," she used both hands and laid them above her eyes, then on the back of her head and finally over both sides. This certainly was a complete headache, all right, and took in all the territory which could possibly ache.

* * *

"I GUESS I better examine you thoroughly," I added. I think she sensed that she was "out on a limb," as it were, so she hoped for a diagnosis of some real ailment.

After concluding my examination, I told her it might do her good if she sat on the porch in the shade. This worked successfully for five or ten minutes.

Then she returned and told me she ought to have some medicine. I think she really wanted to get into active play but felt she should keep up her invalid role until I had given her a scientific way off that limb on which she was figuratively perched. So I gave her a grain of aspirin.

* * *

EVERYBODY is familiar with the aches of children who feign illness as a means of avoiding school or some other objectionable situation.

Many adults likewise develop convenient illnesses to escape from facing trouble. Sometimes they persuade themselves that they are really ill from the organic ailments with which they claim to be suffering.

It often requires a combination of medicine and psychology, plus a full measure of common sense and social judgment, in order to make a valid diagnosis.

When such a diagnosis is made, however, and we find that a patient is malingering, or feigning illness, it is often wise to give the patient a scientific way off the limb on which he has placed himself.

* * *

TACTFULLY PROBE AROUND until you have struck the fundamental problem from which such persons are trying to escape. Then make some sound suggestions for their facing that basic difficulty so they can surmount it. But give them pink pills or some supposedly valid treatment for their imagined ailments just so their pride will not be seriously deflated, for they grow very resentful if a plain diagnosis of malingering is made. They'll claim you are a rotten doctor just as a means of discounting the wisdom of your diagnosis.

So give them a way out with honor, except in the vicious "ambulance-chasing" group where there is an organized racket for cashing in on such malingering.

55 Years Behind Grocery Counter

For Last Half Century County Resident Has Operated Own Store in Same Location

By F. A. Behymer

FRED SCHWENTKER, the old storekeeper, beams across the counter at the customer who has picked out what she wants but thinks maybe she has forgotten something, and hesitates.

"And—?" says the storekeeper encouragingly, but the customer says she guesses that will be all. Schwentker puts the purchases in a bag, rings up the $2.84, holds the door open and bows the customer out.

For more than 50 years the man has been doing that every day at the F. C. Schwentker Food Market on Lindbergh boulevard just south of the Kirkwood city limits. He has in fact been "on the floor," as he calls it, for 55 years, counting the five years that he worked in another man's store.

Fred Schwentker was 20 years old when he started to learn the grocery business by getting a job with W. J. Keller at Sappington for $15 a month. He was ambitious, though, and wanted to go into business for himself. After five years, with $228 saved up, he was ready. So Feb. 12, 1899, he opened up on what was then Denny road, with a small store in the front room and living rooms behind it, for he had married and his wife was his helper.

The locality then, as he describes it, was a wilderness of woodland, pasture and patches of acres that had been brought under the plow. There were only two families living near, those of William Eimie, a farmer, and Chris Spitzenburg.

There was need of delivery wagons in those days because foods and store goods were so cheap that a small amount of money bought more than a customer could carry home. And there was an advantage to the storekeeper in getting the orders one day and delivering them the next because there were practically no packaged goods and the orders had to be made up from bulk, which could be done at night after the store was closed.

It pleases Fred Schwentker, now that he has passed the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of his business, to remember the prices of 50 years ago and compare them, with a doleful shake of his head, with that he has to charge now to stay in business. It is in meats that the contrasts are greatest. Nobody needs to be told what meats cost now, but back before the St. Louis World's Fair Schwentker sold ham at 10 cents a pound and good bacon for 7½ to 10 cents a pound. Round steaks went for a quarter. Hearts and livers were thrown in free for the cat and dog. Good lard that he bought from the farmers at a nickel a pound he sold for a dime a pound. That was a pretty good profit, but the butter that he sold for 10 cents a pound cost him 7½ and 8 cents a pound out on the farms and he had to go after it. Eggs that cost him 3 cents and 4 cents a dozen, according to size, he sold for a nickel a dozen regardless of size.

Schwentker bought salt by the barrel and scooped it out to customers at 15 pounds for a nickel. Cornmeal also came in barrels and Schwentker packaged it out at 15 pounds for a quarter. The best coffee could be had for 25 cents a pound and a dollar bought 25 pounds of sugar. The best cider vinegar, bought by the barrel, was sold at 10 cents a gallon. Molasses, spigoted out of a cask, could be had for 25 cents by the jugful if you brought your own jug.

Schwentker bought potatoes from the farmers when he could get them, which meant when the farmers had more than they needed for their own winter supply. What happened was that a farmer would come into the store as potato digging time approached and say: "Fred, I'm going to begin digging 'taters next week," and Fred would say: "Going to have any to sell?"

IF by such means Schwentker could get 150 bushels into his cellar he was satisfied because that was about all that he could handle without them spoiling on him. He sold them for 25 cents a bushel and half-bushels and pecks in proportion. He seldom had fruit for sale because when the farmers had filled their winter pits there wasn't any left. He always tried, though, to have apples and oranges for Christmas. He had never heard of grapefruit.

Coal oil for the lights of Kirkwood and the surrounding country could be bought for five cents a gallon and gasoline, used only for cooking, was 45 cents for five gallons.

In his drygoods department Schwentker had a few silk stockings for millionaires' women at $1.45 a pair, but he sold more of the kind that went at 35 to 45 cents a pair. Socks, at a nickel a pair, were considered a good investment because they could be worn for a week and then thrown away. Working shoes were $1.75 a pair and the Sunday kind, fancy patent leather, could be bought for $2.75 by anybody who could afford them.

And hardware! "Say," says Schwentker, "look at those galvanized washtubs over there in the corner. I remember when I used to sell the regulation size for two bits and big ones for 35 cents. Now I have to charge a dollar ninety-nine and two twenty-five."

Those were the good old days, says Fred Schwentker with a ho-hum and he only wishes they had lasted longer, for it's a fact that he made more money then than he does now, even if he did lose a lot by giving credit. It was the usual thing then for customers to say "charge it," and it was charged even though the storekeeper knew that he would probably never get his money. One year when he lost $1800 on bad accounts he thought it was time to tighten up on the credit business. Now he has only about 40 credit accounts and they are all old customers that he knows he can trust.

He made more money in those days than he does now because less capital was required, the turnover was more rapid and the wastage was not as great because now in order to obtain stock at favorable prices he has to buy in quantities at the risk of having some of the stuff spoil on his hands.

Taxes and licenses take their toll too. When he was working for $15 a month and when he started up for himself he didn't have to bother about income tax. The real estate tax was 25 cents on the $100 valuation. Now it is $2.65. His merchant's license when he started was $2.75. Now it is $30 to $40, according to the volume of trade.

* * *

KEEPING store back there meant long hours and hard work. Schwentker was up every morning at 5 to feed and curry the horses and get the delivery wagons ready, greasing them as often as necessary, for the roads were rough and in the rainy season muddy and the rolling stock had to be in good order. Between 5 and 5:30 the store door was unlocked for the early customers and it stayed on the latch until 10 o'clock at night and sometimes later. Often at that hour there would be a knot of old cronies playing pinochle on the counter and the storekeeper didn't have the heart to put them out. When they asked him to take a hand in the game he couldn't resist. Maybe for another hour the game would go on. Late travelers along Denny road would note the dim light in Schwentker's store and say Fred was working late that night.

By long hours and hard work, with an occasional pinochle game for recreation, Schwentker prospered in a modest way through the years. Twice he had to enlarge his borders by remodeling the store. Finally the living quarters were needed for the business and a home was built next door.

Up to eight years ago Schwentker had clerks but during the war, when he couldn't get help, he went over to the self-service plan. Always Schwentker has had his wife as his main assistant and if it hadn't been for her help he doesn't know what he would have done. Now she is 75, the same age as her husband, and she still helps, taking her turn behind the counter at the rush hours and working all day on Saturdays.

At last they had been in business for 50 years at the same spot and theirs had the distinction of being the oldest store in the Kirkwood area. It was something that called for a celebration. So on a Saturday in February they held open house in the store and celebrated their golden anniversary.

That was a great day at the F. C. Schwentker Food Market. The old store was filled with flowers. All the old customers, which meant old friends, came back, some of them from great distances. There were telegrams from those who couldn't come. Fred Schwentker and his wife were happy hosts. They kept open later than usual that night and when the last of the guests had gone they closed up without a pinochle game for Fred and agreed that the first 50 years were the happiest, but tomorrow it would be business as usual and they would go on and on as long as they were able, for the store was their life and they wanted nothing else.

West decided that there was no advantage in opening a spade and therefore laid down the heart king. East, feeling fairly sure that this lead was from K-Q instead of A-K, ruffed in with the diamond six and returned the spade king in the wild hope that his partner also had a void. South, however, won with the blank ace, and promptly drew the outstanding trumps in one lead.

Now it became necessary for South to make a far-reaching decision. With the hearts located in West's hand, the winning line of play might be to cash all the diamonds and come down to the A-9 of hearts and the three clubs. If West had the club queen he would have to keep two guards for it, and he could be thrown in with a heart and forced to lead away from the club queen.

However, if East had the club queen an entirely different technique would have to be used. South correctly considered the bidding. West, it was true, had bid once in hearts, but East had carried on with his spades all the way up to the four-level. Void of hearts, he probably would not have gone so far without something in the club suit.

His decision made, South led a low trump to dummy, returned the spade 10—and discarded a heart, giving East the trick. It was an excellent guess! East either had to return a spade (which would have let South discard a club from one hand while ruffing in the other) or, as East preferred to do, return a club from the queen. South, of course, ducked in his own hand and was gratified to win with dummy's club jack.

Acrobatic Skating Comes Under Heading of Hard Work

By Myles Standish

TO one whose only intimate acquaintance with ice in recent years has been to consume goodly amounts of it in highballs and to sit down hard a couple of times on the glazed sidewalk during sleet storms, doing a solo in an ice show looks pretty easy for an accomplished skater. Nothing to it.

It isn't so, says Donna Atwood, the red-haired and quite lovely star of Ice Capades, now at the Arena. To be under a spotlight all alone on the huge rink, with anywhere from 7000 to 16,000 pairs of eyes riveted on you, and take off like a greyhound, soar like a hawk, twirl like a ballet dancer and spin like a gyroscope top may be glamorous, but it's also plain hard work.

Three and a half minutes of fast acrobatic solo work is all that both crowd and skater can stand, Donna told me the other night in her dressing room under the Arena stands. In that length of time you can do all the spectacular tricks, and you can do them well—if you're Donna, or Bobby Specht, her co-star, that is—but after that you're exhausted. Your co-ordination is off, and you'd begin to be sloppy on your execution. And the spectators, who like variety, would begin to get restless.

When skaters leave the ice after a solo or duo they're dripping with perspiration — well, anyway, the men are. Let's say the girls are all aglow. It's so strenuous that Donna has to keep in training like an athlete. She skates in practice one to three hours a day, except on matinee days, either for the warmup or in rehearsal for next year's show. Her life is intensely regulated. She has to get eight hours of sleep, come what may. For instance, recently in Hershey, Pa., she stayed up to 7 a.m. one Sunday making recordings for radio broadcasts in St. Louis, but, after going to church, slept until 5 p.m. In the interval between a matinee and evening performance, she eats dinner in her hotel room, so as to get the maximum rest. She has to be careful not to eat too much, although she loves thick steaks, because ice-skating tends to develop too much muscle for a young woman to look like an ethereal Snow White if she isn't careful.

"That's our curse," she said, wryly. "Muscles in the hips and thighs. Ballet dancers have them in the calves — you know how bulgy THEIR legs are. I use diet and daily massages to keep from getting to look like a circus trapeze queen. I don't smoke, for my wind. I like champagne, but I'm not allowed to drink it very often —just special occasions. Oh, but I'm a goody-goody."

This regulated regime goes on 48 weeks a year — Ice Capades runs that long. Usually, on the road, Donna lives very quietly. A movie is a big event for her. She doesn't date very much. Much of her fun consists in buying exquisite clothes and wearing them. She carries 15 dresses, 10 suits, and 30 pairs of shoes with her on the road.

DONNA ATWOOD . . . NOT SO EASY AS IT LOOKS.

When she has a chance she likes to swim. During her month's vacation, which she usually spends with her mother at Arcadia, Calif., where she has a house, or when the show is in California, she water-skis, a sport at which she has become quite an amateur expert. She yearns vaguely to be an actress, but has had no good movie offer.

* * *

DONNA is a well-built girl—as anybody who has watched her skate can see—of 118 pounds and 5 feet 3½ inches in height. She is wearing her red hair in a very attractive variant of the new bob which Ingrid Bergman inflicted on the radiant feminine tresses of Hollywood and the country at large in the past six months. Her eyes, she says, are hazel, but they looked brown to me. She said she was 23 years old—I ignored somebody who told me blithely, "Donna has dropped a year" and put down 23—and has been with the show seven years.

She has a nice smile, a pleasant, affable manner, and talks well, although her manner is more placid than vivacious. She seems to be utterly without temperament or jealousy of other performers, and obeys orders gracefully and efficiently—even to being effervescent and charming for the grind of 14 radio recordings made in the dreary hours of from 2 to 7 a.m.

Sonja Henie first inspired her to be an ice-skater. Donna, daughter of a Newton (Kan.) pharmacist, who moved his family to a place near Los Angeles when she was a little girl, had been a dancer since she was 3 and had a few bits in children's movies. She went to a professional children's school, where she became a friend of Gloria Nord, who later became the star of the Skating Vanities, the roller show. Donna did acrobatics on roller skates, as did Gloria. Anyway, both girls fell in love with ice-skating after seeing one of Sonja's early movies, and they went together to a new ice rink, the Polar Palace, when it opened in Los Angeles. A professional watched Donna on the ice, decided she had promise, and started her off on basic school figures and taught her to free-skate. She worked hard with him five months —she was 13 then—then entered and won the novice class in the Pacific Coast Championships.

With skating in her blood, she won the junior Coast title the next year. Then she entered the Nationals at Gleveland, "We won't go into that too much," she says. "I didn't do so well. Came in seventh in the novice. I was so heart-broken I cried." But the next year, at the Nationals at Boston, she won the junior girl's figure championship and the National senior pair championship with a boy named Gene Turner. She skated in a few amateur carnivals. Then when Ice Capades played at Los Angeles in December, 1941, on its first tour, Harris heard about her and signed her as a starlet. At that time, Donna says, there were four feminine stars, headed by the great Belita, who a year later left the show to make movies.

"There was a pack of temperament for you," Donna recalls. "All four of the stars were so jealous they watched each other like hawks. If one ended her solo in a split, all the other three did too. Nobody was going to get away with anything. Backstage was in constant turmoil, just like you sometimes see it in the movies. Poor little me, I didn't count in the feud—too insignificant."

She was pretty vague about any romances in her life. The first name any outsider would bring up, naturally, would be Bobby Specht, her partner. She never goes out with him, although they seem to be friendly in a light-hearted way. "The first time I met Bobby was at the National Championships in Boston, in 1941. I thought he was detestable then," she smiled, "but I like him fine now." So far as I could see, most of her affection goes to a tiny Chihuahua that guards her room with ferocious barks.

GRAY HAIR

Brush It Away—At Home—Look 10 Years Younger

Yes, at home, you can actually tint tell-tale streaks of gray to lustrous shades that challenge nature's own. Brownatone and a small brush does it. Easy to prove on a test lock of your hair. No waiting for results. One tinting imparts desired shade—from lightest blonde to darkest black. Praised by thousands. Guaranteed harmless—coloring agent purely vegetable. Scientists agree no skin test is needed. Cannot affect waving of hair. Economical, lasting, does not wash out. Simply "touch-up", as new gray appears. First application must give your hair youthful color, or money back. 75c—all druggists. Get Brownatone now.

Solution of Saturday's Puzzle

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Fools Cut Their Fingers, but Wise Men Cut Their Thumbs."

THE CORRESPONDENT who asks for the history of this proverb inquires also what it really means.

"Fools cut their fingers, but wise men cut their thumbs" is a crack at the wise men. It is the 18th century equivalent of the remark of the late Mayor La Guardia of New York that "When I make a mistake, it's a beaut!" It is a reminder that the mistakes of the wise are legion and that sometimes they are "beauts."

The words are those of a famous satirist, Jonathan Swift, their source in the work popularly known as "Polite Conversations." Although less familiar than the celebrated "Gulliver's Travels," this work, published in 1738, has been no less thoroughly mined for its nuggets of wisdom.

The exact words which Swift put into the mouth of one of his characters to make his point that the follies of the wise are prodigious, are as follows: "Tis only fools cut their fingers, but wise men cut their thumbs."

The larger hazard is that too many fake invasions from Mars, like the one in Ecuador, may make the populace blase, and deaf to danger when the real one comes.

Gratified to learn that for once he's entitled to an income-tax rebate, a local form-filler is making the blood donation this time to the Red Cross.

Though signs of a depression appear, an economist assures "there is no call for a depression now." When it comes to that, the last one wasn't by popular demand.

In West Virginia it is ruled that loafers have a right to hang around county courts. After all, the taller stationary types—so often mistaken for pillars—do something for a courthouse.

First thing you need, when looking up this "common boundary" which looms so importantly in Russia's grim exchanges with small Norway, is an unusually large map.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

WE are using our space today to tell homemakers how to obtain our recommended baking temperatures in ovens without heat control.

Fortunately, dependable portable oven thermometers are now obtainable. They cost from $1 to $2. And any one who can afford to bake angel food, lemon meringue pie, etc., now and then can easily afford to buy such a thermometer.

The best place to keep an oven thermometer is in the oven. When starting to preheat the oven, see that the thermometer is placed in the center of the middle rack with the temperature scale facing the oven door squarely for easy reading. When the oven of a wood or coal stove is being heated to bake yeast bread or rolls, biscuit, cornbread, muffins, or pastry requiring 425 to 450 degrees F., first start a brisk fire with a small amount of fuel. Then fill the firebox full of wood or coal. By the time it burns to glowing coals and there is need of adding more fuel the oven should heat to the above mentioned temperature.

If layer cake or casserole dishes are to be baked at a temperature of 350 to 375 degrees F., then add only enough fuel to the brisk initial fire to fill the firebox about three-fourths full. When the fuel burns to the glowing coal stage, check the oven. Take a comfortable body position so the eyes will be at the same level as the thermometer before opening the oven door. This permits quick and accurate reading and also quick closing of the oven door. If the thermometer has to be adjusted and one has to get into position for the reading after the door is open, the oven temperature can drop 25 to 50 degrees.

Once the correct temperature is obtained, it is important that it be maintained by adding small amounts of fuel occasionally. No one can suggest how much or how often to add it. One must learn to judge this by himself.

In a gas or electric range the oven should preheat to 425 to 450 degrees Fahrenheit in about 10 minutes when the heat is turned on in full and it should reach 350 to 375 degrees in seven to eight minutes. Tomorrow we will continue with a discussion of a successful method of timing the baking in such ovens.

Honey Apple Crisp.

One quart sliced apples, one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-half cup honey, one-half cup all-purpose flour, one-fourth cup light brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup butter or margarine, one-fourth cup chopped walnuts or pecans.

Choose firm, tart apples. Peel, quarter, core and slice. Spread apples in a shallow glass baking dish size 10½x6½x1¾ inches. Sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice and drizzle honey over the top. Combine flour, brown sugar and salt in a mixing bowl and work in the butter as for biscuits, making a crumbly mixture. Sprinkle these crumbs over the apples. Bake in a moderate oven (350F) for 30 to 40 minutes, or until apples are tender and crust is crisp and brown. Serve warm with plain cream or whipped cream sprinkled with a dash of cinnamon. Makes four to five servings.

Low Cost Menus.

TUESDAY.

As our North Atlantic chums point out, only Congress can get us into wars. On the other hand, if the fight is exciting enough, it is well-nigh impossible to declare us out.
